folklore the interesting story of Richard Evans, 19 years old, who killed a policeman. In 10 minutes a jury decided to hang him. Asked what he had to say, the young murderer looking at his mother sobbing in a corner, replied:

"Judge, I think the sentence is severe in view of my condition." He was half-drunk when he put a revolver to the head of a policeman driving him to the lockup, and blew out the policeman's brains.

IF ANYBODY is to be hanged, hanging that young murderer is correct, but what of the bootlegger that sold him the whiskey? Why not hang him beside the murderer? He had more to do with the killing than the 19-year-old boy that pulled the trigger.

CHICAGO statistics show that bootleg whisky's killing record about equals that of pistols.

In the first nine months of 1925 whisky killed 190; in the past nine months whisky has killed 228.

Victims of modern whisky included several old men and one girl baby, aged 4.

HOMER never looked into a Greek grammar, because he couldn't read; also, no Greek grammar had been published in his day. A man or woman writing well is like a hen laying an egg. Lunches For School Children

To think right the child must have the right kind of food.

The noon lunch is one of the most important school problems. It is not easy to make food attractive and to keep it clean when it must be packed and carried in a lunch basket.

This Bureau has for distribution a booklet which contains various bills of fare for the basket lunch, suggestions as to the proper method of packing, and recipes for sandwiches, cookies, salads, and sweets.

This is a Government publication and our Wahington Information Bureau will secure a copy for any reader who fills out and mails the coupon below, enclosing four cents in stamps for return postage and handling. Write your name and address clearly.

SLAY MOTORIST AND SHOOT SON, THEN FLEE AS ROBBERY FAILS

Open Fire When They are Refused Light.

NEWARK CRIME

Injuries Prevent Outlaws From Seizing $500,000 in Currency.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 5.—With the finding here early today of a blood-stained automobile, posses led by detectives were hot on the trail of two bandits who murdered a motorist and shot his son last night near New Brunswick, N. J., and attempted to rob the air mail of $500,000.

Woman May Die.

Police here believed the automobile was the car stolen by the bandits when they fled after killing the motorist, Frank Kearney, 50, a lumber dealer of Maplewood, N. J., and wounding his son, Robert, 15. The robbers threw Mrs. Kearney into a ditch. She is not expected to live.

Fog prevented the bandits from seizing pouches for the mail plane leaving Hadley field, near New Brunswick, for Cleveland and Chicago. The pouches contained currency and negotiable securities valued at $500,000.

In the bandits' own car, which was disabled in a collision near New Brunswick, detectives found two shotguns, four pistols and 50 rounds of ammunition with which it is believed they planned to rob the air mail.

Wreck Car. Steal Another.

When their machine was disabled, the bandits stopped the Kearney machine and demanded a light. When Kearney refused they shot and killed him and started up the road, carrying Mrs. Kearney and her son, Robert, with them.

Robert grappled with them. They shot him through the head and tossed him from the car. His condition is critical.

A minute later the bandits threw Mrs. Kearney from the speeding machine. She suffered serious injuries.

Later the bandits drove the Kearney car into a pole and wrecked it. They then stole another car belonging to Henry Doloff, a farmer.

At this point an armed steel truck containing the air mail pouches filled with $500,000 in currency and securities passed the robbers, who had been injured so severely in their two accidents that they did not attempt to stage a hold-up. They fled to Doloff's car, which is believed to be the automobile found in Newark this morning.

Police believe one of the robbers was "Bum" Rogers, notorious bandit who escaped from Sing Sing prison a few months ago.

SHERIFF ARRESTS YOUNGSTOWN MAN

Max Suggars, Youngstown, claiming to be a Mahoning county deputy sheriff, is being held in jail here upon orders of Sheriff George Wright following his arrest just north of Stop 55 on the Lincoln Highway about 6:30 o'clock this morning. A charge, the sheriff said, will be filed this afternoon.

According to the sheriff, Suggars was flagging automobiles on the Longs' Run hill, north of Stop 55. The prisoner's shirt and clothing were covered with blood, the result, he claimed, of a fight with two other men, who had disappeared when the sheriff reached the scene. Suggars said that he and three or four friends had spent the night at a camp in Madison township and were on their way back to East Liverpool in an automobile when one of the party assaulted him.

Dr. Albert Michaels, who examined Suggars at the city hall, found his injuries to consist of a minor laceration on the nose. His brother, Frank Suggars, was to come here from Youngstown this afternoon to arrange for the prisoner's release.

Police Chief Fultz Winner In Appellate Court Fight

District Tribunal, Meeting in Youngstown Overrules Wellsville City's Motion for Stay of Execution Until November.

Chief of Police John H. Fultz, of Wellsville, dismissed from office on March 19, last, by Mayor W. L. Fogo, and reinstated five months and 15 days later by order of Common Pleas Judge W. H. Spence, of Lisbon, will stay on the job, at least until the November session of the court of appeals, as a result of a ruling made from the appellate bench at Youngstown today.

Judges L. T. Farr, John Pollock and J. W. Roberts overruled the motion of the city of Wellsville for a stay of execution of the decision of the Columbiana county court order, holding that Fultz should perform his duties as head of the police department until the case can be heard on its merits.

The court did not pass upon the Fultz motion to dismiss the city's petition in error.

In the event, the city of Wellsville, which gave notice of appeal in common pleas court, files a transcript in the interim, the question of a new trial shall be determined at the Lisbon session of the appellate tribunal.

The city of Wellsville was represented yesterday afternoon in Youngstown when arguments were heard on the stay of execution motion by Solicitor S. C. Luccock and the East Liverpool law firm of Cochran and Crawford.

Attorneys W. A. O'Grady, of Wellsville, and Ben L. Bennett and F. E. Grosshans, of East Liverpool, counsel for Fultz, opposed the motion.

Fultz was present during the arguments.

Fireboat W. J. Gaynor, Answering S. O. S. Calls, Pours Water Into Byron's Hold as They Come Up Bay Together.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The national Greek liner Byron, fire raging in her aft hold, today raced up the bay and brought her crew of 200 to safety at quarantine.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The S. S. Byron, with more than 400 passengers aboard, was afire today at quarantine, with water being poured into her hold by the fireboat William J. Gaynor.

The Byron, from Piracus, Greece, sent out an SOS early this morning that she was ablaze off Ambrose Channel lightship. The Gaynor rushed to her assistance, and poured water into her as they came up the bay together.

The first SOS was received by naval communications shortly after 6 o'clock, and the Gaynor was ordered out. The Byron was then just outside the harbor, and asked that tugs be sent to her assistance.

The ship is of British registry. She sailed from Grece on Sept. 17, and was due to dock here this afternoon.

The Byron carried among her passengers a number of American citizens returning from Greece. She is a vessel of 9,272 gross tonnage, 470 feet long, with 58 foot beam. She is an oil burner, and flies the British flag, despite her Greek ownership. The ship was built in 1914 in Birkenhead, Scotland.

500 HOMELESS IN FLOOD-STRICKEN ILLINOIS TOWN CALL FOR CLOTHING

Swollen River, Apparently at Standstill Last Night, Continues Its Invasion of Beardstown

While flood waters continued to menace cities and towns and exact their toll of property and crop damage in central Illinois, other sections of the mid-west today were counting the cost as the high water which has for days inundated sections of the three states receded.

Three lives were claimed by the high water.

In Oklahoma and Kansas, early estimates placed the damage at over $2,000,000.

Missouri, it was believed from a preliminary survey will pay almost $500,000 tribute to the storms.

No accurate estimate of the damage in Illinois is possible, although farm bureaus say it will run into millions.

Beardstown, center of the Illinois flood area, today faced possible annihilation as the waters, fed by swollen up-state streams, continued to rise.

BEARDSTOWN, Ill., Oct. 5.—"Send clothing and blankets," was the plea from flood-stricken Beardstown today as the swollen Illinois river continued its invasion of the city. Five hundred homeless face inadequate warmth if cooler weather comes and relief organizations today will start gathering stores from the bounty of all Illinois.

The river, which late last night appeared to have been at a standstill, again started to climb today and waters approaching the city from the rear were only fifty feet from the flood marching through the city.

Meanwhile an estimate places the property loss at more than the half million mark and still mounting. Homes are ruined, merchants' stocks of goods are damaged or ruined and

Ontario Woman Hurt When Autos Crash At Intersection

Mrs. Harry Judy, Walkerville, Ontario, received a minor injury to her arm in a collision between two automobiles at the intersection of Jackson and West Fifth streets at 10 o'clock last night.

Mrs. Judy and her husband, at the wheel of the machine, her two children and her brother-in-law, Ellsworth Judy, were enroute to their home after a few days' visit with local friends when the accident occurred. Judy, who was traveling north on Jackson street, claims that he came to a stop when he reached Fifth street and then started to make the turn west when Roberts, driving a Buick sedan, crashed into him.

The side of the Judy machine was crushed, the body, running board and fender being damaged. Roberts' car was disabled. Both men reported at the city hall this morning for an investigation into the accident. No charges have been filed.

27 BELIEVED DEAD AS BLAST TRAPS 31 MEN IN COAL MINE

Four Bodies Removed From Rockwood, Tenn., Shaft.

HOPE ABANDONED

Four Miners are Rescued But They May Die.

By WALTER RATLIFF.

ROCKWOOD, Tenn., Oct. 5.—The danger of another gas explosion loomed today as rescue workers slowly penetrated their way into the workings of the Roane Iron Company's coal mine here, seeking to recover the bodies of 23 miners.

All hope for recovery alive of the men, trapped by a gas explosion yesterday has been abandoned. The gas fumes issued forth in great waves and leaders of rescue operations expressed fear that the coal has caught fire and that there was a possibility of another explosion at any moment.

Four bodies have been recovered while the body of another miner was located but could not be brought to the surface because of the deadly fumes. The bodies recovered are: Harry Lingo, head blown off; George Riddle, Hector Smith and Will Elliott, Jr. The body of the fifth miner was believed to be G. C. Stevens.

The number of men trapped by the blast has been definitely established at 31.

Deadly Fumes Hamper Work.

Four were rescued last night, and four bodies were recovered, leaving a total of 23 still in the mine, all of whom are believed dead.

T. E. Cash, of the federal bureau of mines in Birmingham, Ala., has arrived here with a crew of 12 men in a special car and has taken charge of rescue work.

The deadly fumes hampered the work of bringing the bodies to the surface.

Several hundred people are grouped about the mouth of the mine, which is on the side of a high hill. Guards are stationed along the road to keep the crowd away from the entrance.

Four miners have been rescud but may die.

According to Deputy Mine Inspector A. J. Holden, who is directing the rescue work, there is not the slightest chance of finding any of the remaining victims alive.

"If they were not killed by the explosion, they are certain to have succumbed to the deadly black after damp," Holden said.

At an early hour today the rescue workers were still about 1,500 feet from the spot where the remaining mine victims are entombed and it was not expected that any more bodies would be recovered for several hours.

Blast Three Miles Underground.

The explosion occurred about three miles below the surface at exactly the same spot where a similar explosion last year took the lives of ten men.

Mal King, sole survivor of last year's disaster, was a member of the first rescue party to enter the mine. Other rescue crews were quickly formed and entered the mine with oxygen helmets two hours after the explosion.

One rescue party came upon E. G.

SCOUT CHIEF RETURNS HOME

Harry Wilson, Columbiana County Boy Scout executive, has just returned from Hot Springs, Ark., where he attended the fourth biennial conference of Scout executives.

More than 900 delegates attended the conference, including representatives from Hungary, China, Japan and the Philippines. The session continued for eight days, various problems facing Scout leaders being discussed.

Reports submitted showed America to have 808,000 scouts. Of this number 650 are in Columbiana county, troops being in existence in East Liverpool, Salem, Wellsville, Leetonia and Columbiana.

WITH COUNT ONE-ALL, CARDINALS AND YANKS CLASH IN ST. LOUIS

Reuther Probably Will Oppose Rhem or Reinhardt on Mound as World Series Hostilities are Switched From New York City to Missouri Metropolis.

BOTH TEAMS ARE CONFIDENT AS THEY GIRD TO BREAK DEADLOCK

Mound City, Given First National Pennant Winner and Classic Contender in 38 Years, is Baseball Mad as Hornsby and Company Face Huggins' Stalwarts.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—An hour before the scheduled start of the third game of the world series this afternoon, rain began to fall and showed every indication of continuing for some time. It soaked the diamond, before ground keepers could lay tarpaulins on the field and it chased all the athletes to cover. Thousands of fans in the open stands were soaked and some of them replied by rushing the higher priced seats which were under cover.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—The festive board was laid this afternoon for an old home week barbecue and St. Louis tucked a napkin under its chin, clutched a knife and fork firmly in either hand and fell upon the feast with the gusto of a man who knows what it means to go hungry. Even a shower of rain could not dampen the enthusiasm. For 38 lean years St. Louis had lived on a diet of bread and water which might be healthful in the extreme but not necessarily sustaining.

They Don't Mind the Rain.

It was not to be stopped by a dash of rain now.

The entrees, the sweetbreads, the caviar and all the fixings, were to come in a gastronomic rush this afternoon, with the staging of the third game of the 1926 classic between the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Yankees. And a little rain meant nothing. Never before in world's series history had St. Louis been the scene and it conducted itself accordingly.

Thirty-six thousand roaring, raving but normally sane citizens acted as delegates for the entire state of Missouri to the convention of joy and the possibilities that bad weather might intervene or that the Cardinals might lost and thus stake the Yanks to the edge on the series at two victories to one, were not given the consideration of a fleeting moment.

Sky Has Brooding Aspect.

In fact, the gods seemed to relent after giving this evidence of their whimsicalities and the rain closed almost as abruptly as it began. However, the sky maintained its brooding aspect.

The average St. Louisan, however, felt that the fates, having decreed that Cardinals were to win a pennant, could not be so inconsistent as to mar the celebration in any way. The average St. Louisan felt that St. Louis could not and wouldn't go wrong.

It was for this reason that St. Louis romped over the civic premises last night and this morning in the most amazing demonstration ever promoted by an American city. For this reason, also, they stood in patient, waiting lines at the general admission gates from sunset to dawn and beyond and the same motive prompted them to bet 6 to 5 on their favorite ball club in large gobs of money.

Pitching Choices.

It was deemed that either Flint Rhem or Jess Haines, fast ball experts, could repeat Alexander's victory of Sunday. As far as this town was concerned, Hornsby had three choices and all of them were right.

Dutch Ruether was said to be Mr. Huggin's nominee, the vest pocket manager being enamored of the idea that what the left handed Pennock did on Saturday, the equally left handed Ruether could do today.

The Cards appeared on the field at 11:45 and approximately 36,000 souls suffered a sudden attack of semi-dementia.

HERE ARE THIRD BATTLE FACTS

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—Facts about the third game of the world series:

Time of game: 1:30, Central standard time.

Place: Sportsman's Park.

Participants: New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals.

Series standing: Teams even up with each one game won.

Probable pitchers: Reuther for Yankees, Rhem or Haines for Cardinals.

Weather: Partly cloudy.

CIVIL ACTION IN CITY COURT

Civil action of W. S. Williamson against J. L. and Fannie Smith for $815 alleged to be due him for wages, was placed on trial in municipal court today.

The case is being heard by a jury of six persons—three men and three women. Attorney P. V. Mackall is counsel for Williamson, while Smith is represented by Attorney Ben L. Bennett. Indications at noon were that the case would not go to the jury until late this afternoon.

Jack Kearns Has His Day in Court; Dempsey on Stand

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 5.—Jack Kearns was having his day in court today.

Jack Dempsey, former world's heavyweight fighting champion, was forced to the witness stand in chancery court here today over the vehement protests of his attorneys, and became an instant target for a legal barrage more punishing than the barrage of Gene Tunney's fists 10 days ago.

It was Kearns' chance, through his squadron of high-pressure attorneys, to find out where Dempsey's money is, particularly the money Dempsey got for the Tunney fight, and the attorneys worked in relays in a desperate volley of questions to find out. Up to noon they worked in vain.

Missouri, it was believed from a preliminary survey will pay almost $500,000 tribute to the storms.

No accurate estimate of the damage in Illinois is possible, although farm bureaus say it will run into millions.

Beardstown, center of the Illinois flood area, today faced possible annihilation as the waters, fed by swollen up-state streams, continued to rise.

BEARDSTOWN, Ill., Oct. 5.—"Send clothing and blankets," was the plea from flood-stricken Beardstown today as the swollen Illinois river continued its invasion of the city. Five hundred homeless face inadequate warmth if cooler weather comes and relief organizations today will start gathering stores from the bounty of all Illinois.

The river, which late last night appeared to have been at a standstill, again started to climb today and waters approaching the city from the rear were only fifty feet from the flood marching through the city.

Meanwhile an estimate places the property loss at more than the half million mark and still mounting. Homes are ruined, merchants' stocks of goods are damaged or ruined and

Ontario Woman Hurt When Autos Crash At Intersection

Mrs. Harry Judy, Walkerville, Ontario, received a minor injury to her arm in a collision between two automobiles at the intersection of Jackson and West Fifth streets at 10 o'clock last night.

Mrs. Judy and her husband, at the wheel of the machine, her two children and her brother-in-law, Ellsworth Judy, were enroute to their home after a few days' visit with local friends when the accident occurred. Judy, who was traveling north on Jackson street, claims that he came to a stop when he reached Fifth street and then started to make the turn west when Roberts, driving a Buick sedan, crashed into him.

The side of the Judy machine was crushed, the body, running board and fender being damaged. Roberts' car was disabled. Both men reported at the city hall this morning for an investigation into the accident. No charges have been filed.

27 BELIEVED DEAD AS BLAST TRAPS 31 MEN IN COAL MINE

Four Bodies Removed From Rockwood, Tenn., Shaft.

HOPE ABANDONED

Four Miners are Rescued But They May Die.

By WALTER RATLIFF.

ROCKWOOD, Tenn., Oct. 5.—The danger of another gas explosion loomed today as rescue workers slowly penetrated their way into the workings of the Roane Iron Company's coal mine here, seeking to recover the bodies of 23 miners.

All hope for recovery alive of the men, trapped by a gas explosion yesterday has been abandoned. The gas fumes issued forth in great waves and leaders of rescue operations expressed fear that the coal has caught fire and that there was a possibility of another explosion at any moment.

Four bodies have been recovered while the body of another miner was located but could not be brought to the surface because of the deadly fumes. The bodies recovered are: Harry Lingo, head blown off; George Riddle, Hector Smith and Will Elliott, Jr. The body of the fifth miner was believed to be G. C. Stevens.

The number of men trapped by the blast has been definitely established at 31.

Deadly Fumes Hamper Work.

Four were rescued last night, and four bodies were recovered, leaving a total of 23 still in the mine, all of whom are believed dead.

T. E. Cash, of the federal bureau of mines in Birmingham, Ala., has arrived here with a crew of 12 men in a special car and has taken charge of rescue work.

The deadly fumes hampered the work of bringing the bodies to the surface.

Several hundred people are grouped about the mouth of the mine, which is on the side of a high hill. Guards are stationed along the road to keep the crowd away from the entrance.

Four miners have been rescud but may die.

According to Deputy Mine Inspector A. J. Holden, who is directing the rescue work, there is not the slightest chance of finding any of the remaining victims alive.

"If they were not killed by the explosion, they are certain to have succumbed to the deadly black after damp," Holden said.

At an early hour today the rescue workers were still about 1,500 feet from the spot where the remaining mine victims are entombed and it was not expected that any more bodies would be recovered for several hours.

Blast Three Miles Underground.

The explosion occurred about three miles below the surface at exactly the same spot where a similar explosion last year took the lives of ten men.

Mal King, sole survivor of last year's disaster, was a member of the first rescue party to enter the mine. Other rescue crews were quickly formed and entered the mine with oxygen helmets two hours after the explosion.

One rescue party came upon E. G.

WITH COUNT ONE-ALL, CARDINALS AND YANKS CLASH IN ST. LOUIS

Reuther Probably Will Oppose Rhem or Reinhardt on Mound as World Series Hostilities are Switched From New York City to Missouri Metropolis.

Mound City, Given First National Pennant Winner and Classic Contender in 38 Years, is Baseball Mad as Hornsby and Company Face Huggins' Stalwarts.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—An hour before the scheduled start of the third game of the world series this afternoon, rain began to fall and showed every indication of continuing for some time. It soaked the diamond, before ground keepers could lay tarpaulins on the field and it chased all the athletes to cover. Thousands of fans in the open stands were soaked and some of them replied by rushing the higher priced seats which were under cover.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—The festive board was laid this afternoon for an old home week barbecue and St. Louis tucked a napkin under its chin, clutched a knife and fork firmly in either hand and fell upon the feast with the gusto of a man who knows what it means to go hungry. Even a shower of rain could not dampen the enthusiasm. For 38 lean years St. Louis had lived on a diet of bread and water which might be healthful in the extreme but not necessarily sustaining.

They Don't Mind the Rain.

It was not to be stopped by a dash of rain now.

The entrees, the sweetbreads, the caviar and all the fixings, were to come in a gastronomic rush this afternoon, with the staging of the third game of the 1926 classic between the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Yankees. And a little rain meant nothing. Never before in world's series history had St. Louis been the scene and it conducted itself accordingly.

Thirty-six thousand roaring, raving but normally sane citizens acted as delegates for the entire state of Missouri to the convention of joy and the possibilities that bad weather might intervene or that the Cardinals might lost and thus stake the Yanks to the edge on the series at two victories to one, were not given the consideration of a fleeting moment.

Sky Has Brooding Aspect.

In fact, the gods seemed to relent after giving this evidence of their whimsicalities and the rain closed almost as abruptly as it began. However, the sky maintained its brooding aspect.

The average St. Louisan, however, felt that the fates, having decreed that Cardinals were to win a pennant, could not be so inconsistent as to mar the celebration in any way. The average St. Louisan felt that St. Louis could not and wouldn't go wrong.

It was for this reason that St. Louis romped over the civic premises last night and this morning in the most amazing demonstration ever promoted by an American city. For this reason, also, they stood in patient, waiting lines at the general admission gates from sunset to dawn and beyond and the same motive prompted them to bet 6 to 5 on their favorite ball club in large gobs of money.

Pitching Choices.

It was deemed that either Flint Rhem or Jess Haines, fast ball experts, could repeat Alexander's victory of Sunday. As far as this town was concerned, Hornsby had three choices and all of them were right.

Dutch Ruether was said to be Mr. Huggin's nominee, the vest pocket manager being enamored of the idea that what the left handed Pennock did on Saturday, the equally left handed Ruether could do today.

The Cards appeared on the field at 11:45 and approximately 36,000 souls suffered a sudden attack of semi-dementia.

HERE ARE THIRD BATTLE FACTS

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—Facts about the third game of the world series:

Time of game: 1:30, Central standard time.

Place: Sportsman's Park.

Participants: New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals.

Series standing: Teams even up with each one game won.

Probable pitchers: Reuther for Yankees, Rhem or Haines for Cardinals.

Weather: Partly cloudy.

CIVIL ACTION IN CITY COURT

Civil action of W. S. Williamson against J. L. and Fannie Smith for $815 alleged to be due him for wages, was placed on trial in municipal court today.

The case is being heard by a jury of six persons—three men and three women. Attorney P. V. Mackall is counsel for Williamson, while Smith is represented by Attorney Ben L. Bennett. Indications at noon were that the case would not go to the jury until late this afternoon.

Jack Kearns Has His Day in Court; Dempsey on Stand

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 5.—Jack Kearns was having his day in court today.

Jack Dempsey, former world's heavyweight fighting champion, was forced to the witness stand in chancery court here today over the vehement protests of his attorneys, and became an instant target for a legal barrage more punishing than the barrage of Gene Tunney's fists 10 days ago.

It was Kearns' chance, through his squadron of high-pressure attorneys, to find out where Dempsey's money is, particularly the money Dempsey got for the Tunney fight, and the attorneys worked in relays in a desperate volley of questions to find out. Up to noon they worked in vain.

PRIMARY LAW IS DENOUNCED BY C. L. KNIGHT

Akron Publisher Urges Modification of Present System.

HITS BLOC RULE

Charges Eight Per Cent of Electorate Can Name Candidates.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 5.—A scathing denunciation of the present primary law was voiced by C. L. Knight of Akron, sponsor of a proposed constitutional amendment modifying the primary law and chairman of the primary referendum committee, in an address before the annual meeting of the select list of Ohio newspapers here yesterday.

Knight declared the primary "never had a place in representative government," and charged it had led to an "orgy of bloc rule." Pointing out the primary has been in general operation for 15 years, Knight added: "Has is lessened corruption, has it increased the ability or the fidelity of the public official, has it reduced the cost or improved the quality of government?"

"To ask that question is to answer it," he continued. "Pennsylvania speaks to us in the eloquent language of failure. Illinois shows us how the great corporations find it an instrument ready made for their hand, to place their faithful servants in high places."

Only 15 per cent of the people turn out at the primary and thus eight per cent of the total electorate can name the candidates, Knight said. "These candidates cannot be known to any considerable part of the people and consequently the voter chooses at random unless he has special guidance," Knight asserted. "Here is where the groups and blocs get in their work."

"The primary should be modified to improve the situation," declared, "adding the proposed amendment would retain whatever protection the primary is calculated to give."

"This amendment simply seeks to provide a convention system but it expressly states the delegates to such convention must be elected at primaries," he explained.

"MEN OF STEEL" IS GREAT FILM

Milton Sills Scores in Screen Hit at American.

First National's long heralded photoplay, "Men of Steel," opened last night at the American theatre. It was worth waiting for.

Milton Sills, who is credited with the authorship of the story, is seen in the starring role, and incidentally in what this writer considers his greatest screen performance.

Sills is magnificent. He starts out an ignorant laborer in an iron mine. He finishes as boss of a steel mill and son-in-law to the steel mill owner. And what a course he runs in getting there!

Here you have everything that a motion picture fan's heart could possibly desire. There is beautiful romance, wonderful love story, spectacles in the steel mills that make your heart leap up, action and then more action, laughs, settings that simply hold you spellbound and thrills that most motion picture producers dream of but seldom put on the screen. What more could you ask?

Sills has one of the finest casts that one could hope to see assembled. Doris Kenyon in the leading woman's role does the best work we have seen from her on the screen.

Mae Allison, lovely Mae, is superb, and George Fawcett, Frank Currier, Victor McLaglen and John Kolb do much to make the picture a success.

But after all Sills is the picture. George Archainbaud, who directed this picture, should be proud of his work. He has reason to be very happy, as should Earl Hudson who produced it for First National.

Westminster Abbey Stone Presented to Smoky City Church

LONDON.—One of the most ancient stones of Westminster Abbey, first used in 1200, has been presented to the new church of St. Mary, Beaver Falls, Pittsburgh.

"It must not be thought," says Canon Storr, of Westminster Abbey, that we give away anything that can be used further in the work of restoration."

"When we receive a request from an American church for a gift from the actual fabric, we send them something which, though possessing all the historic associations of the Abbey, cannot be utilized further in repair work. Sometimes it is a block of marble sometimes a piece of mason's work or woodwork. Whatever it is, our American friends always express their appreciation and delight."

BOOK THREE—XI.

Jock did not reply, and his eyes fell from hers, to her white fingers that played restlessly at her thoat. He felt numb. A sort of mental paralysis, that enabled him to hear and see but not to think, seemed to have settled on him. "It's been just a lot of words," he told himself, "and they're true, yet they don't mean anything. I don't feel anything. Good Lord, what's the matter with me? I ought to feel something—one way or the other—"

Yvonne's voice began again, rather breathlessly. "I'm sorry. But you'll have to believe it now, because it's so. I've been his mistress for over a year. He gave me that limousine, and these rings, and the clothes I have on, and he paid for my apartment. . . . I thought I had what I wanted. Money; and everything money buys. But you see, I didn't leave room in my calculatoins for one thing, Jock Hamill. I didn't know I'd ever meet you, and love you, and wish—oh, wish so!—that I'd kept myself for you. I'm realizing, a long while too late, that money doesn't really amount to much—that love is the only thing that matters."

"Just one more thing I want to tell you," Yvonne said. "I've left him. I left him in Califronia, to come here and tell this to you, and I've moved from his apartment, and tomorrow I'm going to get rid of his car. I—I'd just like to have you know that I'll never belong to him again, even if—even if you don't want me—"

She stood up, and Jock from his seat on the steps raised his eyes blankly to her white set face. "Just one more thing I want to tell you," she said. "I've left him. I left him in California, to come here and tell this to you, and I've moved from his apartment, and tomorrow I'm going to get rid of his car. I—I'd just like to have you know that I'll never belong to him again, even if—even if you don't want me—"

Jock gave a harsh, unintelligible cry then, and got to his feet. But she would not let him speak. "No, don't. I want you to think, before you say anything. I'm going to leave you for a little while, s oyou can. And bye and bye, when you've made up your mind—come and tell me—I'll be waiting—"

A minute later he was alone on the porch of the cottage called Paradise.

XII.

"First," he thought, "I've got to make myself realize."

He sat down again, and with his back against a post, and crossed his arms on his up-propped knees and looked straight ahead. He gave his imagination full play. He goaded it deliberately, and made it, unwillingly, listen at doors and peep through keyholes. . . . And suddenly anguish smote him like a bolt, searing his every nerve. He shut his eyes tight, as though by this gesture he would erase the visions of his mind. He groaned, and dropped his forehead to rest on his crossed arms. And so for a time he sat still as stone, suffering unutterably . . . because a dream, a lovely priceless thing, had died. . . .

How long he remained thus he never knew; whether an interval to be measured in minutes or in hours. Or in years. It seemed to him that he lived years while he sat there. "Oh, well," he reflected grimly, "I suppose that's what 'growing up' means. Losing your faith in people and things you'd staked your life on, once." . . . After a while this thought drew another from the whirling tumult of his brain and set it up for him to examine. Would he ever have staked his life on Yvonne's integrity? Hadn't there always been a little lurking suspicion somewhere deep within him? . . . He recalled a thousand things she had said and done, a thousand irrelevances that had rapped at his consciousness and been stubbornly denied admittance. All so obvious now, he wondered how he could have overlooked them. "Because I tried to." That was it, of course. He had been at great pains to overlook them. "Love is blind only because it ties its own bandage over its own eyes" . . .

"Well, he couldn't overlook them any more. Never any more. It was as though he had seen Yvonne only by moonlight before, and now he saw her in a cruel white calcium glare. She was older, by the calcium glare. And wiser. And wearier. But was she any less desirable? Did he love her any less? There. That was the question that had to be settled, and soon. "Do I love her any less?"

He rehearsed again all the things she had told him, carefully . . . and this time pity overrode his pain. "Rotten. Life's treated her rotten. She hasn't had a fair break, not a single one, since the beginning. Her mother and father dying, and the atmosphere of that town she lived in, and then the fellow in the war. And that second marriage—" After all, could you blame her? Could you blame her no whatter what she did? He demanded it aloud of the empty air. "You can't blame her, can you?"

And then, because the near sea seemed to laugh and mock at him, he grew angry, and began to denounce himself. "Who are you to blame her, anyway? You. . . . Why, damn it to hell, you're not so almighty good yourself, remember! You've done things yourself. And without any justification, like she had. Just to be vile. Just to satisfy your lousy low-down vile curiosity!" Crashing clear as though it were yesterday, a prep school memory came back to him. A house in a sinister street. Himself and two other stealthy, shivering youngsters, creeping there in the night . . . and the sick disillusionment, ugly, intolerable, that had followed. . . . When they left he had turned frantically and picked up a rock, and hurled it through that leering window . . .

And there were other memories. Not many, but a few. Little dark splotches down the margins of fair pages. . . .

"God damn you!" he choked. "Why, you're not fit to kiss her shoes. . . . And look! She doesn't ask what you've done. She doesn't care what you've done. 'Love is the only thing that matters.' She loves you. Enough to leave everything and come to you, and tell you—she didn't have to tell you. She could have lied and lied, and you'd have believed every word. But because she wouldn't lie to you, you sit like this, like a smug saint with a halo, and dare to judge her! She was too fine to lie. She wouldn't stoop to that. And here you are . . ."

He pitched sideways and lay face downward on the porch, humbled and penitent. He whispered, barely audible: "Oh, Yvonne — sweetheart—forgive me, you'll have to forgive me for this! It was just that I worshiped you so. Put you in a shrine, and thought you weren't human. And then—someone else's arms—it killed me to think of you in some one else's arms. . . . But that's over. You're mine now. Mine!" He chattered it fiercely. "Mine! My wife! That's what you're going to be. And nobody else will ever so much as touch your hand."

He held then a little requiem over the past. He divided the things Yvonne had said, putting the ones that had stung him away into permanent oblivion, repeating the ones that were precious over and over, so that his lips should chisel them into the enduring tablets of his memory. . . . After a long time he stood up, laboriously, like a man just out of a sickbed. He walked down the steps to the beach.

There was a weather-beaten wharf not a great distance away, and there he caught sight of Yvonne, standing on its far edge, gazing out at the ocean. Yvonne in her white fur . . . and she had taken off her hat, so that her hair was like the torch of a slender white candle. Yvonne. So beautiful. So glittering beautiful . . .

And there was no problem in his mind any more. Nothing but a resolution, and a desire, and a new sharp ecstasy.

He began to run toward her, stumbling a little in the sand.

Sick Man Offers $50 For Stomach Medicine

"I was a sufferer from indigestion until a druggist advised me to try Adlerika. The results have been wonderful. I eat anything, and can do a big day's work without feeling tired. I wouldn't be without Adlerika if it cost $50 a bottle."—R. C. Culver.

Unlike most medicines, Adlerika acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowel, giving the intestines a REAL cleansing and bringing out old poisonous matter you never thought was in your system. Even if bowels move daily, you will be surprised how much more old matter Adlerika brings out which may have been causing all your trouble. In slight disorders, like occasional constipation, GAS bloating, indigestion or sick headache, ONE spoonful always brings relief.

Adlerika is a compound of the best saline intestinal cleanser with glycerine, buckthorn, cascara, and other gas-expelling and detergent elements. It is excellent for Intestinal Stasis, a disease due to modern ways of living and which is often the true cause of sour stomach, gas bloating, nervous dyspepsia and restless sleep.

Doctors Praise Adlerika.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York: "Adlerika, in addition to its intestinal cleansing, checks the growth of intestinal bacteria."

Dr. A. C. Curl: "I prescribe Adlerika with highly satisfactory results."

Dr. J. Weaver: "In my 50 years' practice I have found nothing to excel Adlerika."

J. E. Puckett: "After using Adlerika, I feel better than for 20 years. Awful impurities were eliminated from my system.'

Dr. F. M. P. (name withheld by request): "I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose."

No matter what you have tried for your stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you. At leading druggists. In East Liverpool at the Economy Drug Store and other Druggists.

Joyful Insanity In St. Louis

A 38-year-wait for a pennant-winning and possible world's championship team has culminated in joyful insanity for the greater part of the population of St. Louis, judging from newspaper reports today of the reception accorded Rogers Hornsby and his Cardinals when they returned to the Missouri metropolis last night with the count one-all in the baseball classic.

The victorious red birds were literally and figuratively mobbed as they stepped from their special train following a 24-hour journey from the Yankee stadium in New York, where on Saturday and Sunday they played the first games of the series that it is determine who who's in the national pastime.

Staging what was probably the greatest celebration the city has witnessed since that memorable Nov. 11, 1918, when the cables flashed the news that the armistice had been signed, declaring an end to hostilities in the World War, 100,000 baseball-mad fans jammed the railroad yards and streets to welcome the Hornsby club. Bombs, whistles, horns, bells and yelling combined to make it a noisy greeting. Music rendered by two bands was drowned in the spontaneous outburst of cheering. Manager Hornsby, Grover Cleveland Alexander, shunted down the river by Chicago, and Billy Southworth, discarded Giant player whose home run smash made victory certain in the second clash, were the cynosure of all eyes. And they were patted on the back and even kissed by the delirious populace.

With enthusiasm at such a high pitch, the Cardinals should be in a happy mood when they trot onto the field this afternoon for the third battle of the classic. And every man, woman and child in the National league city is bubbling over with confidence. And this means much from a standpoint of morale, and may prove an all-important factor in deciding the championship.

Only His Life

Are we losing our active interest in politics? Registration reports from many states in the last few months seem to indicate that we are—if we ever had any.

In Cleveland, the first day of registration for the state elections showed that about 22,000 voters out of a total of 300,000 had registered. While succeeding registration days will increase the roll, nothing like a full vote is expected when election day comes. Similar apathy is reported throughout the state. Men and women alike seem indifferent.

One reason given for the lack of interest is that it is "only a state election." "Only a state election," with everything involved from the governorship down, including the personnel of the courts, and representation at Washington.

In any city or state the voters will have exactly the kind of government which they bring about. Can we afford to lose interest in what concerns us so closely? Yet he who does not register cannot vote. Which is to say, he cannot have any say about the conditions under which he lives his own life.

Thursday, Oct. 7, is the next registration day in East Liverpool.

Legends Of The Air

In regard to a prophecy of air service across the Atlantic in 20 years, the Toronto Globe remarks that Lord Tennyson said something of the kind some 50 years years ago when he had "dipt into the future far as human eye could see" and "saw the heavens filled with commerce, argosies of magic sails, pilots of the purple twilight, dropping down with costly bales."

Was this prophecy, pure and simple, or a bit of that mysterious race memory into which poets sometimes seem to dip?

We pride ourselves on the novelty of our inventions, and think never in the world's history were any people so scientific and wonderful. Yet there are oriental legends which through the centuries have always refused to down, that the people of Atlantis that continent supposed to have been submerged beneath what is now the Atlantic Ocean, and from which the ocean gets its name, had not only airplanes but many inventions as far beyond ours as ours are beyond the means of transportation in the middle ages.

The people perished, these legends tell, because their moral and spiritual natures were not fitted to cope with their materially advancing minds. This may, of course, happen to us likewise, but if there is any safety in analogy, we have some hundreds of thousands of years yet to go. Meantime, we might just possibly grow up out of our present childishness in the conduct of human relations.

"Hazard of Death by Auto Gaining." When all the drivers have learned to drive, and all the walkers have learned to keep on walking slowly in the same direction, and all the children have learned not to dash out from behind parked cars, and all the fools who take chances with trains have been killed off, there may be a different tale to tell.

Let the gloomy dean rave on about the imminent disintegration of the British Empire. As long as Canada, Australia and New Zealand refuse to take him seriously, Uncle Sam should worry and add a wrinkle!

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Melancholy touches tenements in the Fall. It is a prelude to winter and its hardships. Sidewalks are filled with little kindling wagons stacked high with old scraps of fuel picked up here and there.

Cellars become coal shops where patrons purchase by the basket. Many children are sewed up for the winter and will not have a bath until "the red, red robin comes bob, bob, bobbin' along." Old men and women must move from their doorway chairs.

Windows that droopd with gossiping woman are closed. The tenement—like the Arctic—enters the long night. The fight to live becomes a grim problem. Children are denied the only playground they know—the asphalted street.

The ominous and straggly bread line begins slowly to galvanize into a compact procession, for no matter the state of national prosperity—the breadline is always with us. Westward, gaiety is at its pitch, but in the slums it has touched bottom.

That stagnant army that lazes through summer and makes a pretense of work in winter drifts to the labor agencies in the dispirited manner of those who seek obs but hope not to find them. And the laughter of women is muffled.

But the greatest hardship is among children. Tenement youngsters make their own amusement—chalked hop scotch games on the pavement, dancing to vagrant hurdy gurdys and the like, but with cold weather they must remain in cheerless and often windowless rooms.

The fire escapes with their tiny potted plants, balloon bedding and flapping wet wash become stark and ugly. A brooding silence seems to fall. The steel criers' bells are stilled. Nothing matters until April comes again.

The professional Southerner seems to have left Broadway flat. He fitted the day of the swing door saloon and the mint julep where strangers sat with strangers without suspicion. He had an amiable weakness for hard liquor, simulated a Dixie drawl, wore boiled shirts, shoe string ties, wide hats and talked of selling "niggahs" by the boatload down at Natchez. His job was in reality hustling for confidence men, wire tappers and all the unlovely brood that lived by their wits. He had a high-born manner that was most disarming and when he had introduced "comeons" to the wolves his work was done. He was usually outside the law.

Definition of a Broadway night club: "Where stage people who think they are important are gazed upon by out of town folk who have no idea who they are."

It strikes me the most lugubrious job in New York is that of the usher in those funeral parlors in midtown. They wear Tuxedos and stand about in the manner of floor walkers escorting visitors to see the remains. They must at all times have a funeral expression, support swooning women and attempt gently to silence shrieks. That best seller title "All these sad young men" fits them perfectly. Many are on duty at night standing dreamily in the rather brilliantly lighted parlors in sullen silhouette awaiting another wagon.

Word drifts from London that Tallulah Bankhead is enjoying as great popularity as a London star as Mrs. Pat Campbell ever did. She left New York because there were no engagements. Tongues wagged. Miss Bankhead, they whispered, was through as an actress. That was two years ago and today she is the toast of London.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Food Consumption Decreases.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 5.—One of the troubles of the American farmer is the decrease in the per capita food consumption of the people of the United States. Food production in general is steadily increasing, but the farmer does not have the market for the stuff he grows that he would have if the people of the country ate as much per capita as they did fifteen or twenty years ago.

A striking instance of this is the decline since 1904 in the per capita consumption of flour, as shown by statistics compiled by the Department of Agriculture. Prior to 1904, per capita consumption of flour in the United States changed very little, but between that year and 1923 it is found to have declined over 21 per cent.

This means that in the last year of this period the country consumed approximately 26,800,000 barrels less of flour than it would have used if the 1904 rate of per capita consumption had been maintained. This amount is said to be greater than the total flour exports of the United States in any twelve months of its history, save for one year during the war, and more than double the average annual exports for the ten years prior to the war.

In a study of the causes responsible for the decline in per capita flour consumption, made by the Food Research Institute, it was found that the more important factors have been a tendency to replace the cereals with sugar, a tendency to a more diversified diet, a shift to more expensive foods as a result of the increased prosperity of the laboring classes, and a decrease in the total food requirements per capita of the American people.

In explanation of this last factor it may be pointed out that it does not mean that the national appetite is falling off, but that on an average the people of the country do not need as much food today as they did a few years ago. An analysis of why this is true has brought out many interesting facts—as interesting as they are important if wholly dependable.

The Calories We Need.

Food consumption is usually treated in terms of energy value, and the energy values of foods are customarily measured in calories, a calorie being the amount of energy required in the form of heat to raise the temperature of one gram of water from zero to one degree Centigrade. The energy derived from food is mostly used in four different ways. First is the energy required to carry on the normal body functions when the person is at rest in a warm room; this is technically termed the "basal metabolism." Second is the energy used to maintain the body temperature when in a cool environment, next is that required for physical work, and, finally, that which a growing child, or an adult who is increasing in weight stores up in the form of fat or other body tissue.

A man of 160 pounds with customary clothing in a temperature around 60 degrees, Fahrenheit, with light work and incidental activity such as that of a professional man, a teacher, or a salesman, ordinarily requires from 2400 to 2700 calories per day. If the temperature is lowered without additional protection through added clothing, the caloric requirement increases, and similarly in the case of additional physical work. Medium-hard physical work increases the requirement to 3500 calories, still harder work calls for 1000 more; and the most arduous occupations bring the figure up to as much as 8000. Boys from 14 to 18 years of age who are in school and engaging actively in games and sports consume about 5000 calories.

Many people have the idea that the amount of food a person eats depends upon taste, or appetite, and habit, and in most cases far exceeds his actual food requirement. The experts who have been delving into the problem say, however, that as a matter of fact every normal individual who is maintaining a constant weight is unconsciously regulating his eating in accordance with his actual bodily requirements. The human animal, just like other animals, normally eats only what he really needs, based on his activities and the conditions under which he works and lives.

Therefore one of the big factors in the decrease in the per capita food consumption is the change in working and living conditions. The increasing substitution of machinery for manual labor in many lines is to be noted. Steam shovels, automatic stokers for boilers, mechanical ditch-digging machines, conveyors in factories, agricultural machinery, and many other mechanical devices have been taking the place of man-power and increasing the proportion of the population engaged in tending machines, clerking, and other sedentary occupations requiring much less physical exertion, with the result that the human engine, having on the average less work to do, requires less fuel.

Fewer Men Are At Hard Work.

Another thing that is significant from the point of view of effect on food consumption is the decline in the percentage of workers engaged in agriculture, forestry, and related industries—from 47 per cent of the total in 1870 to 26 per cent in 1920. These are all occupations in which a large proportion of the workers are engaged in tasks requiring severe physical exertion, and a large share of their work

A candidate for citizenship came to a naturalization bureau in York to take out his first papers. The applicant was a Russian who spoke badly-broken English and was apparently eager to become a voter in the shortest possible time. With him was a friend and sponsor from the East Side.

Under examination the candidate betrayed a tremendous lack of knowledge of national history and institutions and public men. Finally the examiner turned to his companion:

"Here," he said testily, "this man's ignorance is appalling. Take him away and explain something to him about the Constitution and the government of the United States. Don't bring him back until he is better qualified."

The East Sider led his crestfallen fellow-countryman away. Within an hour they both returned.

"Hello," said the examiner, "what brings you here again?"

"Everything is all right," stated the East Sider. "I took my friend out and read to him out of the Constitution, and he says he likes it first-rate."

OUR INSTITUTIONS APPROVED

A candidate for citizenship came to a naturalization bureau in York to take out his first papers. The applicant was a Russian who spoke badly-broken English and was apparently eager to become a voter in the shortest possible time. With him was a friend and sponsor from the East Side.

Under examination the candidate betrayed a tremendous lack of knowledge of national history and institutions and public men. Finally the examiner turned to his companion:

"Here," he said testily, "this man's ignorance is appalling. Take him away and explain something to him about the Constitution and the government of the United States. Don't bring him back until he is better qualified."

The East-Sider led his crestfallen fellow-countryman away. Within an hour they both returned.

"Hello," said the examiner, "what brings you here again?"

"Everything is all right," stated the East Sider. "I took my friend out and read to him out of the Constitution, and he says he likes it first rate."

Abe Martin Says--

"I doubt if th' people would ever go back t' anything as tame as beer or wine even if they could git it," declared Tell Binkley, t'day, as he had a hole in his stomach patched up.

Well, ther's no longer any excuse for anybuddy directin' ther energies in th' wrong channel.

ASK COUNTY FOR ROAD AID

Propose Improvement of Road to Yellow Creek.

A petition containing 120 names, to which was attached a memorandum from the Chamber of Commerce of Wellsville has been received by the county commissioners which requests the improvement of the Wellsville-Steubenville road, from the Columbiana-Jefferson county line to the Wellsville corporate line.

The commissioners were asked to give this road direct attention during the early part of 1927, and after the petition had been received and filed, E. S. Woolweaver and D. R. James, who presented the petition, were advised that the subject would be given the attention asked for at an early date.

Late Monday afternoon this proposed improvement was discussed by the commissioners, but no definite conclusions were announced. Because of the increased traffic that will eventually pass over this road, following the completion of the road over the "Narrows" the commissioners are of the opinion that conference will have to be held with the management of the Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company before any definite plans for the improvement of this narrow road can be worked up.

No denial is made of the fact that the Clark avenue extension in Wellsville is one of the worst pieces of roadway in the county. The commissioners have from time to time during the last year discussed this proposed improvement and although a number of suggestions have been advanced for the improvement of the new highway, plans have not yet been ordered.

Califo'nia Girl at 16 Seen as Coming Sculpture of Future

SACRAMENTO, Cal. — California may have a great sculptor of the future in Helen Turner, 16 year old high school girl of San Andreas, Calaveras county, according to art examples of the girl's work on exhibition here.

Miss Turner's clay group, "Gold Diggers of Calaveras," won high honors at the state fair display here recently and, despite the fact that she has never been given instruction in modeling, three of her other sculptures aroused such interest that they were taken to San Francisco to be cast in bronze.

I ALWAYS KEEP PLANT JUICE HANDY IN HOUSE

"During My 10 Years Suffering, It's Only Medicine That Ever Helped Me," Says Canton, O., Woman.

"During my ten years of suffering, Dillingham's Plant Juice is the only medicine that ever helped me," said Mrs. Thomas Bair, 208 Walker street, N. E., Canton, O.

"I always keep a bottle of it handy," she continued, "because just one dose will relieve any trouble I may have with my stomach. For years I thought I had heart trouble but Plant Juice proved to me that my suffering was due to my food fermenting, causing gas and those dizzy spells that made me turn white and faint and which, on one occasion, caused me to fall, injuring myself so severely I was confined to my bed for weeks.

"Had I known of Plant Juice before I did, it would have saved me many a dollar and hours of suffering, as it has improved my digestion so much that what I eat now digests properly. My food nourishes me like it ought to and all my old troubles are gone, since I took this medicine. It has also rid my system of rheumatism and every pain, giving me hours of pleasure, instead of misery.

"Plant Juice just seems to act on the system in general, for it made me feel better all over. I'm never nervous any more, sleep well, my constipation has been relived and I have a great deal more strength.

"I am so much healthier and happier now that I think Plant Juice is simply a grand medicine and should have a place in every home."

Plant Juice is sold in East Liverpool by Mathews' Original Cut Rate, 129 W. Sixth St. and by all leading druggists everywhere.

"My Catarrh is all gone"

What freedom in those words! Only those can realize who know the distress of clogged air passages, catarrhal deafness, offensive breath, raising of mucus, and lowered vitality due to catarrh. Yet thousands still endure catarrh needlessly, because they are treating symptoms instead of the cause. Catarrh comes from an inflamed condition of the mucous membrane—that delicate lining of the air passages of nose, throat and head. When this is corrected catarrh disappears. Why We Become Weak, Tired and Run-Down If Glands Fail

THOUSANDS drag through life always tired and worn-out, suffering with loss of energy and vitality, and fail to recognize the cause of their trouble. Medical authorities now know the trouble as "asthenia," and claim it is caused by an unbalanced glandular system or weakened glands.

Gland secretions are called hormones—mysterious messengers which science has discovered exert a remarkable influence on health, strength and vitality. When the glands function normally they supply these vitalizing hormones (or secretions) which are essential to physical well-being. And when the glands fail to function, health fails.

Now, glandular treatment, which is endorsed by eminent scientists and physicians of this country and Europe, is being used by thousands of men and women to help overcome a weakened, worn-out, run-down, exhausted condition, and to regain the strength, vigor and vitality that are the natural benefits resulting from a normal glandular system.

Glandogen, the new scientic gland tonic, provides a simple method of taking glandular treatment. Glandogen is prepared in convenient tablet form, for both men and women. Accept no substitutes. Insist on genuine Glandogen, the original gland tonic.

DEFER SUNDAY GRID BAN VOTE

Emergency Ordinance is Placed on First Reading.

City council last night deferred definite action on enactment of an emergency ordinance seeking to ban the playing of football here on Sunday.

Decision was reached after petitions containing the names of 869 electors, urging the ban, had been read by the clerk. It was passed unanimously on first reading after the solons defeated a motion to suspend the rules. The measure will be up for second reading on Monday, October 18.

Rev. A. E. Sims, pastor of the First Christian church; Rev. W. J. M. McKnight, pastor of the United Presbyterian church, and M. E. Eppley were the principal speakers advocating passage of the ordinance. Archie Dalrymple, manager of the football squad, and Harry L. Oyster, spoke against the proposal.

Speakers on both sides of the question were frequently interrupted by remarks from the spectators who crowded the council chamber. After adjournment several heated arguments were heard outside the building.

Mayor Frank H. Riley presided at the session.

MONTE BLUE FILM SUCCESS

"Across the Pacific" Wins Plaudits at Ceramic

"Across the Pacific," the Warner master-film now at the Ceramic theatre, is the first really big attraction to picture that phase of the Spanish-American war which includes the pursuit and capture of the rebel, Aguinaldo, in the jungles of the Philippines. Great historic figures of the nineties, pictured in the film, are Colonel Roosevelt, George Dewey, Colonel Funston, and Aguinaldo himself, the latter being the only one of that courageous company still living.

America's husky favorite, Monte Blue, is starred, playing the part of a Southern boy, who, after an unavoidable misunderstanding with his sweetheart, leaves his Kentucky home, enlisting with a California regiment for service across the Pacific. A native girl, Roma, played by Myrna Loy, is enamored of the young volunteer from the States, and Funston, knowing the girl to be in possession of Aguinaldo's secrets, consigns Monte to the uncomfortable task of winning information from the girl by pretense of love for her.

The Kentucky sweetheart, played with charming naivete by Jane Winton, comes with her father to the Philippines to make up the misunderstanding between herself and the unhappy soldier who cannot reveal to her the fact that his love for Roma is official and not personal. The capture of Aguinaldo, after much hardship and many thrilling aventures with the Filipino snipers, lead to the reunion of the couple, who return to the Blue Grass country, and to the up-to-date thrill of joy-riding on a "bicycle built for two!"

Much credit is due Roy Del Ruth, who directed the filming of "Across the Pacific." Possibly a thousand people are used, several regiments of soldiers, Filipinos and all the motely crowd of the camps and the sea. The reproduction of native village and of tropical flora is marvelously done, the California beach serving quite as well for the seascapes as though taken from the Philippine shores themselves.

Blue grows more important and interesting in each of his many characterizations. Whether he appears as prizefighter or Parisian doctor, his characterization is authentic and believable. In "Across the Pacific" he is the rough-shod, khaki-clad American soldier, the fighting, loving gallivanting young-scamp, who finds his way to the hearts of his comrades and to the undying love of two women, of characters as widely different as their ace heredity and environment could have made them.

Now Enjoys Good Health

Relieved of Stomach Trouble, Nervousness. Gains 17 Pounds.

"Anybody who has been benefitted as I was by Tanlac could not do anything but praise this wonderful tonic," says Mrs. M. Wagoner, 101 Norton Court, Akron, Ohio, whose amazing recovery has surprised her family.

"I was so run-down and weak that I was discouraged with life. The very thought of food distressed me terribly. No matter what I ate I would suffer for hours from heartburn and gas that bloated my stomach. Sweeping and making the beds was drudgery. And my nerves were in such shape that I could not sit still a moment.

"Tanlac changed my life. Gave me strength and energy to live every day, every hour, happily, to do my housework without tiring. It put my stomach in good condition so that I now eat everything without a sign of trouble or pain. It has built me up from 93 to 110 pounds. Everyone who is ailing should take Tanlac."

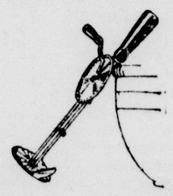
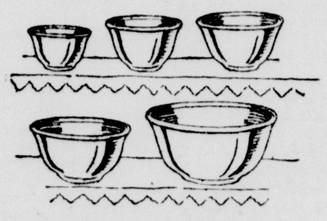
It bakes the featheriest cakes

It's specially designed for angel and sunshine cakes. Of heavy aluminum, with a still heavier insert that fits snugly into the grooved pan and permits no batter leakage. The tube is high, to allow the cake to hang upside down while cooling. $1.40—No Cash to Pay.



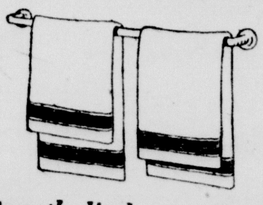
How it does whip cream!

It's called "whippit" and rightly—for in two minutes it turns ordinary coffee cream into a fluffy mountain of stiffly whipped cream. It's stoutly made; the steel is of heavy grade, the handle finest baked enamel. It runs easily, and comes apart for thorough cleaning. 80c—No Cash to Pay.



An irresistible mixing bowl set

There are five snow-white glass bowls in the set. The largest is a capacious two-quart one; the smallest is just one-cup size. They are nested, to fit in snugly on the pantry shelf, and they are as decorative as they are convenient. $1.75—No Cash to Pay.



Smooth, lintless tea towels

They are of an exceptionally good grade of cotton toweling, with gay border designs of either French blue or red. They are lintless, wash beautifully and wear well. Their size is just right—21 by 31 inches. 60c the pair —No Cash to Pay.

Telephone Warning Saves Newspaper Plant From Blast

Salvatore M. Hino, business marager of the paper, also probably owes his life to the mysterious informant, as his office was near the spot where the grenade was hidden.

Just before the paper was about to go to press Hino's telephone rang and a man who did not give his name said he had just overheard two young men say they had placed a bomb in the hallways of Il Progresso. He called police, who found the bomb, its fuse burning and down to within an inch of a five-inch length of pipe filled with explosive. They plunged it into a fire bucket.

27 Believed Dead

Boles and Ebbie Davis, unconscious from the effects of the gas, and the body of W. C. Elliott on a track about a quarter of a mile from the explosion.

A short while later, the party found William and Arthur Teague, brothers, who had escaped death by barricading themselves from the deadly fumes. They said they had made an effort to carry Boles to the brattice but had been forced to drop him when gas filled the chambers.

TAKE 3 26 Believed Dead

All Night Vigil.

Boles was left struggling and when found was in a critical condition, but physicians had hopes of saving his life. The other rescued men were soon completely recovered and able to assist in the rescue work.

Meanwhile an all-night vigil was maintained at the mouth of the mine by the tearful wives, children and other relatives of the entombed men. Hundreds of curious came from nearby towns for apparently no other reason except to look on.

The scene was pitiful. Wives and children stood about the entrance of the mine with tears streaming down their cheeks. The rescue of Davis, Boles and Teague brothers caused much rejoicing and served to build up the hopes temporarily that their loved ones might yet be saved.

"But as the light of another day came, many of the waiting ones went to their homes, exhausted but promising to come back when more information was available as to the progress of the rescue work.

Those still entombed are:

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Continuing the reactionary market for speculative stocks which closed yesterday's tive leaders declined to lower price session, practically all of the speculalevels in early trading today. A few of the high-priced rails and industrials broke 2 to 5 points on the first sales of the day, the list including General Motors, Dupont and Atlantic Coast Line. Professionals crowded the market with selling orders and prices with few exceptions turned sharply downward.

Money market conditions encouraged bearish movements against stock values. The weekly reserve board report on brokers' loans in this district showed a new gain of $50,000,000 suggesting to the speculative districts the transfer of stocks from "strong to weak hands." Call money renewals 5 per cent.

Industrial stocks firmly resisted bearish selling after the first half-hour. A number of prominent rally points were furnished, the list including General Motors, Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, Allied Chemical and Radio. These stocks advanced from 2 to 3 1-2 points above their opening prices. United States Steel was also a strong spot in the industrial list.

The decline in oil stocks brought Marland below 54 for the first time on the move, and other stocks in this group were unsettled by the new price cutting of gasoline in the south. The copper stocks, sugars and equipments were firm and fairly active. Cotton regained about a dollar a bale in the early trading.

Three Found Guilty In War Savings Stamp Conspiracy

Cleveland Men Face Penitentiary Sentences Ranging Upward From 15 Years Each.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 5.—A verdict of guilty was returned in federal court here today against J. E. Zottarreli, Dijo Russo and Nick Salupo on indictments charging conspiracy to counteract war savings stamps. They were allowed bail of $15,000 each pending sentence in about 10 days.

The verdict brought a complete victory for the government in its case to round up a ring of counterfeiters who are alleged to have circulated spurious stamps.

The three defendants tried here are the last of several who have been convicted of participation in the affair at Chicago and elsewhere.

Zottarreli, who formerly was an attorney here, was found guilty on 12 counts in two indictments for counterfeiting and conspiring to circulate counterfeit stamps.

Russo was convicted on six counts under two indictments. Salupo will be sentenced for violation on two counts of an indictment charging participation in the plot.

The trio was charged with having passed the stamps by opening bank accounts with folders containing the fake stamps. Banks throughout the middlewest were victimized by their operations.

The defense sought to prove that the three indicted men had handled the stamps believing them to be genuine. District Attorney A. E. Bernsteen countered with the argument that by profiting from the stamps in holders which did not belong to them, the trio was guilty.

The three face sentences ranging upward from 15 years each.

People Routed From Homes.

LEWISTON, Ill., Oct. 5.—Residents were routed from their homes today at Liverpool, a village near here, when the east levee gave way before the maddened Illinois river. The flood rushed into the village streets, now under 18 inches of water, and covered hundreds of acres of corn in fields nearby.

Two other levees may break at any moment, and a general exodius from the village is in progress.

Petersburg, in Mason county, is isolated by flood waters, and homeless families there now number 75. Train traffic through the city is at a standstill.

MISS VERA RENO IS MACK PLAYER

Miss Vera Reno, now appearing at the Strand theatre, with the Red Mack Players has been cast in many different roles. She has played all of the 'Mother' part in the many plays that have been presented, and at the same time can also play ingenue or young flapper. It seems a shame that such a charming little lady should spoil her pretty features with lines and colors, and take the role of 'Mother' to boys that in reality are several years her senior. But such is life behind the scenes.

Miss Reno is very popular with the local patrons. She is not only a capable actress, but also possesses a pleasing high soprano voice.

A short while later, the party found William and Arthur Teague, brothers, who had escaped death by barricading themselves from the deadly fumes. They said they had made an effort to carry Boles to the brattice but had been forced to drop him when gas filled the chambers.

TAKE 3 26 Believed Dead

All Night Vigil.

Boles was left struggling and when found was in a critical condition, but physicians had hopes of saving his life. The other rescued men were soon completely recovered and able to assist in the rescue work.

Meanwhile an all-night vigil was maintained at the mouth of the mine by the tearful wives, children and other relatives of the entombed men. Hundreds of curious came from nearby towns for apparently no other reason except to look on.

The scene was pitiful. Wives and children stood about the entrance of the mine with tears streaming down their cheeks. The rescue of Davis, Boles and Teague brothers caused much rejoicing and served to build up the hopes temporarily that their loved ones might yet be saved.

"But as the light of another day came, many of the waiting ones went to their homes, exhausted but promising to come back when more information was available as to the progress of the rescue work.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Continuing the reactionary market for speculative stocks which closed yesterday's tive leaders declined to lower price session, practically all of the speculalevels in early trading today. A few of the high-priced rails and industrials broke 2 to 5 points on the first sales of the day, the list including General Motors, Dupont and Atlantic Coast Line. Professionals crowded the market with selling orders and prices with few exceptions turned sharply downward.

Money market conditions encouraged bearish movements against stock values. The weekly reserve board report on brokers' loans in this district showed a new gain of $50,000,000 suggesting to the speculative districts the transfer of stocks from "strong to weak hands." Call money renewals 5 per cent.

Industrial stocks firmly resisted bearish selling after the first half-hour. A number of prominent rally points were furnished, the list including General Motors, Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, Allied Chemical and Radio. These stocks advanced from 2 to 3 1-2 points above their opening prices. United States Steel was also a strong spot in the industrial list.

The decline in oil stocks brought Marland below 54 for the first time on the move, and other stocks in this group were unsettled by the new price cutting of gasoline in the south. The copper stocks, sugars and equipments were firm and fairly active. Cotton regained about a dollar a bale in the early trading.

Three Found Guilty In War Savings Stamp Conspiracy

Cleveland Men Face Penitentiary Sentences Ranging Upward From 15 Years Each.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 5.—A verdict of guilty was returned in federal court here today against J. E. Zottarreli, Dlajo Russo and Nick Salupo on indictments charging conspiracy to counteract war savings stamps. They were allowed bail of $15,000 each pending sentence in about 10 days.

The verdict brought a complete victory for the government in its case to round up a ring of counterfeiters who are alleged to have circulated spurious stamps.

The three defendants tried here are the last of several who have been convicted of participation in the affair at Chicago and elsewhere.

Zottarreli, who formerly was an attorney here, was found guilty on 12 counts in two indictments for counterfeiting and conspiring to circulate counterfeit stamps.

Russo was convicted on six counts under two indictments. Salupo will be sentenced for violation on two counts of an indictment charging participation in the plot.

The trio was charged with having passed the stamps by opening bank accounts with folders containing the fake stamps. Banks throughout the middlewest were victimized by their operations.

The defense sought to prove that the three indicted men had handled the stamps believing them to be genuine. District Attorney A. E. Bernsteen countered with the argument that by profiting from the stamps in holders which did not belong to them, the trio was guilty.

The three face sentences ranging upward from 15 years each.

MISS VERA RENO IS MACK PLAYER

Miss Vera Reno, now appearing at the Strand theatre, with the Red Mack Players has been cast in many different roles. She has played all of the 'Mother' part in the many plays that have been presented, and at the same time can also play ingenue or young flapper. It seems a shame that such a charming little lady should spoil her pretty features with lines and colors, and take the role of 'Mother' to boys that in reality are several years her senior. But such is life behind the scenes.

Miss Reno is very popular with the local patrons. She is not only a capable actress, but also possesses a pleasing high soprano voice.

BLUE AND WHITE GRIDIRON SQUAD WILL BE IDLE NEXT SATURDAY

Efforts To Schedule Massillon Team Fail

Captain and Center Dick Larkins Will be Out of Lineup for Probably Three or Four Weeks as Result of Torn Ligaments in Left Shoulder; Next Contest at Toronto Oct. 16.

EFFORTS to schedule a contest for October 9, which has been on open date on the Blue and White schedule since the card was made up, having failed when it was impossible to obtain the appearance here of the strong Massillon scholastic eleven, Coach George Kidder will permit his team to rest Saturday, he announced today.

With several of the players suffering from bad bruises and other injuries of a temporary nature, the lay-off will not be taken with a great deal of regret, especially on account of the loss of Captain Dick Larkins, center.

Larkins did not receive any broken bones in the contest with Akron East here last Saturday, Coach Kidder announced today, but he is suffering from the effects of two torn ligaments and it is not likely that he will be able to resume his place in the Blue and White lineup for three or four weeks.

Ead McKee, who was forced to leave the field after a bang-up game last Saturday, was not badly hurt, as feared at first, and will be back in action in the next contest which will be played at Toronto on October 16.

The local schedule makers relied on booking Massillon for the week-end attraction here, and dickered up until last week with officials there. The Massillon school, however, decided to show its football wares elsewhere and the local negotiations fell through.

With Larkins out of action and other of the local players not exactly in first class condition as a result of the gruelling battle in the treacherous mud at Columbian park Saturday, the Massillon engagement does not appeal today as it did formerly and a day of rest Saturday may save the squad further injuries.

Practice sessions, however, will continue throughout the week.

Hagen Only Major Champion Who Survives Tidal Wave of Upsets

WALTER HAGEN is not the only golfer to retain his national title won last year, but stands out as the only champion in the major branches of sport to survive the tidal wave.

He was left alone in the golfing world the other day when Virginia Wilson, twenty-year-old miss of Chicago, eliminated Glenna Collett, women's national champ for 1925, from the 1926 tourney at Merion.

It was a heart-breaking defeat for the courageous Glenna. Disappointed over her showing in the British tourney the Providence maid wanted to prove her right to be called America's greatest woman golfer. While the defeat at the hands of the startling girl from the west does not dim Miss Collett's greatness it indicates that there are springing up among the young players lassies who will challenge her prowess from time to time.

Bobby Jones dethroned Willie McFarlane as U. S. open golf champ and then found himself tossed from the amateur diadem by George Von Elm.

In tennis, Bill Tilden and Helen Wills saw their gilded crowns placed on the heads of others, Helen losing hers when she was forced to remain out of play in the national tourney.

In boxing, Dempsey lost the heavyweight title; Harry Greb, the middleweight; Mickey Walker, the welterweight; Rocky Kansas, the lightweight and Kid Kaplan, the featherweight.

WALKER PUTS ON COMEBACK

Stops Callahan in Fifth on Technical Kayo.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Mickey Walker, former welterweight champion of the world, was basking in much of his former ring prestige today, following his impressive defeat of "Shuffle" Callahan, Chicago's slugging truck driver, in their scheduled ten round battle here last night.

Walker's comeback was spectacular. He won in the fifth round by a technical knockout, after fans had seen one of the most murderous exhibitions of legalized assault and battery ever staged in an Illinois prize ring.

The ex-welter king had the awkward but stout-hearted Chicago boy beaten from the tap of the first gong. Walker won every round. He rained high-powered rights and lefts at the luckless Callahan, but the latter kept wading in. Shuffle was fighting true to his form of either knocking out his opponent or getting knocked out himself.

Walker, in spite of his terrific jabs, could not knock the Chicagoan out. He had him on the floor twice, but each time Callahan staggered to his feet for more. At the end of the fifth round, the latter was so groggy and so thoroughly whipped that Eddie Kane, his manager, did the only thing left to do—throw in a towel.

Following the fight, Jack Kearns, Walker's manager, announced he would immediately offer a certified check for $2,500 to the Illinos Boxing commission and issue a challenge to "Tiger" Flowers for the middleweight championship of the world.

Kearns claims Walker is to heavy to seek his old honors in the welter class, lost to Pete Latzo several months ago.

Also a Few Speed Marks as Special Chases Cards' Train Into St. Louis; Feminine Writer Describes Trip.

By KATHARINE BRUSH.

ON BOARD THE SPORT WRITERS' SPECIAL, Oct. 3.—East is going west this afternoon. And how the old timers of the baseball writing fraternity tell me that they have never traveled so far during a world series as they are traveling today. All I have to say is I've never traveled so fast. This press special we are on is chasing the Cardinals' special over the rails toward St. Louis at such a clip that I suspect the engineer is trying to tag the other train before it gets there. I wish he would abandon the notion. After all, who is to take chances with the lives of several hundred more or less prominent scribes—not to mention the portable typewriters and the pocket flasks of the same. There would be big blank spaces in a lot of sporting pages tomorrow if this train should be wrecked today. We have no thought of ourselves, of course—but we do think the engineer should remember the great American public. In a stroll through the ten cars of the press special you can see the bearers of many names familiar—names you encounter top columns of athletic news day after day, year after year. Grantland Rice is aboard, and white-haired solemn Bill McGeehan, the wit of the New York Herald-Tribune, and "Boze" Bolger of the very red face indeed, and Westbrook Pegler, "Bugs" Baer, Willie Evans, the umpire who refuses to umpire a word's series—presumably because he can make more money covering it for a syndicate—are among those present.

There are also Wilbert Robinson, president-manager of the Brooklyn Robins, and Connie Mack of the Athletics, both of whom are writing expert comment on the games, and Nick Altrock, the comedian of baseball, who acts as unofficial clown of the train. There are sporting writers, young and old, great and lowly, from Boston and San Francisco and Dallas, Texas, and from all the fartherest corners of the country, and there are also a few Mrs. Sporting Writers, to make me feel a little less like an intruder in No Maid's Land than I otherwise might have.

The press train left New York last night at 7:45, and is expected to reach St. Louis tonight about 7. Everything is being done for the convenience and entertainment of the journeying journalists, and the whole trip is like a sort of house party on wheels. Songs are sung, cards are played. In one section you may see five men bent over a poker table in a haze of thick blue smoke. In the next you may come upon a shirt-sleeved individual frantically turning out of a typewriter two or three thousand words which he intends to give to the telegraph man when we stop at Indianapolis. In a third section you may find a group discussing one of the great sports questions of the day, i. e., "Will the Yanks' shortage of pitchers lose the series for them" or "what was the matter with Dempsey, anyway." In a fourth section, you may behold a mixed foursome in the ninth or tenth rubber of cent-a-point bridge. The drawing rooms look like club rooms, and the observation car gives the general effect of a miniature hotel lobby.

Last year when I covered the world series I suspected that it might be fun to be a regular, bonafide, all-the-year round sporting writer. Now I'm sure of it. They lead a gay and cheerful life, and especially on occasion like this world's series, they are treated like the lords of creation.

Consider, in New York there was a press headquarters at the hotel Commodore where one might work and eat one's meals—meals served free of charge to anyone possessing that magic insignia, a press button. There was also a press buffet tucked down underneath the tall concrete banks of the Yankee stadium where a delicious cold luncheon was to be had before the ball games. There were press busses that made the run from the stadium at 157th street to the Commodore on 42nd in 20 minutes. Traffic was nothing. Red lights were the same as green. Two officers on motorcycles rode ahead of each bus and cleared the triumphal path. Really, it was magnificent. I felt like a visiting prince or at least a fire chief.

Then there is this special train, with all the comforts of home and all the excitement of a tour. And there will be another like it to take us back to New York again. And in St. Louis feeling the way they do about the world series, I should not be at all surprised if they gave us the city hall to shoot dice on.

When the Cardinals' special train, which is just ahead of us, stopped at Columbus at seven fifty this morning, Bill Southworth, hero of yesterday's Cardinal victory, was met at the station by his wife and son, Bill junior, who will accompany him on to St. Louis. The Southworths live in Columbus, where Bill senior sells insurance during the winter months.

They were photographed by Columbus newspaper photographers on the platform of the Union station—young Bill, carrying his baseball mit and bat and looking very proud, standing between his parents.

JESS HAINES MAY GET CALL

Ranks as One of League's Best Fast-ball Tossers.

By Dick Williams.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4. — Jess Haines, the solemn gentleman with the fast ball, today probably will take up the burden of St. Louis' world championship hopes.

Haines is one of the old league's premier fast ball pitchers, another of those unique gentlemen who was merely a thrower until Rogers Hornsby succeeded Branch Rickey as manager of the Cardinals and substituted A. G. Spalding for the new testament.

Until this year Haines pitched with only indifferent success. He always appeared to have the stuff, but was not attended with great succes. While his labors were dignified and energetic, he was lacking in the something which makes the Alexanders and the Uhles.

When Bill Killifer joined the St. Louise cause, Jess, with Flint Rhem, Bill Sherdel and Art Reinhart developed over night into a star. His fast ball became a positive sizzler, his curve developed into a genuine menace and his visage assumed new and awful expressions.

Haines has been one of the Cardinal aces this year. He possesses as much or more stuff than the gaunt Flint Rhem of Carolina, noted for his ability to win 20 ball games and drive a $5,000 roadster in his second year in the big leagues.

"With the weather dark and gloomy as it appeared early today, Haines should be a puzzle. His fast ball is as fast as the next one and he has a change of pace. Moreover, he is a smooth worker, a cool customer and and effective man with the enemy on the run. If Haines cannot win today, it is doubtful if any of Hornsby's diligent young men could.

We are just reminded that there are no pop bottles in the St. Louis stands. This absence of missiles is the result of an incident of four years ago in which Whitey Witt, then of the Yankees, was struck between the eyes with a bottle hurled by an over-exuberant fan.

Fortunately the bottle hit Whitey on the brow. It might have hit him on the arm and proved serious. As a result of the risk involved both the National and American league clubs agreed to banish pop bottles from the stands and today the thirsty St. Lunatic slacks his parching tonsils out of a paper cup which he can throw neither far nor accurately.

Yanks Due for Taste Of Rhem's Fast Ball In Third Series Tilt

"Dutch" Ruether, in Emulation of Herb Pennock's Feat in Opener, Will Feed Foes Left Handed Curves; Whole Town Stays Up all Night in Riotous Celebration for its Heroes.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 5.—Keyed high in the upper octaves of a civic emotionalism such as Paris knew on the night of the armistice, the banks of the Big Muddy were a riotous revel this morning as St. Louis awoke to greet the day of all days. To the rest of the country, the occasion was merely the third game of the 1926 world series between the Yankees and the Cardinals but to St. Louis it was the day on which the world began and the past became as nothing.

The alms-seeker stood by in mute entreaty, glad of a crumb from the rich man's table. St. Louis never was so humble as that, though it starved for want of the nourishment that comes unasked to the town that harbors a pennant winner. It neither asked nor granted favors and today it had the reward that belongs to any town that has fought the good fight and that has kept the faith.

Yes, St. Louis was to have its world's series at last and the years of adversity were only a vague, unpleasant memory hardly worthy of any man's regret in this, the big moment of the town's history.

Indeed, it was not altogether unlikely that, as the merry citizenry leaped from craig to craig, uttering strange piercing sounds, any one deemed it either necessary or expedient to think of the days of the great famine, when the hour of the big feast was at hand. It was doubtful, in fact, whether any normal citizen took the trouble to think at all.

Know What ao Do.

Certainly the men at the wheel of those careening motor cars, racing up and down the highways with sirens shrieking and wash boilers clattering from the rear axle, had reduced his introspection to a minimum. So had the jostling thousands on the sidewalks who shouted aloud for the pure joy of living and likewise those playful gents who pushed and hauled at trolley cars with the rather ambitious intention of rolling them on the street.

St. Louis apparently always had known what it would do if it got a world's series. It couldn't have thought up all these tricks between the time the Cardinals clinched the national league pennant and their triumphant return to town for the third game of the big series, tied with the Yanks at one victory each. Those kind things require years of study and intense application.

What I am attempting to say is that there was nothing important about this celebration; the town knew what it wanted to do and did it.

But gifted as it is, it will have to pull a sort of civic rabbit out of the hat this afternoon when the whole state of Missouri will converge, at least in spirit, on Sportsman's park with the central idea on sitting itself down in not a great deal more than 25,000 chairs.

Only 35,000 Can Get In.

In effect, a dress rehearsal of the millennium was on and most of the boys out this way were due to listen to it and not see it. Only a favored few, with the foresight to order tickets in July or the money to buy them on street corners in October, will be there to see the greatest thing that has happened to Missouri since Columbus discovered America.

Of course, they can't see how the Cards can go wrong and, in consequence, the odds were on the local club at 6 to 5, although it had gained only a standoff in the first two games. The shift in sentiment was due not only to the fact that the Cards were back to their happy hunting ground but also to the manner in which Alexander whipsawed the Yanks with his fast ball at the Yankee stadium on Sunday.

One fast-ball special stopped the Yankees then; another in the person of Flint Rhem was due to attempt the same thing this afternoon. He won't have to be as good as Alexander to get away with the business, for perfection seldom is a necessity. Rhem merely has to pitch one of his typical games to take the play away from the Yanks and stake the Cards to the lead in the series.

However, there is nothing to prevent Duth Ruether from operating along similar lines for New York. This left handed specimen faced precedent established by Herb Pennock in the opening game on Sunday, Herbert having demonstrated that a left-hander with a slow curve and the will to win can stop the Cardinals. He probably won't find it necessary to be as good as Pennock was either.

Becomes More Uncertain.

As a matter of fact, the series figured to become looser and more uncertain as it proceeded to its natural conclusion.

Neither club has been able to check the size of its lunch check to date and that sort of thing isn't being done through an entire series.

St. Louis, perforce, has figured which club is going to do the hitting. As the situation was viewed here today, the Cards will hit the ball and the Yanks will hit the mat.

That was the reason that St. Louis, having received its returning ball stars in a paper blizzard and a chorus of whistles and horns, wandered the streets throughout the night with nothing on its mind but the glow of its self-satisfaction. That was the reason that some fans decided to forego a part in the celebration in order to maintain a place in the lines that waited at the gates all night for a chance to sit in the bleachers.

St. Louis may have been wrong many times in the lean years between the victory of the old Browns in the American association in 1888 and the 1926. But, judging from the way the boys were circle-running today, it knows when it is right.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

The secret of the good golf swing is found in its utter simplicity. All good golfers know that the swing is accomplished by simple, natural methods. The golfer who finds the swing difficult is merely trying to conquer a lot of hurdles he has built up in front of himself. The average golfer could swing a carpet beater with natural ease and could swing a baseball bat with never a thought as to how he actually was to do it. But with the golf club in his hands he conjures up a score of things he is to do and as many things to be avoided. That is what ruins him—that plus the never-ceasing determinations to hit it hard. He promises himself faithfully to take it easy on the next one, but he never does. If he ever would he would surprise himself, and actually hit the ball hard. Try taking it easy a few times—I mean in actual play.

He rained high-powered rights and lefts at the luckless Callahan, but the latter kept wading in. Shuffle was fighting true to his form of either knocking out his opponent or getting knocked out himself.

Walker, in spite of his terrific jabs, could not knock the Chicagoan out. He had him on the floor twice, but each time Callahan staggered to his feet for more. At the end of the fifth round, the latter was so groggy and so thoroughly whipped that Eddie Kane, his manager, did the only thing left to do—throw in a towel.

Following the fight, Jack Kearns, Walker's manager, announced he would immediately offer a certified check for $2,500 to the Illinois Boxing commission and issue a challenge to "Tiger" Flowers for the middleweight championship of the world.

Kearns claims Walker is to heavy to seek his old honors in the welter class, lost to Pete Latzo several months ago.

Also a Few Speed Marks as Special Chases Cards' Train Into St. Louis; Feminine Writer Describes Trip.

By KATHARINE BRUSH.

ON BOARD THE SPORT WRITERS' SPECIAL, Oct. 3.—East is going west this afternoon. And how the old timers of the baseball writing fraternity tell me that they have never traveled so far during a world series as they are traveling today. All I have to say is I've never traveled so fast. This press special we are on is chasing the Cardinals' special over the rails toward St. Louis at such a clip that I suspect the engineer is trying to tag the other train before it gets there. I wish he would abandon the notion. After all, who is to take chances with the lives of several hundred more or less prominent scribes—not to mention the portable typewriters and the pocket flasks of the same. There would be big blank spaces in a lot of sporting pages tomorrow if this train should be wrecked today. We have no thought of ourselves, of course—but we do think the engineer should remember the great American public. In a stroll through the ten cars of the press special you can see the bearers of many names familiar—names you encounter top columns of athletic news day after day, year after year. Grantland Rice is aboard, and white-haired solemn Bill McGeehan, the wit of the New York Herald-Tribune, and "Boze" Bolger of the very red face indeed, and Westbrook Pegler, "Bugs" Baer, Willie Evans, the umpire who refuses to umpire a word's series—presumably because he can make more money covering it for a syndicate—are among those present.

There are also Wilbert Robinson, president-manager of the Brooklyn Robins, and Connie Mack of the Athletics, both of whom are writing expert comment on the games, and Nick Altrock, the comedian of baseball, who acts as unofficial clown of the train. There are sporting writers, young and old, great and lowly, from Boston and San Francisco and Dallas, Texas, and from all the fartherest corners of the country, and there are also a few Mrs. Sporting Writers, to make me feel a little less like an intruder in No Maid's Land than I otherwise might have.

The press train left New York last night at 7:45, and is expected to reach St. Louis tonight about 7. Everything is being done for the convenience and entertainment of the journeying journalists, and the whole trip is like a sort of house party on wheels. Songs are sung, cards are played. In one section you may see five men bent over a poker table in a haze of thick blue smoke. In the next you may come upon a shirt-sleeved individual frantically turning out of a typewriter two or three thousand words which he intends to give to the telegraph man when we stop at Indianapolis. In a third section you may find a group discussing one of the great sports questions of the day, i. e., "Will the Yanks' shortage of pitchers lose the series for them" or "what was the matter with Dempsey, anyway." In a fourth section, you may behold a mixed foursome in the ninth or tenth rubber of cent-a-point bridge. The drawing rooms look like club rooms, and the observation car gives the general effect of a miniature hotel lobby.

Last year when I covered the world series I suspected that it might be fun to be a regular, bonafide, all-the-year-round sporting writer. Now I'm sure of it. They lead a gay and cheerful life, and especially on occasion like this world's series, they are treated like the lords of creation.

Consider, in New York there was a press headquarters at the hotel Commodore where one might work and eat one's meals—meals served free of charge to anyone possessing that magic insignia, a press button. There was also a press buffet tucked down underneath the tall concrete banks of the Yankee stadium where a delicious cold luncheon was to be had before the ball games. There were press busses that made the run from the stadium at 157th street to the Commodore on 42nd in 20 minutes. Traffic was nothing. Red lights were the same as green. Two officers on motorcycles rode ahead of each bus and cleared the triumphal path. Really, it was magnificent. I felt like a visiting prince or at least a fire chief.

Then there is this special train, with all the comforts of home and all the excitement of a tour. And there will be another like it to take us back to New York again. And in St. Louis feeling the way they do about the world series, I should not be at all surprised if they gave us the city hall to shoot dice on.

When the Cardinals' special train, which is just ahead of us, stopped at Columbus at seven fifty this morning, Bill Southworth, hero of yesterday's Cardinal victory, was met at the station by his wife and son, Bill junior, who will accompany him on to St. Louis. The Southworths live in Columbus, where Bill senior sells insurance during the winter months.

They were photographed by Columbus newspaper photographers on the platform of the Union station—young Bill, carrying his baseball mit and bat and looking very proud, standing between his parents.

JESS HAINES MAY GET CALL

Ranks as One of League's Best Fast-ball Tossers.

By Dick Williams.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4. — Jess Haines, the solemn gentleman with the fast ball, today probably will take up the burden of St. Louis' world championship hopes.

Haines is one of the old league's premier fast ball pitchers, another of those unique gentlemen who was merely a thrower until Rogers Hornsby succeeded Branch Rickey as manager of the Cardinals and substituted A. G. Spalding for the new testament.

Until this year Haines pitched with only indifferent success. He always appeared to have the stuff, but was not attended with great succes. While his labors were dignified and energetic, he was lacking in the something which makes the Alexanders and the Uhles.

When Bill Killifer joined the St. Louise cause, Jess, with Flint Rhem, Bill Sherdel and Art Reinhart developed over night into a star. His fast ball became a positive sizzler, his curve developed into a genuine menace and his visage assumed new and awful expressions.

Haines has been one of the Cardinal aces this year. He possesses as much or more stuff than the gaunt Flint Rhem of Carolina, noted for his ability to win 20 ball games and drive a $5,000 roadster in his second year in the big leagues.

With the weather dark and gloomy as it appeared early today, Haines should be a puzzle. His fast ball is as fast as the next one and he has a change of pace. Moreover, he is a smooth worker, a cool customer and and effective man with the enemy on the run. If Haines cannot win today, it is doubtful if any of Hornsby's diligent young men could.

We are just reminded that there are no pop bottles in the St. Louis stands. This absence of missiles is the result of an incident of four years ago in which Whitey Witt, then of the Yankees, was struck between the eyes with a bottle hurled by an over-exuberant fan.

Fortunately the bottle hit Whitey on the brow. It might have hit him on the arm and proved serious. As a result of the risk involved both the National and American league clubs agreed to banish pop bottles from the stands and today the thirsty St. Lunatic slacks his parching tonsils out of a paper cup which he can throw neither far nor accurately.

Yanks Due for Taste Of Rhem's Fast Ball In Third Series Tilt

"Dutch" Ruether, in Emulation of Herb Pennock's Feat in Opener, Will Feed Foes Left Handed Curves; Whole Town Stays Up all Night in Riotous Celebration for its Heroes.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 5.—Keyed high in the upper octaves of a civic emotionalism such as Paris knew on the night of the armistice, the banks of the Big Muddy were a riotous revel this morning as St. Louis awoke to greet the day of all days. To the rest of the country, the occasion was merely the third game of the 1926 world series between the Yankees and the Cardinals but to St. Louis it was the day on which the world began and the past became as nothing.

The alms-seeker stood by in mute entreaty, glad of a crumb from the rich man's table. St. Louis never was so humble as that, though it starved for want of the nourishment that comes unasked to the town that harbors a pennant winner. It neither asked nor granted favors and today it had the reward that belongs to any town that has fought the good fight and that has kept the faith.

Yes, St. Louis was to have its world's series at last and the years of adversity were only a vague, unpleasant memory hardly worthy of any man's regret in this, the big moment of the town's history.

Indeed, it was not altogether unlikely that, as the merry citizenry leaped from craig to craig, uttering strange piercing sounds, any one deemed it either necessary or expedient to think of the days of the great famine, when the hour of the big feast was at hand. It was doubtful, in fact, whether any normal citizen took the trouble to think at all.

Know What ao Do.

Certainly the men at the wheel of those careening motor cars, racing up and down the highways with sirens shrieking and wash boilers clattering from the rear axle, had reduced his introspection to a minimum. So had the jostling thousands on the sidewalks who shouted aloud for the pure joy of living and likewise those playful gents who pushed and hauled at trolley cars with the rather ambitious intention of rolling them on the street.

St. Louis apparently always had known what it would do if it got a world's series. It couldn't have thought up all these tricks between the time the Cardinals clinched the national league pennant and their triumphant return to town for the third game of the big series, tied with the Yanks at one victory each. Those kind of things require years of study and intense application.

What I am attempting to say is that there was nothing important about this celebration; the town knew what it wanted to do and did it.

But gifted as it is, it will have to pull a sort of civic rabbit out of the hat this afternoon when the whole state of Missouri will converge, at least in spirit, on Sportsman's park with the central idea on sitting itself down in not a great deal more than 25,000 chairs.

Only 35,000 Can Get In.

In effect, a dress rehearsal of the millennium was on and most of the boys out this way were due to listen to it and not see it. Only a favored few, with the foresight to order tickets in July or the money to buy them on street corners in October, will be there to see the greatest thing that has happened to Missouri since Columbus discovered America.

Of course, they can't see how the Cards can go wrong and, in consequence, the odds were on the local club at 6 to 5, although it had gained only a standoff in the first two games. The shift in sentiment was due not only to the fact that the Cards were back to their happy hunting ground but also to the manner in which Alexander whipsawed the Yanks with his fast ball at the Yankee stadium on Sunday.

One fast-ball special stopped the Yankees then; another in the person of Flint Rhem was due to attempt the same thing this afternoon. He won't have to be as good as Alexander to get away with the business, for perfection seldom is a necessity. Rhem merely has to pitch one of his typical games to take the play away from the Yanks and stake the Cards to the lead in the series.

However, there is nothing to prevent Duth Ruether from operating along similar lines for New York. This left handed specimen faced a precedent established by Herb Pennock in the opening game on Saturday, Herbert having demonstrated that a left-hander with a slow curve and the will to win can stop the Cardinals. He probably won't find it necessary to be as good as Pennock was either.

Becomes More Uncertain.

As a matter of fact, the series figured to become looser and more uncertain as it proceeded to its natural conclusion.

Neither club has been able to hold the size of its lunch check to date and that sort of thing isn't being done through an entire series.

St. Louis, perforce, has figured which club is going to do the hitting. As the situation was viewed here today, the Cards will hit the ball and the Yanks will hit the mat.

That was the reason that St. Louis, having received its returning ball stars in a paper blizzard and a chorus of whistles and horns, wandered the streets throughout the night with nothing on its mind but the glow of its self-satisfaction. That was the reason that some fans decided to forego a part in the celebration in order to maintain a place in the lines that waited at the gates all night for a chance to sit in the bleachers.

St. Louis may have been wrong many times in the lean years between the victory of the old Browns in the American association in 1888 and the 1926. But, judging from the way the boys were circle-running today, it knows when it is right.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

The secret of the good golf swing is found in its utter simplicity. All good golfers know that the swing is accomplished by simple, natural methods. The golfer who finds the swing difficult is merely trying to conquer a lot of hurdles he has built up in front of himself. The average golfer could swing a carpet beater with natural ease and could swing a baseball bat with never a thought as to how he actually was to do it. But with the golf club in his hands he conjures up a score of things he is to do and as many things to be avoided. That is what ruins him—that plus the never-ceasing determinations to hit it hard. He promises himself faithfully to take it easy on the next one, but he never does. If he ever would he would surprise himself, and actually hit the ball hard. Try taking it easy a few times—I mean in actual play.

SEVEN BIG GRID LEADERS; DATES OF IMPORTANT CONTESTS

To Win From Oberlin Goal of Mount Squad

Clash at Alliance and Case-Wooster Contest at Cleveland are High Spots on Saturday's Conference Schedule; Ohio State-Wesleyan to Renew Annual Grid Feud.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 5.—After the usual preliminary rifle fire with the accustomed desultory results, the big 75's of the Ohio conference swing into action this Saturday. So far, there have been a few casualties, but none of serious import. Case, after winning its first game easily, barely escaped the Akron encounter with a tie score. Ohio Northern and Miami have black marks against them to start the season and Kenyon is still trying to get its breath back after the Dayton catastrophe.

The big battles scheduled include the Mount Union-Oberlin clash at Alliance and the Case-Wooster game at Cleveland. The first named affair has as its inspiration last year's scoreless tie. That was the one blur rather than a blot on Oberlin's unbeaten team. The Mt. Union season is composed of two games and to win this pair, Coach Johnny Thorpe would be willing to drop all the others. Oberlin is one and Wooster the other. And now the Congregationalists wander down to Alliance for a nice pleasant afternoon, which will shade a Mexican revolution in the matter of action. football continue to smile on the Case If the little mole-skinned gods of eleven, the Scientists may defeat Wooster. In 1925, the Black and Gold upset Case, 11-0, and Coach Fletcher is out for blood. But the Brown and White defense must improve and the attack be of a more consistent nature. Wooster has a fairly strong line and a million backs of more or less ability with Blough as headliner. This lad is ever dangerous and is likely to cause Case more trouble than the rest of the Wooster backfield.

Norsemen At Oxford.

At Oxford, a Miami team that showed up favorably against Ohio Wesleyan last week meets Ohio Northern. The Norseman dropped a 13-7 contest to Denison but proved to be anything but a weakling. In all events, Miami will utilize the passing attack that swept Wesleyan back and which in three dazzling throws accounted for the Oxford touchdown. It will be a up and tuck affair with the home team having a slight edge.

If Kenyon can re-arrange its shattered team and draw in its scattered morale, the purple may capture a game from Baldwin-Wallace, carded for Gambier, this week-end. The Berea eleven appeared weak against Western Reserve, but no weaker than did Kenyon in its futile attempts to stem the Dayton avalanche.

Flushed with a sweeping triumph over Baldwin-Wallace, Western Reserve treks to Hiram for what should be an easy conquest of the Cherry and Blue. The Pioneers revealed a diversified attack and a staunch defense, which did justice to the teaching of Gordon Locke. There was interference such as Reserve teams of the past 10 years had only dreamed of, but never seen.

Case was deserving of victory, but held to a tie because one of its players was too impetuous and was off side when the point for goal was tried and missed. The referee was forced to award the point to Case, thereby giving the scientists an even break with Akron. This same Zipper eleven takes on Ohio University at Akron and may win. The Green and White, while running up a huge score against Rio Grande, has yet ho prove itself and a victory over Akron will do much toward that end.

Otterbein and Heidelberg meet at Westerville Friday. Last year, the latter trounced the United Brethren by a 39-0 count and this year, it's a guess. Muskingum plays Capital at Columbus Friday.

Marietta Plays Nittany Lions.

Among Saturday's non-conference games are the Ohio State-Ohio Wesleyan melee at Columbus. A season ago the battling Bishops held the Buckeyes, 10-3, but early season form makes it appear that this year's score will be considerably larger and more decisive. Marietta, which held Penn State to two touchdowns in 1925, again meets the Nittany Lions on the latter's gridiron. St. Xavier bumps into a new foe in the Quantico Marines for a contest scheduled for Cincinnati, while Wittenberg is due for a light workout against Rio Grande at Springfield. The Dayton Flyers play at Cleveland against John Carroll, and should win with little trouble.

MOUNT PRIMES FOR OBERLIN

First Meeting on Alliance Field in Five Years.

Mount Union reaches the first high point in her 1926 grid schedule when she meets the strong Oberlin team on October 9. This will be the first time the two teams have met on the Mount field in five years. The Oberlin game will also be the home-coming game for Mount this year. Judging from the advance sale of tickets and reservations now made the game will be played before the largest home-coming crowd ever present at the Mount field. Standing room will be at a premium. The city of Alliance will be specially decorated for the gala occasion, and the various fraternities on the campus have planned special attractions.

Mount's two victories, Slippery Rock Normal and Heidelberg college, have greatly augmented her hopes for a win over the Oberlin team. It is not to be thought that Mount is not taking the game seriously for the Oberlin team will be a far too powerful aggregation to be considered that way. A victory Saturday depends on Mount playing heads-up ball the entire game. No efforts to smooth up Mount's attack and to increase her driving power will be spared during practice this week.

Physically Mount is in good shape for the battle as she has been fortunate in coming through both games without serious injuries. It will take more, however, than just good physical condition to beat the three time Ohio Conference champs. Mount again this year will send against Oberlin a team equally as powerful on the defense as the team which last year seriously threatened the up-staters' string of conference victories when the game was tied with neither side able to score. Captain Army Armstrong and center Burkle, who led the defense last year, will do so again next Saturday.

LAFAYETTE IS NEXT FOR PITT

Six-year-old Grid Duel to be Resumed Saturday.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 5. — A football feud that is only six years old but is already as intensely contested as any in the east will be renewed in the stadium here next Saturday when the University of Pittsburgh and Lafayette college elevens come to grips.

The yearly duel with the Leopards is the only one in which the Panthers have lost more games than they have won. And singularly, Lafayette has had a Pitt graduate as coach ever since relations between the two institutions were established. Dr. J. B. Sutherland, present Pitt mentor, was in charge of the elevens that met the Panthers from 1920 until 1923. When he came to Pittsburgh the following year his place was taken by G. Herbert McCracken, who was graduated from the university in 1919.

During Sutherland's reign at Lafayette, the Leopards won two and lost two. Pitt won in 1920, 14 to 0; Lafayette took the 1921 and 1922 games, 6 to 0 and 7 to 0, respectively, and in 1923 the Panthers emerged victors, 7 to 0.

Since McCracken has been coaching at Easton, Lafayette has not been defeated by Pitt. The 1924 contest was won, 10 to 0, and last fall the Pittsburghers bowed, 20 to 9, after taking a 9 to 0 lead in the first half.

Will Not Lose Moore.

NEW CONCORD—Capt. Moore may not be lost to the Muskingum football squad for more than one game because of a shoulder injury received Saturday against Hiram. It had been feared he would be out for the remainder of the season. Taylor, star end, who dislocated his shoulder in practice several weeks ago, indulged in the light workout the team took today. He may be able to start this week-end.

Prepare for Northern.

OXFORD—Miami gridders today began preparing for the Ohio Northern contest Saturday by taking a light drill. The scrubs got the hard work today, going through a stiff scrimmage. Coach Pittser declared he plans no changes in the varsity line-up this week.

FOOTBALL is with us.

All the little buds that the coaches have been nursing along, including forward passers, ends, punters and the variegated variety, are in full bloom. Whether or not they're tough enough to stand the inclement and four 15 minutes halves against any opposition is about to be decided.

And it ought to be a hectic season—very hectic, what with the usual denials concerning the efforts of some colleges to lure star players, the efforts of the Big Three to remain above the visibility line and the hard things professional and college adherents will say about each other.

Here are some of the important games— generally speaking—that will be played on the various week ends.

Syracuse vs. Columbia, Cornell vs. Pennsylvania, Georgia Tech vs. Alabama Poly, Pittsburgh vs. Penn State.

November 27.

Army vs. Navy, Notre Dame vs. Carnegie Tech, Georgetown vs. Detroit, Iowa State vs. U. of Southern California.

Plenty of thrills in that list and it doesn't include all of the games in various sections of the country which have a big kick in said sections.

Line Gets Attention.

SPRINGFIELD — Wittenberg's line had most of the attention of Coach Godfrey at light practice sessions today. Preparations for the Rio Grande game here Saturday are in reality plans laid for the homecoming game against Miami here Oct. 16. Coaches are striving to build Wittenberg's ends for the first Buckeye game on that date.

Akron In Good Shape.

AKRON.—Akron university came through its game with Case last Saturday without serious injuries and will be in good shape for the Ohio game next Saturday, provided there are no untoward events.

Oberlin Loses Half.

OBERLIN — Halfback Wilder will be out of the Oberlin lineup for ten days because of a dislocated elbow received in the Marietta game Saturday, it developed today. Coach Maceachron put his squad through a stiff scrimmage today in starting preparation for Mount Union.

St. Louis Is One Big Howl As Mob of Fans Crush Way Into Park

By Ford C. Frick.

SPORTSMAN PARK, ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—You hear much of this thing called baseball frenzy. Here you have it in living example.

Howling, shrieking, pushing mobs that recognize no police barrier and admit of no regulated authority.

Bands, banners and bugles—whistles blowing, horns tooting frantically, sirens that shriek and wail and shriek again; everywhere clamor, and din, and confusion—St Louis has gone suddenly mad—mad with joy, and enthusiasm, and pride.

The demonstration culminated this morning with the first mad rush toward a ball park that is all too small to accommodate the thousands of faithful fans who hope against hope to push themselves into a space already jammed to capacity.

The police cordon stretched about the park battled helplessly to stave off the rushing thousands who continued to come on. Ten thousand of that milling, pushing throng will eventually find seats and see this afternoon's game. Fully 3,000 of them have been waiting since yesterday afternoon—standing in line through the long night to insure a seat when the game starts.

But even so Sam Breadon and his Cardinal cohorts have managed admirably. Speculafors are a more or less unknown quantity out here in the open spaces and virtually all of the tickets have fallen into legitimate hands. Which is more, the Cards have established a clearing house, whereby unused tickets can be directed into legitimate hands and as many visitors as possible accommodated for at least one game.

Marek's Shoulder Hurt.

COLUMBUS—A light drill on forward passing and an illustrated lecture by Coach Wilce comprised the program of the Ohio State university football team today. Marek, star halfback, was suffering from a bruised shoulder, which kept him out of practice, but Trainer Chambers said he would be ready to start against Ohio Wesleyan Saturday.

That was the one blur rather than a blot on Oberlin's unbeaten team. The Mt. Union season is composed of two games and to win this pair, Coach Johnny Thorpe would be willing to drop all the others. Oberlin is one and Wooster the other. And now the Congregationalists wander down to Alliance for a nice pleasant afternoon, which will shade a Mexican revolution in the matter of action. If the little mole-skinned gods of football continue to smile on the Case eleven, the Scientists may defeat Wooster. In 1925, the Black and Gold upset Case, 11-0, and Coach Fletcher is out for blood. But the Brown and White defense must improve and the attack be of a more consistent nature. Wooster has a fairly strong line and a million backs of more or less ability with Blough as headliner. This lad is ever dangerous and is likely to cause Case more trouble than the rest of the Wooster backfield.

Norsemen At Oxford.

At Oxford, a Miami team that showed up favorably against Ohio Wesleyan last week meets Ohio Northern. The Norseman dropped a 13-7 contest to Denison but proved to be anything but a weakling. In all events, Miami will utilize the passing attack that swept Wesleyan back and which in three dazzling throws accounted for the Oxford touchdown. It will be a up and tuck affair with the home team having a slight edge.

If Kenyon can re-arrange its shattered team and draw in its scattered morale, the purple may capture a game from Baldwin-Wallace, carded for Gambier, this week-end. The Berea eleven appeared weak against Western Reserve, but no weaker than did Kenyon in its futile attempts to stem the Dayton avalanche.

Flushed with a sweeping triumph over Baldwin-Wallace, Western Reserve treks to Hiram for what should be an easy conquest of the Cherry and Blue. The Pioneers revealed a diversified attack and a staunch defense, which did justice to the teaching of Gordon Locke. There was interference such as Reserve teams of the past 10 years had only dreamed of, but never seen.

Case was deserving of victory, but held to a tie because one of its players was too impetuous and was off side when the point for goal was tried and missed. The referee was forced to award the point to Case, thereby giving the scientists an even break with Akron. This same Zipper eleven takes on Ohio University at Akron and may win. The Green and White, while running up a huge score against Rio Grande, has yet ho prove itself and a victory over Akron will do much toward that end.

Otterbein and Heidelberg meet at Westerville Friday. Last year, the latter trounced the United Brethren by a 39-0 count and this year, it's a guess. Muskingum plays Capital at Columbus Friday.

Marietta Plays Nittany Lions.

Among Saturday's non-conference games are the Ohio State-Ohio Wesleyan melee at Columbus. A season ago, the battling Bishops held the Buckeyes, 10-3, but early season form makes it appear that this year's score will be considerably larger and more decisive. Marietta, which held Penn State to two touchdowns in 1925, again meets the Nittany Lions on the latter's gridiron. St. Xavier bumps into a new foe in the Quantico Marines for a contest scheduled for Cincinnati, while Wittenberg is due for a light workout against Rio Grande at Springfield. The Dayton Flyers play at Cleveland against John Carroll, and should win with little trouble.

MOUNT PRIMES FOR OBERLIN

First Meeting on Alliance Field in Five Years.

Mount Union reaches the first high point in her 1926 grid schedule when she meets the strong Oberlin team on October 9. This will be the first time the two teams have met on the Mount field in five years. The Oberlin game will also be the home-coming game for Mount this year. Judging from the advance sale of tickets and reservations now made the game will be played before the largest home-coming crowd ever present at the Mount field. Standing room will be at a premium. The city of Alliance will be specially decorated for the gala occasion, and the various fraternities on the campus have planned special attractions.

Mount's two victories, Slippery Rock Normal and Heidelberg college, have greatly augmented her hopes for a win over the Oberlin team. It is not to be thought that Mount is not taking the game seriously for the Oberlin team will be a far too powerful aggregation to be considered that way. A victory Saturday depends on Mount playing heads-up ball the entire game. No efforts to smooth up Mount's attack and to increase her driving power will be spared during practice this week.

Physically Mount is in good shape for the battle as she has been fortunate in coming through both games without serious injuries. It will take more, however, than just good physical condition to beat the three time Ohio Conference champs. Mount again this year will send against Oberlin a team equally as powerful on the defense as the team which last year seriously threatened the up-staters' string of conference victories when the game was tied with neither side able to score. Captain Army Armstrong and center Burkle, who led the defense last year, will do so again next Saturday.

LAFAYETTE IS NEXT FOR PITT

Six-year-old Grid Duel to be Resumed Saturday.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 5. — A football feud that is only six years old but is already as intensely contested as any in the east will be renewed in the stadium here next Saturday when the University of Pittsburgh and Lafayette college elevens come to grips.

The yearly duel with the Leopards is the only one in which the Panthers have lost more games than they have won. And singularly, Lafayette has had a Pitt graduate as coach ever since relations between the two institutions were established. Dr. J. B. Sutherland, present Pitt mentor, was in charge of the elevens that met the Panthers from 1920 until 1923. When he came to Pittsburgh the following year his place was taken by G. Herbert McCracken, who was graduated from the university in 1919.

During Sutherland's reign at Lafayette, the Leopards won two and lost two. Pitt won in 1920, 14 to 0; Lafayette took the 1921 and 1922 games, 6 to 0 and 7 to 0, respectively, and in 1923 the Panthers emerged victors, 7 to 0.

Since McCracken has been coaching at Easton, Lafayette has not been defeated by Pitt. The 1924 contest was won, 10 to 0, and last fall the Pittsburghers bowed, 20 to 9, after taking a 9 to 0 lead in the first half.

Will Not Lose Moore.

NEW CONCORD—Capt. Moore may not be lost to the Muskingum football squad for more than one game because of a shoulder injury received Saturday against Hiram. It had been feared he would be out for the remainder of the season. Taylor, star end, who dislocated his shoulder in practice several weeks ago, indulged in the light workout the team took today. He may be able to start this week-end.

Prepare for Northern.

OXFORD—Miami gridders today began preparing for the Ohio Northern contest Saturday by taking a light drill. The scrubs got the hard work today, going through a stiff scrimmage. Coach Pittser declared he plans no changes in the varsity line-up this week.

FOOTBALL is with us.

All the little buds that the coaches have been nursing along, including forward passers, ends, punters and the variegated variety, are in full bloom. Whether or not they're tough enough to stand the inclement and four 15 minutes halves against any opposition is about to be decided.

And it ought to be a hectic season—very hectic, what with the usual denials concerning the efforts of some colleges to lure star players, the efforts of the Big Three to remain above the visibility line and the hard things professional and college adherents will say about each other.

Here are some of the important games— generally speaking—that will be played on the various week ends.

November 27.

Army vs. Navy, Notre Dame vs. Carnegie Tech, Georgetown vs. Detroit, Iowa State vs. U. of Southern California.

Plenty of thrills in that list and it doesn't include all of the games in various sections of the country which have a big kick in said sections.

Line Gets Attention.

SPRINGFIELD—Wittenberg's line had most of the attention of Coach Godfrey at light practice sessions today. Preparations for the Rio Grande game here Saturday are in reality plans laid for the homecoming game against Miami here Oct. 16. Coaches are striving to build Wittenberg's ends for the first Buckeye game on that date.

Akron In Good Shape.

AKRON.—Akron university came through its game with Case last Saturday without serious injuries and will be in good shape for the Ohio game next Saturday, provided there are no untoward events.

Oberlin Loses Half.

OBERLIN — Halfback Wilder will be out of the Oberlin lineup for ten days because of a dislocated elbow received in the Marietta game Saturday, it developed today. Coach Maceachron put his squad through a stiff scrimmage today in starting preparation for Mount-Union.

St. Louis Is One Big Howl As Mob of Fans Crush Way Into Park

By Ford C. Frick.

SPORTSMAN PARK, ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—You hear much of this thing called baseball frenzy. Here you have it in living example.

Howling, shrieking, pushing mobs that recognize no police barrier and admit of no regulated authority.

Bands, banners and bugles—whistles blowing, horns tooting frantically, sirens that shriek and wail and shriek again; everywhere clamor, and din, and confusion—St Louis has gone suddenly mad—mad with joy, and enthusiasm, and pride.

The demonstration culminated this morning with the first mad rush toward a ball park that is all too small to accommodate the thousands of faithful fans who hope against hope to push themselves into a space already jammed to capacity.

The police cordon stretched about the park battled helplessly to stave off the rushing thousands who continued to come on. Ten thousand of that milling, pushing throng will eventually find seats and see this afternoon's game. Fully 3,000 of them have been waiting since yesterday afternoon—standing in line through the long night to insure a seat when the game starts.

But even so Sam Breadon and his Cardinal cohorts have managed admirably. Speculators are a more or less unknown quantity out here in the open spaces and virtually all of the tickets have fallen into legitimate hands. Which is more, the Cards have established a clearing house, whereby unused tickets can be directed into legitimate hands and as many visitors as possible accommodated for at least one game.

Marek's Shoulder Hurt.

COLUMBUS—A light drill on forward passing and an illustrated lecture by Coach Wilce comprised the program of the Ohio State university football team today. Marek, star halfback, was suffering from a bruised shoulder, which kept him out of practice, but Trainer Chambers said he would be ready to start against Ohio Wesleyan Saturday.

You don't know what you're missing!

THERE'S only one way you can know the joys of a jimmy-pipe packed with Prince Albert . . . smoke it! Nothing your friends may tell you, nothing you may read, can possibly give you the correct picture. If you don't know P. A., you're on the outside looking in!

Be skeptical. Challenge Prince Albert to give you the best all-round session you ever had with a pipe. No matter how set you think you are in the matter of smokes, try P. A. It will revise all your notions of how a pipe can perform when put on the right diet.

Buy a tidy red tin today. As you throw back the hinged lid, revel in that rich fragrance. That's tobacco! Tamp a load into your pipe and light up. Get that wonderful P. A. taste. Cool as an ocean breeze. Sweet as an unexpected legacy. Delightfully mild.

Mild, yes, but with a body that satisfies your smoke-taste to the full. The one tobacco that you can just keep smoking from morning till midnight. No other tobacco is like it. You can prove this in five minutes. Make the personal test today!

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

'TAKE THE AIR,' GRID SLOGAN

Mid-west and Big Ten Coaches Favor Aerial Game.

By Copeland C. M. Burg.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Air's the thing. That was the slogan today at Big Ten conference and mid western football camps generally as coaches launched a final week of practice before important conference and intersectional tilts scheduled for Saturday.

Profiting by Chicago's 12 to 9 win over Florida and other smashing victories last Saturday in the middle west, teams almost entirely will concentrate on the aerial attack this season.

Centering the interest in this section Saturday will be the clash at Minneapolis between the powerful Gopher eleven, which last week humbled North Dakota, 51 to 0, and Notre Dame, winner over Beloit by the Irish's biggest opening game score in any season, 77 to 0.

A defeat for Rockne's gang Saturday will eliminate Notre Dame, non-conference eleven, from a claim on western honors, while a Minnesota victory will stamp the Gophers as chief rival of Michigan, last year's Big Ten champion. Experts believe the better air game will win the Minneapolis struggle.

Kansas, of the Missouri Valley conference, will probably succumb to Wisconsin at Madison.

Chicago will play its second intersectional game of the season here against Maryland and Coach Stagg's overhead is regarded likely to win.

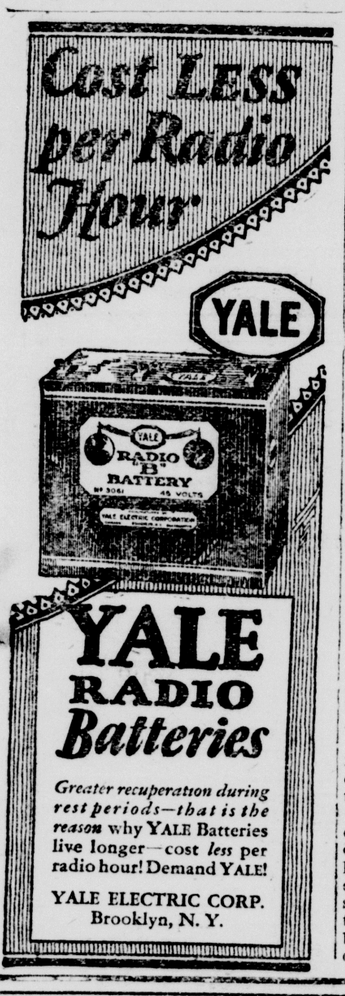
Michigan will play Michigan State; Purdue, just nosed out last week by the Navy, will play Wabash; Illinois, victors over Coe in the season opener, will meet another weak foe in Butler.

Northwestern, rolling up a 34 to 0 score over South Dakota Saturday, will probably easily repeat over Carleton at Evanston and the strong Iowa eleven, which Saturday defeated Colorado Teachers' college, 24 to 0, will find only mild opposition from North Dakota at Iowa City.

The brilliant Ohio State eleven will take on Ohio Wesleyan in a warmer up before its eastern appearance October 16 in New York against Columbia. Ohio beat Wittenberg last week, 40 to 14.

Indiana, after humbling De Pauw, 31 to 7, will clash with a non-conference eleven, Kentucky, at Bloomington.

Chicago's new air defense, Purdue's superb passing game, Illinois' open attack, Michigan's brilliant overhead offensive, Minnesota's great driving power, Northwestern's end-run strength and Notre Dame's combination of aerial and old-fashioned football were the outstanding highlights of the last week end.



Illini Football Without Grange Will Show Star's Drawing Power

Early Signs Indicate His Passing Will Not be Felt Particularly as Seat Orders Flow In.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Just how great is the drawing power of "Red" Grange, the famous University of Illinois football star who heard the siren call of "Cash and carry" Pyle and became a professional, will be demonstrated this fall in attendance at the games of the Illini.

In past years the coffers of the Orange and Blue institution have been mightily swelled by Grange's playing, as football fans over the entire country fought for a chance to watch him dash over the white lines.

Dire predictions as to the Illini drawing power without a Grange have been made but early indications are that the passing of Grange is not going to be particularly felt.

Early reservations for the Pennsylvania-Illinois contest, to be played at Urbana, October 30, indicate this game will prove the stellar attraction of the season. Pennsylvania is the the first big eastern eleven to play in the Urbana stadium and followers of Coach Bob Zuppke and his men are keen to watch the Illini in an attempt to repeat their victory of last year over them.

While orders for the Pennsylvania game exceed all others, interest is mounting in the Iowa game to be played in Urbana, October 16. The Iowa contest will mark home-coming day.

The third big home game for Illinois is with Ohio on November 20, the last battle of the season.

Illinois will also play Butler, Chicago, Michigan and Wabash, all the games scheduled at Urbana with the exception of the Chicago and Michigan clashes.

HAS BRAIN AS WELL AS BRAWN

Yale Grid Captain Also Star in Class Work.

Phil Bunnell, captain of Yale's football eleven, which hopes to dim the memory of last year's disappointments, may be known only to the general public as a good football player, a valuable man to his team and a popular student.

As a matter of fact a Who's Who of Bunnell places his football success as a minor part of his achievements in college.

This modest chap who leads the Bulldog this fall is best known to New Haven officials as a student of high intelligence. His standing as a scholar is attested to by the fact that last June he was awarded the Francis Gordon Brown scholarship from the class of 1927 as the "man who most closely approaches the standards of intellectual ability, high manhood, capacity for leadership and service set by Frances Gordon Brown, B. A. Yale, 1901."

Bunnell is a member of the student council. He's a member of the Student Survey Committee. He has served on the junior promenade committee. He is a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon and the Athletic fraternity of Sigma Delta Psi. He was the last man tapped last year for Skull and Bones. He captained the Yale freshman swimming team and swam on the sophomore team which won the world relay championship.

The fact that Bunnell is one of the most popular men on the campus indicates that he has carried off the various duties and accepted the honors modestly.

WESTMINSTER NEXT FOR BISON

Victory May Mean Lead in Tri-State Race.

BETHANY, W. Va., Oct. 5.—Realizing that a win over Westminster will virtually place them in a tie for the tri-state conference lead, and also stamp them as contenders for the tri-state crown, the Bison herd is endeavoring this week to iron out all the deficiencies noted in the Wesleyan game. It is the aim of Coach Nuss not only to come out of this important struggles with a well earned victory, but also to prove to the alumni of Bethany that Nuss-coached eleven of this year is one of the best ever to represent this institution. It is not by any means an easy problem for the coach to solve in just what determining the mode of play for this encounter, as the New Wilmington combination is being coached this year by a man who has not only participated in Collegiate football for four years—but has also been under the capable guidance of one of the country's best coaches in Wally Stiffen. For this reason, above all else, the Bison mentor is taking every precaution possible in perfecting new offensive and defensive plays for this important classic.

With the spirit of the entire squad of 30 men, entirely rejuvenated because of the fine work which the first team backfield has been producing the interest in the coming battle is at fever pitch from Bethany's angle. Reports from the Pennsylvania institution are to the effect that interest there is also high, and that plenty of the Westminster alumni will be on hand to help the Presbyterians in spirit.

"Hump" Neel, fleet-footed halfback, was the main cog in scrimmage yesterday. He has gotten back into his old stride once again and Coach Nuss is counting on him to cross many of the white chalk marks on the Wellsburg grid this year.

Haskin's Letter

is performed under conditions such that a considerable amount of food energy is required to maintain their bodily temperature.

More workers are employed today in the various occupations of the manufacturing and mechanical industries and trade and transportation, but use of labor-saving machinery in it is stated that with the extensive these branches of industry there can be little doubt that the increasing relative importance of these branches at the expense of agriculture and forestry has brought about a substantial decrease in the proportion of workers engaged in heavy physical labor.

Nor does the farm laborer have to work as hard as he did twenty years or more ago. Practically all the arduous tasks on the farm have been lightened greatly, and today the simile, "he has an appetite like a farm-hand," is not so apt as it was formerly. The farm-hand hasn't such an extraordinary appetite now because his food requirements are not so great.

Per capita food requirement in the United States shows a decrease, too, because on the whole the American people are living in warmer houses and in houses that are heated uniformly. They need less food to maintain body temperature.

One thing has tended to increase food consumption—the wearing of fewer and lighter clothes by both men and women, while the character of their underclothing is such as to restrain heat dissipation less than in the good old days of red flannels, or underwear that was correspondingly warming. Men have not made so radical a change in their clothing as have women, but the latter have gone to such extremes in the way of lightening that they might materially add to the or dispensing entirely with garments nation's food requirements, were it not that most of them fear to indulge in normal appetites lest they put on too much weight or find it impossible to reduce themselves to fashionable contours.

'TAKE THE AIR,' GRID SLOGAN

Mid-west and Big Ten Coaches Favor Aerial Game.

By Copeland C. M. Burg.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Air's the thing. That was the slogan today at Big Ten conference and mid-western football camps generally as coaches launched a final week of practice before important conference and intersectional tilts scheduled for Saturday.

Profiting by Chicago's 12 to 9 win over Florida and other smashing victories last Saturday in the middle west, teams almost entirely will concentrate on the aerial attack this season.

Centering the interest in this section Saturday will be the clash at Minneapolis between the powerful Gopher eleven, which last week humbled North Dakota, 51 to 0, and Notre Dame, winner over Beloit by the Irish's biggest opening game score in any season, 77 to 0.

A defeat for Rockne's gang Saturday will eliminate Notre Dame, non-conference eleven, from a claim on western honors, while a Minnesota victory will stamp the Gophers as chief rival of Michigan, last year's Big Ten champion. Experts believe the better air game will win the Minneapolis struggle.

Kansas, of the Missouri Valley conference, will probably succumb to Wisconsin at Madison.

Chicago will play its second intersectional game of the season here against Maryland and Coach Stagg's overhead is regarded likely to win.

Michigan will play Michigan State; Purdue, just nosed out last week by the Navy, will play Wabash; Illinois, victors over Coe in the season opener, will meet another weak foe in Butler.

Northwestern, rolling up a 34 to 0 score over South Dakota Saturday, will probably easily repeat over Carleton at Evanston and the strong Iowa eleven, which Saturday defeated Colorado Teachers' college, 24 to 0, will find only mild opposition from North Dakota at Iowa City.

The brilliant Ohio State eleven will take on Ohio Wesleyan in a warmer up before its eastern appearance October 16 in New York against Columbia. Ohio beat Wittenberg last week, 40 to 14.

Indiana, after humbling De Pauw, 31 to 7, will clash with a non-conference eleven, Kentucky, at Bloomington.

Chicago's new air defense, Purdue's superb passing game, Illinois' open attack, Michigan's brilliant overhead offensive, Minnesota's great driving power, Northwestern's end-run strength and Notre Dame's combination of aerial and old-fashioned football were the outstanding highlights of the last week end.

Illini Football Without Grange Will Show Star's Drawing Power

Early Signs Indicate His Passing Will Not be Felt Particularly as Seat Orders Flow In.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Just how great is the drawing power of "Red" Grange, the famous University of Illinois football star who heard the siren call of "Cash and carry" Pyle and became a professional, will be demonstrated this fall in attendance at the games of the Illini.

In past years the coffers of the Orange and Blue institution have been mightily swelled by Grange's playing, as football fans over the entire country fought for a chance to watch him dash over the white lines.

Dire predictions as to the Illini drawing power without a Grange have been made but early indications are that the passing of Grange is not going to be particularly felt.

Early reservations for the Pennsylvania-Illinois contest, to be played at Urbana, October 30, indicate this game will prove the stellar attraction of the season. Pennsylvania is the the first big eastern eleven to play in the Urbana stadium and followers of Coach Bob Zuppke and his men are keen to watch the Illini in an attempt to repeat their victory of last year over them.

While orders for the Pennsylvania game exceed all others, interest is mounting in the Iowa game to be played in Urbana, October 16. The Iowa contest will mark home-coming day.

The third big home game for Illinois is with Ohio on November 20, the last battle of the season.

Illinois will also play Butler, Chicago, Michigan and Wabash, all the games scheduled at Urbana with the exception of the Chicago and Michigan clashes.

HAS BRAIN AS WELL AS BRAWN

Yale Grid Captain Also Star in Class Work.

Phil Bunnell, captain of Yale's football eleven, which hopes to dim the memory of last year's disappointments, may be known only to the general public as a good football player, a valuable man to his team and a popular student.

As a matter of fact a Who's Who of Bunnell places his football success as a minor part of his achievements in college.

This modest chap who leads the Bulldog this fall is best known to New Haven officials as a student of high intelligence. His standing as a scholar is attested to by the fact that last June he was awarded the Francis Gordon Brown scholarship from the class of 1927 as the "man who most closely approaches the standards of intellectual ability, high manhood, capacity for leadership and service set by Frances Gordon Brown, B. A. Yale, 1901."

Bunnell is a member of the student council. He's a member of the Student Survey Committee. He has served on the junior promenade committee. He is a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon and the Athletic fraternity of Sigma Delta Psi. He was the last man tapped last year for Skull and Bones. He captained the Yale freshman swimming team and swam on the sophomore team which won the world relay championship.

The fact that Bunnell is one of the most popular men on the campus indicates that he has carried off the various duties and accepted the honors modestly.

WESTMINSTER NEXT FOR BISON

Victory May Mean Lead in Tri-State Race.

BETHANY, W. Va., Oct. 5.—Realizing that a win over Westminster will virtually place them in a tie for the tri-state conference lead, and also stamp them as contenders for the tri-state crown, the Bison herd is endeavoring this week to iron out all the deficiencies noted in the Wesleyan game. It is the aim of Coach Nuss not only to come out of this important struggles with a well earned victory, but also to prove to the alumni of Bethany that Nuss-coached eleven of this year is one of the best ever to represent this institution. It is not by any means an easy problem for the coach to solve in just what determining the mode of play for this encounter, as the New Wilmington combination is being coached this year by a man who has not only participated in Collegiate football for four years—but has also been under the capable guidance of one of the country's best coaches in Wally Stiffen. For this reason, above all else, the Bison mentor is taking every precaution possible in perfecting new offensive and defensive plays for this important classic.

With the spirit of the entire squad of 30 men, entirely rejuvenated because of the fine work which the first team backfield has been producing the interest in the coming battle is at fever pitch from Bethany's angle. Reports from the Pennsylvania institution are to the effect that interest there is also high, and that plenty of the Westminster alumni will be on hand to help the Presbyterians in spirit.

"Hump" Neel, fleet-footed halfback, was the main cog in scrimmage yesterday. He has gotten back into his old stride once again and Coach Nuss is counting on him to cross many of the white chalk marks on the Wellsburg grid this year.

Haskin's Letter

is performed under conditions such that a considerable amount of food energy is required to maintain their bodily temperature.

More workers are employed today in the various occupations of the manufacturing and mechanical industries and trade and transportation, but use of labor-saving machinery in it is stated that with the extensive these branches of industry there can be little doubt that the increasing relative importance of these branches at the expense of agriculture and forestry has brought about a substantial decrease in the proportion of workers engaged in heavy physical labor.

Nor does the farm laborer have to work as hard as he did twenty years or more ago. Practically all the arduous tasks on the farm have been lightened greatly, and today the simile, "he has an appetite like a farm-hand," is not so apt as it was formerly. The farm-hand hasn't such an extraordinary appetite now because his food requirements are not so great.

Per capita food requirement in the United States shows a decrease, too, because on the whole the American people are living in warmer houses and in houses that are heated uniformly. They need less food to maintain body temperature.

One thing has tended to increase food consumption—the wearing of fewer and lighter clothes by both men and women, while the character of their underclothing is such as to restrain heat dissipation less than in the good old days of red flannels, or underwear that was correspondingly warming. Men have not made so radical a change in their clothing as have women, but the latter have gone to such extremes in the way of lightening that they might materially add to the or dispensing entirely with garments nation's food requirements, were it not that most of them fear to indulge in normal appetites lest they put on too much weight or find it impossible to reduce themselves to fashionable contours.

'TAKE THE AIR,' GRID SLOGAN

Mid-west and Big Ten Coaches Favor Aerial Game.

By Copeland C. M. Burg.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Air's the thing. That was the slogan today at Big Ten conference and mid western football camps generally as coaches launched a final week of practice before important conference and intersectional tilts scheduled for Saturday.

Profiting by Chicago's 12 to 9 win over Florida and other smashing victories last Saturday in the middle west, teams almost entirely will concentrate on the aerial attack this season.

Centering the interest in this section Saturday will be the clash at Minneapolis between the powerful Gopher eleven, which last week humbled North Dakota, 51 to 0, and Notre Dame, winner over Beloit by the Irish's biggest opening game score in any season, 77 to 0.

A defeat for Rockne's gang Saturday will eliminate Notre Dame, nonconference eleven, from a claim on western honors, while a Minnesota victory will stamp the Gophers as chief rival of Michigan, last year's Big Ten champion. Experts believe the better air game will win the Minneapolis struggle.

Kansas, of the Missouri Valley conference, will probably succumb to Wisconsin at Madison.

Chicago will play its second intersectional game of the season here against Maryland and Coach Stagg's overhead is regarded likely to win.

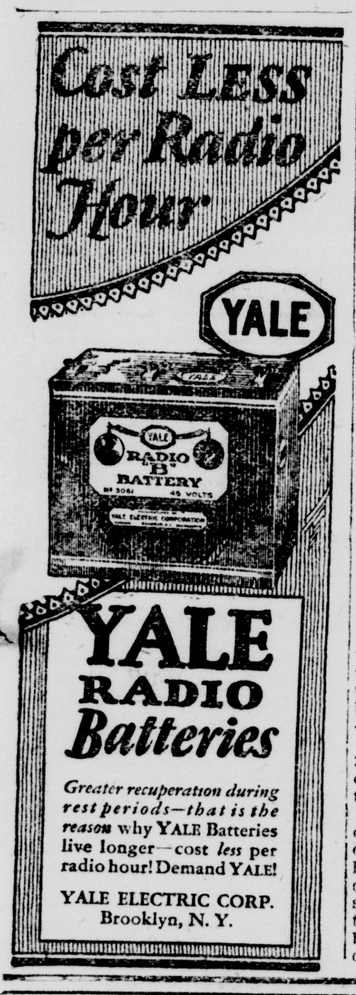
Michigan will play Michigan State; Purdue, just nosed out last week by the Navy, will play Wabash; Illinois, victors over Coe in the season opener, will meet another weak foe in Butler.

Northwestern, rolling up a 34 to 0 score over South Dakota Saturday, will probably easily repeat over Carleton at Evanston and the strong Iowa eleven, which Saturday defeated Colorado Teachers' college, 24 to 0, will find only mild opposition from North Dakota at Iowa City.

The brilliant Ohio State eleven will take on Ohio Wesleyan in a warmer up before its eastern appearance October 16 in New York against Columbia. Ohio beat Wittenberg last week, 40 to 14.

Indiana, after humbling De Pauw, 21 to 7, will clash with a non-conference eleven, Kentucky, at Bloomington.

Chicago's new air defense, Purdue's superb passing game, Illinois' open attack, Michigan's brilliant overhead offensive, Minnesota's great driving power, Northwestern's end-run strength and Notre Dame's combination of aerial and old-fashioned football were the outstanding highlights of the last week end.



Illini Football Without Grange Will Show Star's Drawing Power

Early Signs Indicate His Passing Will Not be Felt Particularly as Seat Orders Flow In.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Just how great is the drawing power of "Red" Grange, the famous University of Illinois football star who heard the siren call of "Cash and carry" Pyle and became a professional, will be demonstrated this fall in attendance at the games of the Illini.

In past years the coffers of the Orange and Blue institution have been mightily swelled by Grange's playing, as football fans over the entire country fought for a chance to watch him dash over the white lines.

Dire predictions as to the Illini drawing power without a Grange have been made but early indications are that the passing of Grange is not going to be particularly felt.

Early reservations for the Pennsylvania-Illinois contest, to be played at Urbana, October 30, indicate this game will prove the stellar attraction of the season. Pennsylvania is the the first big eastern eleven to play in the Urbana stadium and followers of Coach Bob Zuppke and his men are keen to watch the Illini in an attempt to repeat their victory of last year over them.

While orders for the Pennsylvania game exceed all others, interest is mounting in the Iowa game to be played in Urbana, October 16. The Iowa contest will mark home-coming day.

The third big home game for Illinois is with Ohio on November 20, the last battle of the season.

Illinois will also play Butler, Chicago, Michigan and Wabash, all the games scheduled at Urbana with the exception of the Chicago and Michigan clashes.

HAS BRAIN AS WELL AS BRAWN

Yale Grid Captain Also Star in Class Work.

Phil Bunnell, captain of Yale's football eleven, which hopes to dim the memory of last year's disappointments, may be known only to the general public as a good football player, a valuable man to his team and a popular student.

As a matter of fact a Who's Who of Bunnell places his football success as a minor part of his achievements in college.

This modest chap who leads the Bulldog this fall is best known to New Haven officials as a student of high intelligence. His standing as a scholar is attested to by the fact that last June he was awarded the Francis Gordon Brown scholarship from the class of 1927 as the "man who most closely approaches the standards of intellectual ability, high manhood, capacity for leadership and service set by Frances Gordon Brown, B. A. Yale, 1901."

Bunnell is a member of the student council. He's a member of the Student Survey Committee. He has served on the junior promenade committee. He is a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon and the Athletic fraternity of Sigma Delta Psi. He was the last man tapped last year for Skull and Bones. He captained the Yale freshman swimming team and swam on the sophomore team which won the world relay championship.

The fact that Bunnell is one of the most popular men on the campus indicates that he has carried off the various duties and accepted the honors modestly.

WESTMINSTER NEXT FOR BISON

Victory May Mean Lead in Tri-State Race.

BETHANY, W. Va., Oct. 5.—Realizing that a win over Westminster will virtually place them in a tie for the tri-state conference lead, and also stamp them as contenders for the tri-state crown, the Bison herd is endeavoring this week to iron out all the deficiencies noted in the Wesleyan game. It is the aim of Coach Nuss not only to come out of this important struggles with a well earned victory, but also to prove to the alumni of Bethany that Nuss-coached eleven of this year is one of the best ever to represent this institution. It is not by any means an easy problem for the coach to solve in just what determining the mode of play for this encounter, as the New Wilmington combination is being coached this year by a man who has not only participated in Collegiate football for four years—but has also been under the capable guidance of one of the country's best coaches in Wally Stiffen. For this reason, above all else, the Bison mentor is taking every precaution possible in perfecting new offensive and defensive plays for this important classic.

With the spirit of the entire squad of 30 men, entirely rejuvenated because of the fine work which the first team backfield has been producing the interest in the coming battle is at fever pitch from Bethany's angle. Reports from the Pennsylvania institution are to the effect that interest there is also high, and that plenty of the Westminster alumni will be on hand to help the Presbyterians in spirit.

"Hump" Neel, fleet-footed halfback, was the main cog in scrimmage yesterday. He has gotten back into his old stride once again and Coach Nuss is counting on him to cross many of the white chalk marks on the Wellsburg grid this year.

Haskin's Letter

is performed under conditions such that a considerable amount of food energy is required to maintain their bodily temperature.

More workers are employed today in the various occupations of the manufacturing and mechanical industries and trade and transportation, but use of labor-saving machinery in it is stated that with the extensive these branches of industry there can be little doubt that the increasing relative importance of these branches at the expense of agriculture and forestry has brought about a substantial decrease in the proportion of workers engaged in heavy physical labor.

Nor does the farm laborer have to work as hard as he did twenty years or more ago. Practically all the arduous tasks on the farm have been lightened greatly, and today the simile, "he has an appetite like a farm-hand," is not so apt as it was formerly. The farm-hand hasn't such an extraordinary appetite now because his food requirements are not so great.

Per capita food requirement in the United States shows a decrease, too, because on the whole the American people are living in warmer houses and in houses that are heated uniformly. They need less food to maintain body temperature.

One thing has tended to increase food consumption—the wearing of fewer and lighter clothes by both men and women, while the character of their underclothing is such as to restrain heat dissipation less than in the good old days of red flannels, or underwear that was correspondingly warming. Men have not made so radical a change in their clothing as have women, but the latter have gone to such extremes in the way of lightening that they might materially add to the or dispensing entirely with garments nation's food requirements, were it not that most of them fear to indulge in normal appetites lest they put on too much weight or find it impossible to reduce themselves to fashionable contours.

'TAKE THE AIR,' GRID SLOGAN

Mid-west and Big Ten Coaches Favor Aerial Game.

By Copeland C. M. Burg.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Air's the thing. That was the slogan today at Big Ten conference and mid-western football camps generally as coaches launched a final week of practice before important conference and intersectional tilts scheduled for Saturday.

Profiting by Chicago's 12 to 9 win over Florida and other smashing victories last Saturday in the middle west, teams almost entirely will concentrate on the aerial attack this season.

Centering the interest in this section Saturday will be the clash at Minneapolis between the powerful Gopher eleven, which last week humbled North Dakota, 51 to 0, and Notre Dame, winner over Beloit by the Irish's biggest opening game score in any season, 77 to 0.

A defeat for Rockne's gang Saturday will eliminate Notre Dame, non-conference eleven, from a claim on western honors, while a Minnesota victory will stamp the Gophers as chief rival of Michigan, last year's Big Ten champion. Experts believe the better air game will win the Minneapolis struggle.

Kansas, of the Missouri Valley conference, will probably succumb to Wisconsin at Madison.

Chicago will play its second intersectional game of the season here against Maryland and Coach Stagg's overhead is regarded likely to win.

Michigan will play Michigan State; Purdue, just nosed out last week by the Navy, will play Wabash; Illinois, victors over Coe in the season opener, will meet another weak foe in Butler.

Northwestern, rolling up a 34 to 0 score over South Dakota Saturday, will probably easily repeat over Carleton at Evanston and the strong Iowa eleven, which Saturday defeated Colorado Teachers' college, 24 to 0, will find only mild opposition from North Dakota at Iowa City.

The brilliant Ohio State eleven will take on Ohio Wesleyan in a warmer up before its eastern appearance October 16 in New York against Columbia. Ohio beat Wittenberg last week, 40 to 14.

Indiana, after humbling De Pauw, 21 to 7, will clash with a non-conference eleven, Kentucky, at Bloomington.

Chicago's new air defense, Purdue's superb passing game, Illinois' open attack, Michigan's brilliant overhead offensive, Minnesota's great driving power, Northwestern's end-run strength and Notre Dame's combination of aerial and old-fashioned football were the outstanding highlights of the last week end.

Illini Football Without Grange Will Show Star's Drawing Power

Early Signs Indicate His Passing Will Not be Felt Particularly as Seat Orders Flow In.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Just how great is the drawing power of "Red" Grange, the famous University of Illinois football star who heard the siren call of "Cash and carry" Pyle and became a professional, will be demonstrated this fall in attendance at the games of the Illini.

In past years the coffers of the Orange and Blue institution have been mightily swelled by Grange's playing, as football fans over the entire country fought for a chance to watch him dash over the white lines.

Dire predictions as to the Illini drawing power without a Grange have been made but early indications are that the passing of Grange is not going to be particularly felt.

Early reservations for the Pennsylvania-Illinois contest, to be played at Urbana, October 30, indicate this game will prove the stellar attraction of the season. Pennsylvania is the the first big eastern eleven to play in the Urbana stadium and followers of Coach Bob Zuppke and his men are keen to watch the Illini in an attempt to repeat their victory of last year over them.

While orders for the Pennsylvania game exceed all others, interest is mounting in the Iowa game to be played in Urbana, October 16. The Iowa contest will mark home-coming day.

The third big home game for Illinois is with Ohio on November 20, the last battle of the season.

Illinois will also play Butler, Chicago, Michigan and Wabash, all the games scheduled at Urbana with the exception of the Chicago and Michigan clashes.

HAS BRAIN AS WELL AS BRAWN

Yale Grid Captain Also Star in Class Work.

Phil Bunnell, captain of Yale's football eleven, which hopes to dim the memory of last year's disappointments, may be known only to the general public as a good football player, a valuable man to his team and a popular student.

As a matter of fact a Who's Who of Bunnell places his football success as a minor part of his achievements in college.

This modest chap who leads the Bulldog this fall is best known to New Haven officials as a student of high intelligence. His standing as a scholar is attested to by the fact that last June he was awarded the Francis Gordon Brown scholarship from the class of 1927 as the "man who most closely approaches the standards of intellectual ability, high manhood, capacity for leadership and service set by Frances Gordon Brown, B. A. Yale, 1901."

Bunnell is a member of the student council. He's a member of the Student Survey Committee. He has served on the junior promenade committee. He is a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon and the Athletic fraternity of Sigma Delta Psi. He was the last man tapped last year for Skull and Bones. He captained the Yale freshman swimming team and swam on the sophomore team which won the world relay championship.

The fact that Bunnell is one of the most popular men on the campus indicates that he has carried off the various duties and accepted the honors modestly.

WESTMINSTER NEXT FOR BISON

Victory May Mean Lead in Tri-State Race.

BETHANY, W. Va., Oct. 5.—Realizing that a win over Westminster will virtually place them in a tie for the tri-state conference lead, and also stamp them as contenders for the tri-state crown, the Bison herd is endeavoring this week to iron out all the deficiencies noted in the Wesleyan game. It is the aim of Coach Nuss not only to come out of this important struggles with a well earned victory, but also to prove to the alumni of Bethany that Nuss-coached eleven of this year is one of the best ever to represent this institution. It is not by any means an easy problem for the coach to solve in just what determining the mode of play for this encounter, as the New Wilmington combination is being coached this year by a man who has not only participated in Collegiate football for four years—but has also been under the capable guidance of one of the country's best coaches in Wally Stiffen. For this reason, above all else, the Bison mentor is taking every precaution possible in perfecting new offensive and defensive plays for this important classic.

With the spirit of the entire squad of 30 men, entirely rejuvenated because of the fine work which the first team backfield has been producing the interest in the coming battle is at fever pitch from Bethany's angle. Reports from the Pennsylvania institution are to the effect that interest there is also high, and that plenty of the Westminster alumni will be on hand to help the Presbyterians in spirit.

"Hump" Neel, fleet-footed halfback, was the main cog in scrimmage yesterday. He has gotten back into his old stride once again and Coach Nuss is counting on him to cross many of the white chalk marks on the Wellsburg grid this year.

Haskin's Letter

is performed under conditions such that a considerable amount of food energy is required to maintain their bodily temperature.

More workers are employed today in the various occupations of the manufacturing and mechanical industries and trade and transportation, but use of labor-saving machinery in it is stated that with the extensive these branches of industry there can be little doubt that the increasing relative importance of these branches at the expense of agriculture and forestry has brought about a substantial decrease in the proportion of workers engaged in heavy physical labor.

Nor does the farm laborer have to work as hard as he did twenty years or more ago. Practically all the arduous tasks on the farm have been lightened greatly, and today the simile, "he has an appetite like a farm-hand," is not so apt as it was formerly. The farm-hand hasn't such an extraordinary appetite now because his food requirements are not so great.

Per capita food requirement in the United States shows a decrease, too, because on the whole the American people are living in warmer houses and in houses that are heated uniformly. They need less food to maintain body temperature.

One thing has tended to increase food consumption—the wearing of fewer and lighter clothes by both men and women, while the character of their underclothing is such as to restrain heat dissipation less than in the good old days of red flannels, or underwear that was correspondingly warming. Men have not made so radical a change in their clothing as have women, but the latter have gone to such extremes in the way of lightening that they might materially add to the or dispensing entirely with garments nation's food requirements, were it not that most of them fear to indulge in normal appetites lest they put on too much weight or find it impossible to reduce themselves to fashionable contours.

Swedish Art Gallery For Chicago As Result of Crown Prince Visit

Drive for Gifts for Proposed Museum Will be Launched Shortly.

CHICAGO.—Visit to America recently by the democratic Crown Prince Gustaphus Adolphus of Sweden and his charming wife, Princess Louise, is to result in the establishment of a permanent Swedish art gallery in Chicago, culture center of this country's mid-west, where many residents are of Swedish descent.

During the visit of the titled visitors to Chicago an art exhibition, made possible by the courtesy of western collectors, was visited by the prince and attracted wide attention among Chicago Swedes.

Chicago and its suburbs already hold a large number of paintings from the leading Swedish artists of all times and a drive for gifts for the proposed museum will be launched shortly.

In Evanston, Ill., there are several portraits by Anders Zorn, including a full-length portrait of this city's world-known social leader, Mrs. Potter Palmer. Another Zorn is that of Ira Nelson Morris, former United States minister to Sweden.

There are numerous other portraits by Zorn made at the time he visited America more than 30 years ago.

Chicago boasts several originals and numerous copies of the art of Christian Erickson, noted sculptor of the little northern land.

Other Swedish artists and sculptors are well represented in the mid-west and northwest, early settlers in America having brought to this country some excellent examples of Swedish art. In Illinois and Minnesota wealthy Americans of Swedish descent have recently purchased paintings representative of the best in the modern art of Sweden.

A special room in the Art Institute here has been proposed as the site of the Swedish art center.

The temporary exhibit arranged in Chicago in honor of the Crown prince will shortly be taken down and when the paintings and other exhibits are returned to their owners, request will be made for gifts to the proposed permanent exhibit. A generous response is expected by backers of the movement.

CHICAGO cor[illegible] bootleg folklore the interesting story of Richard Evans, 19 years old, who killed a policeman. In 10 minutes a jury decided to hang him. Asked what he had to say, the young murderer looking at his mother sobbing in a corner, replied:

"Judge, I think the sentence is severe in view of my condition." He was half-drunk when he put a revolver to the head of a policeman driving him to the lockup, and blew out the policeman's brains.

IF ANYBODY is to be hanged, hanging that young murderer is correct, but what of the bootlegger that sold him the whiskey? Why not hang him beside the murderer? He had more to do with the killing than the 19-year-old boy that pulled the trigger.

CHICAGO statistics show that bootleg whisky's killing record about equals that of pistols.

In the first nine months of 1925 whisky killed 190; in the past nine months whisky has killed 228.

Lunches For School Children

The noon lunch is one of the most important school problems. It is not easy to make food attractive and to keep it clean when it must be packed and carried in a lunch basket.

This Bureau has for distribution a booklet which contains various bills of fare for the basket lunch, suggestions as to the proper method of packing, and recipes for sandwiches, cookies, salads, and sweets.

SLAY MOTORIST AND SHOOT SON, THEN FLEE AS ROBBERY FAILS

Open Fire When They are Refused Light.

NEWARK CRIME

Injuries Prevent Outlaws From Seizing $500,000 in Currency.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 5.—With the finding here early today of a blood-stained automobile, posses led by detectives were hot on the trail of two bandits who murdered a motorist and shot his son last night near New Brunswick, N. J., and attempted to rob the air mail of $500,000.

Woman May Die.

Police here believed the automobile was the car stolen by the bandits when they fled after killing the motorist, Frank Kearney, 50, a lumber dealer of Maplewood, N. J., and wounding his son, Robert, 15. The robbers threw Mrs. Kearney into a ditch. She is not expected to live.

Fog prevented the bandits from seizing pouches for the mail plane leaving Hadley field, near New Brunswick, for Cleveland and Chicago. The pouches contained currency and negotiable securities valued at $500,000.

In the bandits' own car, which was disabled in a collision near New Brunswick, detectives found two shotguns, four pistols and 50 rounds of ammunition with which it is believed they planned to rob the air mail.

Wreck Car. Steal Another.

When their machine was disabled, the bandits stopped the Kearney machine and demanded a light. When Kearney refused they shot and killed him and started up the road, carrying Mrs. Kearney and her son, Robert, with them.

Robert grappled with them. They shot him through the head and tossed him from the car. His condition is critical.

A minute later the bandits threw Mrs. Kearney from the speeding machine. She suffered serious injuries.

Later the bandits drove the Kearney car into a pole and wrecked it. They then stole another car belonging to Henry Doloff, a farmer.

At this point an armed steel truck containing the air mail pouches filled with $500,000 in currency and securities passed the robbers, who had been injured so severely in their two accidents that they did not attempt to stage a hold-up. They fled to Doloff's car, which is believed to be the automobile found in Newark this morning.

Police believe one of the robbers was "Bum" Rogers, notorious bandit who escaped from Sing Sing prison a few months ago.

SHERIFF ARRESTS YOUNGSTOWN MAN

Max Suggars, Youngstown, claiming to be a Mahoning county deputy sheriff, is being held in jail here upon orders of Sheriff George Wright following his arrest just north of Stop 55 on the Lincoln Highway about 6:30 o'clock this morning. A charge, the sheriff said, will be filed this afternoon.

According to the sheriff, Suggars was flagging automobiles on the Longs' Run hill, north of Stop 55. The prisoner's shirt and clothing were covered with blood, the result, he claimed, of a fight with two other men, who had disappeared when the sheriff reached the scene. Suggars said that he and three or four friends had spent the night at a camp in Madison township and were on their way back to East Liverpool in an automobile when one of the party assaulted him.

Dr. Albert Michaels, who examined Suggars at the city hall, found his injuries to consist of a minor laceration on the nose. His brother, Frank Suggars, was to come here from Youngstown this afternoon to arrange for the prisoner's release.

Police Chief Fultz Winner In Appellate Court Fight

District Tribunal, Meeting in Youngstown Overrules Wellsville City's Motion for Stay of Execution Until November.

Chief of Police John H. Fultz, of Wellsville, dismissed from office on March 19, last, by Mayor W. L. Fogo, and reinstated five months and 15 days later by order of Common Pleas Judge W. H. Spence, of Lisbon, will stay on the job, at least until the November session of the court of appeals, as a result of a ruling made from the appellate bench at Youngstown today.

Judges L. T. Farr, John Pollock and J. W. Roberts overruled the motion of the city of Wellsville for a stay of execution of the decision of the Columbiana county court order, holding that Fultz should perform his duties as head of the police department until the case can be heard on its merits.

The court did not pass upon the Fultz motion to dismiss the city's petition in error.

In the event, the city of Wellsville, which gave notice of appeal in common pleas court, files a transcript in the interim, the question of a new trial shall be determined at the Lisbon session of the appellate tribunal.

The city of Wellsville was represented yesterday afternoon in Youngstown when arguments were heard on the stay of execution motion by Solicitor S. C. Luccock and the East Liverpool law firm of Cochran and Crawford.

Attorneys W. A. O'Grady, of Wellsville, and Ben L. Bennett and F. E. Grosshans, of East Liverpool, counsel for Fultz, opposed the motion.

STEAMSHIP, WITH 400 PASSENGERS ABOARD, IS AFIRE AT QUARANTINE

Fireboat W. J. Gaynor, Answering S. O. S. Calls, Pours Water Into Byron's Hold as They Come Up Bay Together.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The national Greek liner Byron, fire raging in her aft hold, today raced up the bay and brought her crew of 200 to safety at quarantine.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The S. S. Byron, with more than 400 passengers aboard, was afire today at quarantine, with water being poured into her hold by the fireboat William J. Gaynor.

The Byron, from Piracus, Greece, sent out an SOS early this morning that she was ablaze off Ambrose Channel lightship. The Gaynor rushed to her assistance, and poured water into her as they came up the bay together.

The first SOS was received by naval communications shortly after 6 o'clock, and the Gaynor was ordered out. The Byron was then just outside the harbor, and asked that tugs be sent to her assistance.

The ship is of British registry. She sailed from Grece on Sept. 17, and was due to dock here this afternoon.

The Byron carried among her passengers a number of American citizens returning from Greece. She is a vessel of 9,272 gross tonnage, 470 feet long, with 58 foot beam. She is an oil burner, and flies the British flag, despite her Greek ownership. The ship was built in 1914 in Birkenhead, Scotland.

500 HOMELESS IN FLOOD-STRICKEN ILLINOIS TOWN CALL FOR CLOTHING

Swollen River, Apparently at Standstill Last Night, Continues Its Invasion of Beardstown

While flood waters continued to menace cities and towns and exact their toll of property and crop damage in central Illinois, other sections of the mid-west today were counting the cost as the high water which has for days inundated sections of the three states receded.

Three lives were claimed by the high water.

In Oklahoma and Kansas, early estimates placed the damage at over $2,000,000.

Missouri, it was believed from a preliminary survey will pay almost $500,000 tribute to the storms.

No accurate estimate of the damage in Illinois is possible, although farm bureaus say it will run into millions.

Beardstown, center of the Illinois flood area, today faced possible annihilation as the waters, fed by swollen up-state streams, continued to rise.

BEARDSTOWN, Ill., Oct. 5.—"Send clothing and blankets," was the plea from flood-stricken Beardstown today as the swollen Illinois river continued its invasion of the city. Five hundred homeless face inadequate warmth if cooler weather comes and relief organizations today will start gathering stores from the bounty of all Illinois.

The river, which late last night appeared to have been at a standstill, again started to climb today and waters approaching the city from the rear were only fifty feet from the flood marching through the city.

Meanwhile an estimate places the property loss at more than the half million mark and still mounting. Homes are ruined, merchants' stocks of goods are damaged or ruined and

Ontario Woman Hurt When Autos Crash At Intersection

Mrs. Harry Judy, Walkerville, Ontario, received a minor injury to her arm in a collision between two automobiles at the intersection of Jackson and West Fifth streets at 10 o'clock last night.

Mrs. Judy and her husband, at the wheel of the machine, her two children and her brother-in-law, Ellsworth Judy, were enroute to their home after a few days' visit with local friends when the accident occurred. Judy, who was traveling north on Jackson street, claims that he came to a stop when he reached Fifth street and then started to make the turn west when Roberts, driving a Buick sedan, crashed into him.

The side of the Judy machine was crushed, the body, running board and fender being damaged. Roberts' car was disabled. Both men reported at the city hall this morning for an investigation into the accident. No charges have been filed.

27 BELIEVED DEAD AS BLAST TRAPS 31 MEN IN COAL MINE

Four Bodies Removed From Rockwood, Tenn., Shaft.

HOPE ABANDONED

Four Miners are Rescued But They May Die.

By WALTER RATLIFF.

ROCKWOOD, Tenn., Oct. 5.—The danger of another gas explosion loomed today as rescue workers slowly penetrated their way into the workings of the Roane Iron Company's coal mine here, seeking to recover the bodies of 23 miners.

All hope for recovery alive of the men, trapped by a gas explosion yesterday has been abandoned. The gas fumes issued forth in great waves and leaders of rescue operations expressed fear that the coal has caught fire and that there was a possibility of another explosion at any moment.

Four bodies have been recovered while the body of another miner was located but could not be brought to the surface because of the deadly fumes. The bodies recovered are: Harry Lingo, head blown off; George Riddle, Hector Smith and Will Elliott, Jr. The body of the fifth miner was believed to be G. C. Stevens.

The number of men trapped by the blast has been definitely established at 31.

Deadly Fumes Hamper Work.

Four were rescued last night, and four bodies were recovered, leaving a total of 23 still in the mine, all of whom are believed dead.

T. E. Cash, of the federal bureau of mines in Birmingham, Ala., has arrived here with a crew of 12 men in a special car and has taken charge of rescue work.

The deadly fumes hampered the work of bringing the bodies to the surface.

Several hundred people are grouped about the mouth of the mine, which is on the side of a high hill. Guards are stationed along the road to keep the crowd away from the entrance.

Four miners have been rescud but may die.

According to Deputy Mine Inspector A. J. Holden, who is directing the rescue work, there is not the slightest chance of finding any of the remaining victims alive.

"If they were not killed by the explosion, they are certain to have succumbed to the deadly black after damp," Holden said.

At an early hour today the rescue workers were still about 1,500 feet from the spot where the remaining mine victims are entombed and it was not expected that any more bodies would be recovered for several hours.

Blast Three Miles Underground.

The explosion occurred about three miles below the surface at exactly the same spot where a similar explosion last year took the lives of ten men.

Mal King, sole survivor of last year's disaster, was a member of the first rescue party to enter the mine. Other rescue crews were quickly formed and entered the mine with oxygen helmets two hours after the explosion.

One rescue party came upon E. G.

WITH COUNT ONE-ALL, CARDINALS AND YANKS CLASH IN ST. LOUIS

Reuther Probably Will Oppose Rhem or Reinhardt on Mound as World Series Hostilities are Switched From New York City to Missouri Metropolis.

Mound City, Given First National Pennant Winner and Classic Contender in 38 Years, is Baseball Mad as Hornsby and Company Face Huggins' Stalwarts.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—An hour before the scheduled start of the third game of the world series this afternoon, rain began to fall and showed every indication of continuing for some time. It soaked the diamond, before ground keepers could lay tarpaulins on the field and it chased all the athletes to cover. Thousands of fans in the open stands were soaked and some of them replied by rushing the higher priced seats which were under cover.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—The festive board was laid this afternoon for an old home week barbecue and St. Louis tucked a napkin under its chin, clutched a knife and fork firmly in either hand and fell upon the feast with the gusto of a man who knows what it means to go hungry. Even a shower of rain could not dampen the enthusiasm. For 38 lean years St. Louis had lived on a diet of bread and water which might be healthful in the extreme but not necessarily sustaining.

They Don't Mind the Rain.

It was not to be stopped by a dash of rain now.

The entrees, the sweetbreads, the caviar and all the fixings, were to come in a gastronomic rush this afternoon, with the staging of the third game of the 1926 classic between the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Yankees. And a little rain meant nothing. Never before in world's series history had St. Louis been the scene and it conducted itself accordingly.

Thirty-six thousand roaring, raving but normally sane citizens acted as delegates for the entire state of Missouri to the convention of joy and the possibilities that bad weather might intervene or that the Cardinals might lost and thus stake the Yanks to the edge on the series at two victories to one, were not given the consideration of a fleeting moment.

Sky Has Brooding Aspect.

In fact, the gods seemed to relent after giving this evidence of their whimsicalities and the rain closed almost as abruptly as it began. However, the sky maintained its brooding aspect.

The average St. Louisan, however, felt that the fates, having decreed that Cardinals were to win a pennant, could not be so inconsistent as to mar the celebration in any way. The average St. Louisan felt that St. Louis could not and wouldn't go wrong.

It was for this reason that St. Louis romped over the civic premises last night and this morning in the most amazing demonstration ever promoted by an American city. For this reason, also, they stood in patient, waiting lines at the general admission gates from sunset to dawn and beyond and the same motive prompted them to bet 6 to 5 on their favorite ball club in large gobs of money.

Pitching Choices.

It was deemed that either Flint Rhem or Jess Haines, fast ball experts, could repeat Alexander's victory of Sunday. As far as this town was concerned, Hornsby had three choices and all of them were right.

Dutch Ruether was said to be Mr. Huggin's nominee, the vest pocket manager being enamored of the idea that what the left handed Pennock did on Saturday, the equally left handed Ruether could do today.

The Cards appeared on the field at 11:45 and approximately 36,000 souls suffered a sudden attack of semi-dementia.

HERE ARE THIRD BATTLE FACTS

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—Facts about the third game of the world series:

Time of game: 1:30, Central standard time.

Place: Sportsman's Park.

Participants: New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals.

Series standing: Teams even up with each one game won.

Probable pitchers: Reuther for Yankees, Rhem or Haines for Cardinals.

Weather: Partly cloudy.

CIVIL ACTION IN CITY COURT

Civil action of W. S. Williamson against J. L. and Fannie Smith for $815 alleged to be due him for wages, was placed on trial in municipal court today.

The case is being heard by a jury of six persons—three men and three women. Attorney P. V. Mackall is counsel for Williamson, while Smith is represented by Attorney Ben L. Bennett. Indications at noon were that the case would not go to the jury until late this afternoon.

Jack Kearns Has His Day in Court; Dempsey on Stand

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 5.—Jack Kearns was having his day in court today.

Jack Dempsey, former world's heavyweight fighting champion, was forced to the witness stand in chancery court here today over the vehement protests of his attorneys, and became an instant target for a legal barrage more punishing than the barrage of Gene Tunney's fists 10 days ago.

It was Kearns' chance, through his squadron of high-pressure attorneys, to find out where Dempsey's money is, particularly the money Dempsey got for the Tunney fight, and the attorneys worked in relays in a desperate volley of questions to find out. Up to noon they worked in vain.

PRIMARY LAW IS DENOUNCED BY C. L. KNIGHT

Akron Publisher Urges Modification of Present System.

Charges Eight Per Cent of Electorate Can Name Candidates.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 5.—A scathing denunciation of the present primary law was voiced by C. L. Knight of Akron, sponsor of a proposed constitutional amendment modifying the primary law and chairman of the primary referendum committee, in an address before the annual meeting of the select list of Ohio newspapers here yesterday.

Knight declared the primary "never had a place in representative government," and charged it had led to an "orgy of bloc rule." Pointing out the primary has been in general operation for 15 years, Knight added: "Has is lessened corruption, has it increased the ability or the fidelity of the public official, has it reduced the cost or improved the quality of government?"

"To ask that question is to answer it," he continued. "Pennsylvania speaks to us in the eloquent language of failure. Illinois shows us how the great corporations find it an instrument ready made for their hand, to place their faithful servants in high places."

Only 15 per cent of the people turn out at the primary and thus eight per cent of the total electorate can name the candidates, Knight said. "These candidates cannot be known to any considerable part of the people and consequently the voter chooses at random unless he has special guidance," Knight asserted. "Here is where the groups and blocs get in their work."

"The primary should be modified to improve the situation," declared, "adding the proposed amendment would retain whatever protection the primary is calculated to give."

"This amendment simply seeks to provide a convention system but it expressly states the delegates to such convention must be elected at primaries," he explained.

"MEN OF STEEL" IS GREAT FILM

Milton Sills Scores in Screen Hit at American.

First National's long heralded photoplay, "Men of Steel," opened last night at the American theatre. It was worth waiting for.

Milton Sills, who is credited with the authorship of the story, is seen in the starring role, and incidentally in what this writer considers his greatest screen performance.

Sills is magnificent. He starts out an ignorant laborer in an iron mine. He finishes as boss of a steel mill and son-in-law to the steel mill owner. And what a course he runs in getting there!

Here you have everything that a motion picture fan's heart could possibly desire. There is beautiful romance, wonderful love story, spectacles in the steel mills that make your heart leap up, action and then more action, laughs, settings that simply hold you spellbound and thrills that most motion picture producers dream of but seldom put on the screen. What more could you ask?

Sills has one of the finest cas's that one could hope to see assembled. Doris Kenyon in the leading woman's role does the best work we have seen from her on the screen.

Mae Allison, lovely Mae, is superb, and George Fawcett, Frank Currier, Victor McLaglen and John Kolb do much to make the picture a success.

Westminster Abbey Stone Presented to Smoky City Church

LONDON.—One of the most ancient stones of Westminster Abbey, first used in 1200, has been presented to the new church of St. Mary, Beaver Falls, Pittsburgh.

"It must not be thought," says Canon Storr, of Westminster Abbey, that we give away anything that can be used further in the work of restoration."

"When we receive a request from an American church for a gift from the actual fabric, we send them something which, though possessing all the historic associations of the Abbey, cannot be utilized further in repair work. Sometimes it is a block of marble sometimes a piece of mason's work or woodwork. Whatever it is, our American friends always express their appreciation and delight."

FOR Sour Stomach PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Hereafter instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

Better Than Soda

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drug store. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

GLITTER

BOOK THREE—XI.

Jock did not reply, and his eyes fell from hers, to her white fingers that played restlessly at her thoat. He felt numb. A sort of mental paralysis, that enabled him to hear and see but not to think, seemed to have settled on him. "It's been just a lot of words," he told himself, "and they're true, yet they don't mean anything. I don't feel anything. Good Lord, what's the matter with me? I ought to feel something—one way or the other—"

Yvonne's voice began again, rather breathlessly. "I'm sorry. But you'll have to believe it now, because it's so. I've been his mistress for over a year. He gave me that limousine, and these rings, and the clothes I have on, and he paid for my apartment. . . . I thought I had what I wanted. Money; and everything—money buys. But you see, I didn't leave room in my calculatoins for one thing, Jock Hamill. I didn't know I'd ever meet you, and love you, and wish—oh, wish so!—that I'd kept myself for you. I'm realizing, a long while too late, that money doesn't really amount to much—that love is the only thing that matters."

"Just one more thing I want to tell you," Yvonne said. "I've left him. I left him in Califronia, to come here and tell this to you, and I've moved from his apartment, and tomorrow I'll just like to have you know that I'll never belong to him again, even if—even if you don't want me—" arrests, point to "tapped on the gas" in the 27-day ending Septem- ... issued today showed. ... the vill ro... want me—"

She stood up, and Jock from his seat on the steps raised his eyes blankly to her white set face. "Just one more thing I want to tell you," she said. "I've left him. I left him in California, to come here and tell this to you, and I've moved from his apartment, and tomorrow I'm going to get rid of his car. I—I'd just like to have you know that I'll never belong to him again, even if—even if you don't want me—"

Jock gave a harsh, unintelligible cry then, and got to his feet. But she would not let him speak. "No, don't. I want you to think, before you say anything. I'm going to leave you for a little while, s oyou can. And bye and bye, when you've made up your mind—come and tell me—I'll be waiting—"

A minute later he was alone on the porch of the cottage called Paradise.

XII.

"First," he thought, "I've got to make myself realize."

He sat down again, and with his back against a post, and crossed his arms on his up-propped knees and looked straight ahead. He gave his imagination full play. He goaded it deliberately, and made it, unwillingly, listen at doors and peep through keyholes. . . . And suddenly anguish smote him like a bolt, searing his every nerve. He shut his eyes tight, as though by this gesture he would erase the visions of his mind. He groaned, and dropped his forehead to rest on his crossed arms. And so for a time he sat still as stone, suffering unutterably . . . because a dream, a lovely priceless thing, had died. . . .

How long he remained thus he never knew; whether an interval to be measured in minutes or in hours. Or in years. It seemed to him that he lived years while he sat there. "Oh, well," he reflected grimly, "I suppose that's what 'growing up' means. Losing your faith in people and things you'd staked your life on, once." . . . After a while this thought drew another from the whirling tumult of his brain and set it up for him to examine. Would he ever have staked his life on Yvonne's integrity? Hadn't there always been a little lurking suspicion somewhere deep within him? . . . He recalled a thousand things she had said and done, a thousand irrelevances that had rapped at his consciousness and been stubbornly denied admittance. All so obvious now, he wondered how he could have overlooked them. "Because I tried to." That was it, of course. He had been at great pains to overlook them. "Love is blind only because it ties its own bandage over its own eyes" . . .

"Well, he couldn't overlook them any more. Never any more. It was as though he had seen Yvonne only by moonlight before, and now he saw her in a cruel white calcium glare. She was older, by the calcium glare. And wiser. And wearier. But was she any less desirable? Did he love her any less? There. That was the question that had to be settled, and soon. "Do I love her any less?"

He rehearsed again all the things she had told him, carefully . . . and this time pity overrode his pain. "Rotten. Life's treated her rotten. She hasn't had a fair break, not a single one, since the beginning. Her mother and father dying, and the atmosphere of that town she lived in, and then the fellow in the war. And that second marriage—" After all, could you blame her? Could you blame her no whatter what she did? He demanded it aloud of the empty air. "You can't blame her, can you?"

And then, because the near sea seemed to laugh and mock at him, he grew angry, and began to denounce himself. "Who are you to blame her, anyway? You. . . . Why, damn it to hell, you're not so almighty good yourself, remember! You've done things yourself. And without any justification, like she had. Just to be vile. Just to satisfy your lousy low-down vile curiosity!" Crashing clear as though it were yesterday, a prep school memory came back to him. A house in a sinister street. Himself and two other stealthy, shivering youngsters, creeping there in the night . . . and the sick disillusionment, ugly, intolerable, that had followed. . . . When they left he had turned frantically and picked up a rock, and hurled it through that leering window . . .

And there were other memories. Not many, but a few. Little dark splotches down the margins of fair pages. . . .

"God damn you!" he choked. "Why, you're not fit to kiss her shoes. . . . And look! She doesn't ask what you've done. She doesn't care what you've done. 'Love is the only thing that matters.' She loves you. Enough to leave everything and come to you, and tell you—she didn't have to tell you. She could have lied and lied, and you'd have believed every word. But because she wouldn't lie to you, you sit like this, like a smug saint with a halo, and dare to judge her! She was too fine to lie. She wouldn't stoop to that. And here you are . . ."

He pitched sideways and lay face downward on the porch, humbled and penitent. He whispered, barely audible: "Oh, Yvonne — sweetheart—forgive me, you'll have to forgive me for this! It was just that I worshiped you so. Put you in a shrine, and thought you weren't human. And then—someone else's arms—it killed me to think of you in some one else's arms. . . . But that's over. You're mine now. Mine!" He chattered it fiercely. "Mine! My wife! That's what you're going to be. And nobody else will ever so much as touch your hand."

He held then a little requiem over the past. He divided the things Yvonne had said, putting the ones that had stung him away into permanent oblivion, repeating the ones that were precious over and over, so that his lips should chisel them into the enduring tablets of his memory. . . . After a long time he stood up, laboriously, like a man just out of a sickbed. He walked down the steps to the beach.

There was a weather-beaten wharf not a great distance away, and there he caught sight of Yvonne, standing on its far edge, gazing out at the ocean. Yvonne in her white fur . . . and she had taken off her hat, so that her hair was like the torch of a slender white candle. Yvonne. So beautiful. So glittering beautiful . . .

And there was no problem in his mind any more. Nothing but a resolution, and a desire, and a new sharp ecstasy.

He began to run toward her, stumbling a little in the sand.

Sick Man Offers $50 For Stomach Medicine

"I was a sufferer from indigestion until a druggist advised me to try Adlerika. The results have been wonderful. I eat anything, and can do a big day's work without feeling tired. I wouldn't be without Adlerika if it cost $50 a bottle."—R. C. Culver.

Unlike most medicines, Adlerika acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowel, giving the intestines a REAL cleansing and bringing out old poisonous matter you never thought was in your system. Even if bowels move daily, you will be surprised how much more old matter Adlerika brings out which may have been causing all your trouble. In slight disorders, like occasional constipation, GAS bloating, indigestion or sick headache, ONE spoonful always brings relief.

Adlerika is a compound of the best saline intestinal cleanser with glycerine, buckthorn, cascara, and other gas-expelling and detergent elements. It is excellent for Intestinal Stasis, a disease due to modern ways of living and which is often the true cause of sour stomach, gas bloating, nervous dyspepsia and restless sleep.

Doctors Praise Adlerika.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York: "Adlerika, in addition to its intestinal cleansing, checks the growth of intestinal bacteria."

Dr. A. C. Curl: "I prescribe Adlerika with highly satisfactory results."

Dr. J. Weaver: "In my 50 years' practice I have found nothing to excel Adlerika."

J. E. Puckett: "After using Adlerika, I feel better than for 20 years. Awful impurities were eliminated from my system.'

Dr. F. M. P. (name withheld by request): "I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose."

No matter what you have tried for your stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you. At leading druggists. In East Liverpool at the Economy Drug Store and other Druggists.

Joyful Insanity In St. Louis

A 38-year-wait for a pennant-winning and possible world's championship team has culminated in joyful insanity for the greater part of the population of St. Louis, judging from newspaper reports today of the reception accorded Rogers Hornsby and his Cardinals when they returned to the Missouri metropolis last night with the count one-all in the baseball classic.

The victorious red birds were literally and figuratively mobbed as they stepped from their special train following a 24-hour journey from the Yankee stadium in New York, where on Saturday and Sunday they played the first games of the series that it is determine who who's in the national pastime.

Staging what was probably the greatest celebration the city has witnessed since that memorable Nov. 11, 1918, when the cables flashed the news that the armistice had been signed, declaring an end to hostilities in the World War, 100,000 baseball-mad fans jammed the railroad yards and streets to welcome the Hornsby club. Bombs, whistles, horns, bells and yelling combined to make it a noisy greeting. Music rendered by two bands was drowned in the spontaneous outburst of cheering. Manager Hornsby, Grover Cleveland Alexander, shunted down the river by Chicago, and Billy Southworth, discarded Giant player whose home run smash made victory certain in the second clash, were the cynosure of all eyes. And they were patted on the back and even kissed by the delirious populace.

With enthusiasm at such a high pitch, the Cardinals should be in a happy mood when they trot onto the field this afternoon for the third battle of the classic. And every man, woman and child in the National league city is bubbling over with confidence. And this means much from a standpoint of morale, and may prove an all-important factor in deciding the championship.

Only His Life

Are we losing our active interest in politics? Registration reports from many states in the last few months seem to indicate that we are—if we ever had any.

In Cleveland, the first day of registration for the state elections showed that about 22,000 voters out of a total of 300,000 had registered. While succeeding registration days will increase the roll, nothing like a full vote is expected when election day comes. Similar apathy is reported throughout the state. Men and women alike seem indifferent.

One reason given for the lack of interest is that it is "only a state election." "Only a state election," with everything involved from the governorship down, including the personnel of the courts, and representation at Washington.

In any city or state the voters will have exactly the kind of government which they bring about. Can we afford to lose interest in what concerns us so closely? Yet he who does not register cannot vote. Which is to say, he cannot have any say about the conditions under which he lives his own life.

Thursday, Oct. 7, is the next registration day in East Liverpool.

Legends Of The Air

In regard to a prophecy of air service across the Atlantic in 20 years, the Toronto Globe remarks that Lord Tennyson said something of the kind some 50 years years ago when he had "dipt into the future far as human eye could see" and "saw the heavens filled with commerce, argosies of magic sails, pilots of the purple twilight, dropping down with costly bales."

Was this prophecy, pure and simple, or a bit of that mysterious race memory into which poets sometimes seem to dip?

We pride ourselves on the novelty of our inventions, and think never in the world's history were any people so scientific and wonderful. Yet there are oriental legends which through the centuries have always refused to down, that the people of Atlantis that continent supposed to have been submerged beneath what is now the Atlantic Ocean, and from which the ocean gets its name, had not only airplanes but many inventions as far beyond ours as ours are beyond the means of transportation in the middle ages.

The people perished, these legends tell, because their moral and spiritual natures were not fitted to cope with their materially advancing minds. This may, of course, happen to us likewise, but if there is any safety in analogy, we have some hundreds of thousands of years yet to go. Meantime, we might just possibly grow up out of our present childishness in the conduct of human relations.

"Hazard of Death by Auto Gaining." When all the drivers have learned to drive, and all the walkers have learned to keep on walking slowly in the same direction, and all the children have learned not to dash out from behind parked cars, and all the fools who take chances with trains have been killed off, there may be a different tale to tell.

Let the gloomy dean rave on about the imminent disintegration of the British Empire. As long as Canada, Australia and New Zealand refuse to take him seriously, Uncle Sam should worry and add a wrinkle!

"Brussels Sprouts Opposition to Coal and Iron Cartel" says a New York World head. Well, well! And will Briand and Stresemann "turnip" this sprouting opposition and "beet" into chards?

The Terrible Tempered Mr Bang — By Fontaine Fox

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Melancholy touches tenements in the Fall. It is a prelude to winter and its hardships. Sidewalks are filled with little kindling wagons stacked high with old scraps of fuel picked up here and there.

Cellars become coal shops where patrons purchase by the basket. Many children are sewed up for the winter and will not have a bath until "the red, red robin comes bob, bob, bobbin' along." Old men and women must move from their doorway chairs.

Windows that droopd with gossiping woman are closed. The tenement—like the Arctic—enters the long night. The fight to live becomes a grim problem. Children are denied the only playground they know—the asphalted street.

The ominous and straggly breadline begins slowly to galvanize into a compact procession, for no matter the state of national prosperity—the breadline is always with us. Westward, gaiety is at its pitch, but in the slums it has touched bottom.

That stagnant army that lazes through summer and makes a pretense of work in winter drifts to the labor agencies in the dispirited manner of those who seek obs but hope not to find them. And the laughter of women is muffled.

But the greatest hardship is among children. Tenement youngsters make their own amusement—chalked hop scotch games on the pavement, dancing to vagrant hurdy gurdys and the like, but with cold weather they must remain in cheerless and often windowless rooms.

The fire escapes with their tiny potted plants, balloon bedding and flapping wet wash become stark and ugly. A brooding silence seems to fall. The steel criers' bells are stilled. Nothing matters until April comes again.

The professional Southerner seems to have left Broadway flat. He fitted the day of the swing door saloon and the mint julep where strangers sat with strangers without suspicion. He had an amiable weakness for hard liquor, simulated a Dixie drawl, wore boiled shirts, shoe string ties, wide hats and talked of selling "niggahs" by the boatload down at Natchez. His job was in reality hustling for confidence men, wire tappers and all the unlovely brood that lived by their wits. He had a high-born manner that was most disarming and when he had introduced "comeons" to the wolves his work was done. He was usually outside the law.

Definition of a Broadway night club: "Where stage people who think they are important are gazed upon by out of town folk who have no idea who they are."

It strikes me the most lugubrious job in New York is that of the usher in those funeral parlors in midtown. They wear Tuxedos and stand about in the manner of floor walkers escorting visitors to see the remains. They must at all times have a funeral expression, support swooning women and attempt gently to silence shrieks. That best seller title "All these sad young men" fits them perfectly. Many are on duty at night standing dreamily in the rather brilliantly lighted parlors in sullen silhouette awaiting another wagon.

Word drifts from London that Tallulah Bankhead is enjoying as great popularity as a London star as Mrs. Pat Campbell ever did. She left New York because there were no engagements. Tongues wagged. Miss Bankhead, they whispered, was through as an actress. That was two years ago and today she is the toast of London.

Food Consumption Decreases.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 5.—One of the troubles of the American farmer is the decrease in the per capita food consumption of the people of the United States. Food production in general is steadily increasing, but the farmer does not have the market for the stuff he grows that he would have if the people of the country ate as much per capita as they did fifteen or twenty years ago.

A striking instance of this is the decline since 1904 in the per capita consumption of flour, as shown by statistics compiled by the Department of Agriculture. Prior to 1904, per capita consumption of flour in the United States changed very little, but between that year and 1923 it is found to have declined over 21 per cent.

This means that in the last year of this period the country consumed approximately 26,800,000 barrels less of flour than it would have used if the 1904 rate of per capita consumption had been maintained. This amount is said to be greater than the total flour exports of the United States in any twelve months of its history, save for one year during the war, and more than double the average annual exports for the ten years prior to the war.

In a study of the causes responsible for the decline in per capita flour consumption, made by the Food Research Institute, it was found that the more important factors have been a tendency to replace the cereals with sugar, a tendency to a more diversified diet, a shift to more expensive foods as a result of the increased prosperity of the laboring classes, and a decrease in the total food requirements per capita of the American people.

In explanation of this last factor it may be pointed out that it does not mean that the national appetite is falling off, but that on an average the people of the country do not need as much food today as they did a few years ago. An analysis of why this is true has brought out many interesting facts—as interesting as they are important if wholly dependable.

The Calories We Need.

Food consumption is usually treated in terms of energy value, and the energy values of foods are customarily measured in calories, a calorie being the amount of energy required in the form of heat to raise the temperature of one gram of water from zero to one degree Centigrade. The energy derived from food is mostly used in four different ways. First is the energy required to carry on the normal body functions when the person is at rest in a warm room; this is technically termed the "basal metabolism." Second is the energy used to maintain the body temperature when in a cool environment, next is that required for physical work, and, finally, that which a growing child, or an adult who is increasing in weight stores up in the form of fat or other body tissue.

A man of 160 pounds with customary clothing in a temperature around 60 degrees, Fahrenheit, with light work and incidental activity such as that of a professional man, a teacher, or a salesman, ordinarily requires from 2400 to 2700 calories per day. If the temperature is lowered without additional protection through added clothing, the caloric requirement increases, and similarly in the case of additional physical work. Medium-hard physical work increases the requirement to 3500 calories, still harder work calls for 1000 more, and the most arduous occupations bring the figure up to as much as 8000. Boys from 14 to 18 years of age who are in school and engaging actively in games and sports consume about 5000 calories.

Many people have the idea that the amount of food a person eats depends upon taste, or appetite, and habit, and in most cases far exceeds his actual food requirement. The experts who have been delving into the problem say, however, that as a matter of fact every normal individual who is maintaining a constant weight is unconsciously regulating his eating in accordance with his actual bodily requirements. The human animal, just like other animals, normally eats only what he really needs, based on his activities and the conditions under which he works and lives.

Therefore one of the big factors in the decrease in the per capita food consumption is the change in working and living conditions. The increasing substitution of machinery for manual labor in many lines is to be noted. Steam shovels, automatic stokers for boilers, mechanical ditch-digging machines, conveyors in factories, agricultural machinery, and many other mechanical devices have been taking the place of man-power and increasing the proportion of the population engaged in tending machines, clerking, and other sedentary occupations requiring much less physical exertion, with the result that the human engine, having on the average less work to do, requires less fuel.

Fewer Men Are At Hard Work.

Another thing that is significant from the point of view of effect on food consumption is the decline in the percentage of workers engaged in agriculture, forestry, and related industries—from 47 per cent of the total in 1870 to 26 per cent in 1920. These are all occupations in which a large proportion of the workers are engaged in tasks requiring severe physical exertion, and a large share of their work

OUR INSTITUTIONS APPROVED

A candidate for citizenship came to a naturalization bureau in York to take out his first papers. The applicant was a Russian who spoke badly-broken English and was apparently eager to become a voter in the shortest possible time. With him was a friend and sponsor from the East Side.

Under examination the candidate betrayed a tremendous lack of knowledge of national history and institutions and public men. Finally the examiner turned to his companion:

"Here," he said testily, "this man's ignorance is appalling. Take him away and explain something to him about the Constitution and the government of the United States. Don't bring him back until he is better qualified."

The East-Sider led his crestfallen fellow-countryman away. Within an hour they both returned.

"Hello," said the examiner, "what brings you here again?"

"Everything is all right," stated the East Sider. "I took my friend out and read to him out of the Constitution, and he says he likes it first-rate."

ASK COUNTY FOR ROAD AID

Propose Improvement of Road to Yellow Creek.

A petition containing 120 names, to which was attached a memorandum from the Chamber of Commerce of Wellsville has been received by the county commissioners which requests the improvement of the Wellsville-Steubenville road, from the Columbiana-Jefferson county line to the Wellsville corporate line.

The commissioners were asked to give this road direct attention during the early part of 1927, and after the petition had been received and filed, E. S. Woolweaver and D. R. James, who presented the petition, were advised that the subject would be given the attention asked for at an early date.

Late Monday afternoon this proposed improvement was discussed by the commissioners, but no definite conclusions were announced. Because of the increased traffic that will eventually pass over this road, following the completion of the road over the "Narrows" the commissioners are of the opinion that conference will have to be held with the management of the Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company before any definite plans for the improvement of this narrow road can be worked up.

No denial is made of the fact that the Clark avenue extension in Wellsville is one of the worst pieces of roadway in the county. The commissioners have from time to time during the last year discussed this proposed improvement and although a number of suggestions have been advanced for the improvement of the new highway, plans have not yet been ordered.

I ALWAYS KEEP PLANT JUICE HANDY IN HOUSE

"During My 10 Years Suffering, It's Only Medicine That Ever Helped Me," Says Canton, O., Woman.

"During my ten years of suffering, Dillingham's Plant Juice is the only medicine that ever helped me," said Mrs. Thomas Bair, 208 Walker street, N. E., Canton, O.

"I always keep a bottle of it handy," she continued, "because just one dose will relieve any trouble I may have with my stomach. For years I thought I had heart trouble but Plant Juice proved to me that my suffering was due to my food fermenting, causing gas and those dizzy spells that made me turn white and faint and which, on one occasion, caused me to fall, injuring myself so severely I was confined to my bed for weeks.

"Had I known of Plant Juice before I did, it would have saved me many a dollar and hours of suffering, as it has improved my digestion so much that what I eat now digests properly. My food nourishes me like it ought to and all my old troubles are gone, since I took this medicine. It has also rid my system of rheumatism and every pain, giving me hours of pleasure, instead of misery.

"Plant Juice just seems to act on the system in general, for it made me feel better all over. I'm never nervous any more, sleep well, my constipation has been relived and I have a great deal more strength.

"I am so much-healthier and happier now that I think Plant Juice is simply a grand medicine and should have a place in every home."

Plant Juice is sold in East Liverpool by Mathews' Original Cut Rate, 129 W. Sixth St. and by all leading druggists everywhere.

Why We Become Weak, Tired and Run-Down If Glands Fail

THOUSANDS drag through life always tired and worn-out, suffering with loss of energy and vitality, and fail to recognize the cause of their trouble. Medical authorities now know the trouble as "asthenia," and claim it is caused by an unbalanced glandular system or weakened glands.

Gland secretions are called hormones—mysterious messengers which science has discovered exert a remarkable influence on health, strength and vitality. When the glands function normally they supply these vitalizing hormones (or secretions) which are essential to physical well-being. And when the glands fail to function, health fails.

Now, glandular treatment, which is endorsed by eminent scientists and physicians of this country and Europe, is being used by thousands of men and women to help overcome a weakened, worn-out, run-down, exhausted condition, and to regain the strength, vigor and vitality that are the natural benefits resulting from a normal glandular system.

Glandogen, the new scientic gland tonic, provides a simple method of taking glandular treatment. Glandogen is prepared in convenient tablet form, for both men and women. Accept no substitutes. Insist on genuine Glandogen, the original gland tonic.

Mathews Cut Rate Store will supply you.

DEFER SUNDAY GRID BAN VOTE

Emergency Ordinance is Placed on First Reading.

City council last night deferred definite action on enactment of an emergency ordinance seeking to ban the playing of football here on Sunday.

Decision was reached after petitions containing the names of 869 electors, urging the ban, had been read by the clerk. It was passed unanimously on first reading after the solons defeated a motion to suspend the rules. The measure will be up for second reading on Monday, October 18.

Rev. A. E. Sims, pastor of the First Christian church; Rev. W. J. M. McKnight, pastor of the United Presbyterian church, and M. E. Eppley were the principal speakers advocating passage of the ordinance. Archie Dalrymple, manager of the football squad, and Harry L. Oyster, spoke against the proposal.

Speakers on both sides of the question were frequently interrupted by remarks from the spectators who crowded the council chamber. After adjournment several heated arguments were heard outside the building.

Mayor Frank H. Riley presided at the session.

MONTE BLUE FILM SUCCESS

"Across the Pacific" Wins Plaudits at Ceramic

"Across the Pacific," the Warner master-film now at the Ceramic theatre, is the first really big attraction to picture that phase of the Spanish-American war which includes the pursuit and capture of the rebel Aguinaldo, in the jungles of the Philippines. Great historic figures of the nineties, pictured in the film, are Colonel Roosevelt, George Dewey, Colonel Funston, and Aguinaldo himself, the latter being the only one of that courageous company still living.

America's husky favorite, Monte Blue, is starred, playing the part of a Southern boy, who, after an unavoidable misunderstanding with his sweetheart, leaves his Kentucky home, enlisting with a California regiment for service across the Pacific. A native girl, Roma, played by Myrna Loy, is enamored of the young volunteer from the States, and Funston, knowing the girl to be in possession of Aguinaldo's secrets, consigns Monte to the uncomfortable task of winning information from the girl by pretense of love for her.

The Kentucky sweetheart, played with charming naivete by Jane Winton, comes with her father to the Philippines to make up the misunderstanding between herself and the unhappy soldier who cannot reveal to her the fact that his love for Roma is official and not personal. The capture of Aguinaldo, after much hardship and many thrilling aventures with the Filipino snipers, lead to the reunion of the couple, who return to the Blue Grass country, and to the up-to-date thrill of joy-riding on a "bicycle built for two!"

Much credit is due Roy Del Ruth, who directed the filming of "Across the Pacific." Possibly a thousand people are used, several regiments of soldiers, Filipinos and all the motely crowd of the camps and the sea. The reproduction of native village and of tropical flora is marvelously done, the California beach serving quite as well for the seascapes as though taken from the Philippine shores themselves.

Blue grows more important and interesting in each of his many characterizations. Whether he appears as prizefighter or Parisian doctor, his characterization is authentic and believable. In "Across the Pacific" he is the rough-shod, khaki-clad American soldier, the fighting, loving gallivanting young-scamp, who finds his way to the hearts of his comrades and to the undying love of two women, of characters as widely different as their ace heredity and environment could have made them.

And my nerves were in such shape that I could not sit still a moment.

"Tanlac changed my life. Gave me strength and energy to live every day, every hour, happily, to do my housework without tiring. Salvatore M. Hino, business manager of the paper, also probably owes his life to the mysterious informant, as his office was near the spot where the grenade was hidden.

Just before the paper was about to go to press Hino's telephone rang and a man who did not give his name said he had just overheard two young men say they had placed a bomb in the hallways of Il Progresso. He called police, who found the bomb, its fuse burning and down to within an inch of a five-inch length of pipe filled with explosive. They plunged it into a fire bucket.

Boles and Ebbie Davis, unconscious from the effects of the gas, and the body of W. C. Elliott on a track about a quarter of a mile from the explosion.

A short while later, the party found William and Arthur Teague, brothers, who had escaped death by barricading themselves from the deadly fumes. They said they had made an effort to carry Boles to the brattice but had been forced to drop him when gas filled the chambers.

TAKE 3 26 Believed Dead

All Night Vigil.

Boles was left struggling and when found was in a critical condition, but physicians had hopes of saving his life. The other rescued men were soon completely recovered and able to assist in the rescue work.

Meanwhile an all-night vigil was maintained at the mouth of the mine by the tearful wives, children and other relatives of the entombed men. Hundreds of curious came from nearby towns for apparently no other reason except to look on.

The scene was pitiful. Wives and children stood about the entrance of the mine with tears streaming down their cheeks. The rescue of Davis, Boles and Teague brothers caused much rejoicing and served to build up the hopes temporarily that their loved ones might yet be saved.

"But as the light of another day came, many of the waiting ones went to their homes, exhausted but promising to come back when more information was available as to the progress of the rescue work.

Those still entombed are:

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Continuing the reactionary market for speculative stocks which closed yesterday's tive leaders declined to lower price session, practically all of the speculalevels in early trading today. A few of the high-priced rails and industrials broke 2 to 5 points on the first sales of the day, the list including General Motors, Dupont and Atlantic Coast Line. Professionals crowded the market with selling orders and prices with few exceptions turned sharply downward.

Money market conditions encouraged bearish movements against stock values. The weekly reserve board report on brokers' loans in this district showed a new gain of $50,000,000 suggesting to the speculative districts the transfer of stocks from "strong to weak hands." Call money renewals 5 per cent.

Industrial stocks firmly resisted bearish selling after the first half-hour. A number of prominent rally points were furnished, the list including General Motors, Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, Allied Chemical and Radio. These stocks advanced from 2 to 3 1-2 points above their opening prices. United States Steel was also a strong spot in the industrial list.

The decline in oil stocks brought Marland below 54 for the first time on the move, and other stocks in this group were unsettled by the new price cutting of gasoline in the south. The copper stocks, sugars and equipments were firm and fairly active. Cotton regained about a dollar a bale in the early trading.

Three Found Guilty In War Savings Stamp Conspiracy

Cleveland Men Face Penitentiary Sentences Ranging Upward From 15 Years Each.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 5.—A verdict of guilty was returned in federal court here today against J. E. Zottarreli, Dlajo Russo and Nick Salupo on indictments charging conspiracy to counteract war savings stamps. They were allowed bail of $15,000 each pending sentence in about 10 days.

The verdict brought a complete victory for the government in its case to round up a ring of counterfeiters who are alleged to have circulated spurious stamps.

The three defendants tried here are the last of several who have been convicted of participation in the affair at Chicago and elsewhere.

Zottarreli, who formerly was an attorney here, was found guilty on 12 counts in two indictments for counterfeiting and conspiring to circulate counterfeit stamps.

Russo was convicted on six counts under two indictments. Salupo will be sentenced for violation on two counts of an indictment charging participation in the plot.

The trio was charged with having passed the stamps by opening bank accounts with folders containing the fake stamps. Banks throughout the middlewest were victimized by their operations.

The defense sought to prove that the three indicted men had handled the stamps believing them to be genuine. District Attorney A. E. Berasteen countered with the argument that by profiting from the stamps in holders which did not belong to them, the trio was guilty.

The three face sentences ranging upward from 15 years each.

MISS VERA RENO IS MACK PLAYER

Miss Vera Reno, now appearing at the Strand theatre, with the Red Mack Players has been cast in many different roles. She has played all of the 'Mother' part in the many plays that have been presented, and at the same time can also play ingenue or young flapper. It seems a shame that such a charming little lady should spoil her pretty features with lines and colors, and take the role of 'Mother' to boys that in reality are several years her senior. But such is life behind the scenes.

Miss Reno is very popular with the local patrons. She is not only a capable actress, but also possesses a pleasing high soprano voice.

St. Louis Shrieks In Joy As Hornsby's Cardinals Return

Captain and Center Dick Larkins Will be Out of Lineup for Probably Three or Four Weeks as Result of Torn Ligaments in Left Shoulder; Next Contest at Toronto Oct. 16.

EFFORTS to schedule a contest for October 9, which has been on open date on the Blue and White schedule since the card was made up, having failed when it was impossible to obtain the appearance here of the strong Massillon scholastic eleven, Coach George Kidder will permit his team to rest Saturday, he announced today.

With several of the players suffering from bad bruises and other injuries of a temporary nature, the lay-off will not be taken with a great deal of regret, especially on account of the loss of Captain Dick Larkins, center.

Larkins did not receive any broken bones in the contest with Akron East here last Saturday, Coach Kidder announced today, but he is suffering from the effects of two torn ligaments and it is not likely that he will be able to resume his place in the Blue and White lineup for three or four weeks.

End McKee, who was forced to leave the field after a bang-up game last Saturday, was not badly hurt, as feared at first, and will be back in action in the next contest which will be played at Toronto on October 16.

The local schedule makers relied on booking Massillon for the week-end attraction here, and dickered up until last week with officials there. The Massillon school, however, decided to show its football wares elsewhere and the local negotiations fell through.

With Larkins out of action and other of the local players not exactly in first class condition as a result of the gruelling battle in the treacherous mud at Columbian park Saturday, the Massillon engagement does not appeal today as it did formerly and a day of rest Saturday may save the squad further injuries.

Practice sessions, however, will continue throughout the week.

WHITE SOX WIN THIRD CLASH

Veteran Urban Faber Victor in Duel With Root.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—With the city series standing three to two in favor of the American league entry, the Cubs and White Sox prepared today for what might be the deciding game of the Chicago championship series.

It will be played on the Northside at Cubs park. That much was in favor of the Nationals.

The Sox went out in front yesterday when Urban Faber, veteran hurler, bested Root, who won the opening game for the Cubs. If the White Sox win today they become Chicago champions.

Blickle May Not Play.

DELAWARE.—Blickle, Ohio Wesleyan's all Ohio halfback, may not be able to start against Ohio State Saturday because of injuries received in the Miami game, Coach Gauthier said today Blair, regular center, will play, having recovered from his knee injury.

Wesleyan gridders were given a long workout today to open a week of gruelling training for the State game.

Smooth Up Mount Work.

ALLIANCE.—Drilling the line on charging, smoothing the work of the backfield and perfecting a defense against end runs will occupy Mount Union coaches this week. Oris, varsity quarterback in 1923, reported for practice today, giving Mount Union two experienced quarterbacks.

Hagen Only Major Champion Who Survives Tidal Wave of Upsets

WALTER HAGEN is not the only golfer to retain his national title won last year, but stands out as the only champion in the major branches of sport to survive the tidal wave.

He was left alone in the golfing world the other day when Virginia Wilson, twenty-year-old miss of Chicago, eliminated Glenna Collett, women's national champ for 1925, from the 1926 tourney at Merion.

It was a heart-breaking defeat for the courageous Glenna. Disappointed over her showing in the British tourney the Providence maid wanted to prove her right to be called America's greatest woman golfer. While the defeat at the hands of the startling girl from the west does not dim Miss Collett's greatness it indicates that there are springing up among the young players lassies who will challenge her prowess from time to time.

Bobby Jones dethroned Willie McFarlane as U. S. open golf champ and then found himself tossed from the amateur diadem by George Von Elm.

In tennis, Bill Tilden and Helen Wills saw their gilded crowns placed on the heads of others, Helen losing hers when she was forced to remain out of play in the national tourney.

In boxing, Dempsey lost the heavyweight title; Harry Greb, the middleweight; Mickey Walker, the welterweight; Rocky Kansas, the lightweight and Kid Kaplan, the featherweight.

Vets Back In Lineup.

WALKER PUTS ON COMEBACK

Stops Callahan in Fifth on Technical Kayo.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Mickey Walker, former welterweight champion of the world, was basking in much of his former ring prestige today, following his impressive defeat of "Shuffle" Callahan, Chicago's slugging truck driver, in their scheduled ten round battle here last night.

Walker's comeback was spectacular. He won in the fifth round by a technical knockout, after fans had seen one of the most murderous exhibitions of legalized assault and battery ever staged in an Illinois prize ring.

The ex-welter king had the awkward but stout-hearted Chicago boy beaten from the tap of the first gong. Walker won every round. He rained high-powered rights and lefts at the luckless Callahan, but the latter kept wading in. Shuffle was fighting true to his form of either knocking out his opponent or getting knocked out himself.

Walker, in spite of his terrific jabs, could not knock the Chicagoan out. He had him on the floor twice, but each time Callahan staggered to his feet for more. At the end of the fifth round, the latter was so groggy and so thoroughly whipped that Eddie Kane, his manager, did the only thing left to do—throw in a towel.

Following the fight, Jack Kearns, Walker's manager, announced he would immediately offer a certified check for $2,500 to the Illinois Boxing commission and issue a challenge to "Tiger" Flowers for the middleweight championship of the world.

Kearns claims Walker is to heavy to seek his old honors in the welter class, lost to Pete Latzo several months ago.

By KATHARINE BRUSH.

ON BOARD THE SPORT WRITERS' SPECIAL, Oct. 3.—East is going west this afternoon. And how the old timers of the baseball writing fraternity tell me that they have never traveled so far during a world series as they are traveling today. All I have to say is I've never traveled so fast. This press special we are on is chasing the Cardinals' special over the rails toward St. Louis at such a clip that I suspect the engineer is trying to tag the other train before it gets there. I wish he would abandon the notion. After all, who is to take chances with the lives of several hundred more or less prominent scribes—not to mention the portable typewriters and the pocket flasks of the same. There would be big blank spaces in a lot of sporting pages tomorrow if this train should be wrecked today. We have no thought of ourselves, of course—but we do think the engineer should remember the great American public. In a stroll through the ten cars of the press special you can see the bearers of many names familiar—names you encounter top columns of athletic news day after day, year after year. Grantland Rice is aboard, and white-haired solemn Bill McGeehan, the wit of the New York Herald-Tribune, and "Boze" Bolger of the very red face indeed, and Westbrook Pegler, "Bugs" Baer, Willie Evans, the umpire who refuses to umpire a word's series—presumably because he can make more money covering it for a syndicate—are among those present.

There are also Wilbert Robinson, president-manager of the Brooklyn Robins, and Connie Mack of the Athletics, both of whom are writing expert comment on the games, and Nick Altrock, the comedian of baseball, who acts as unofficial clown of the train. There are sporting writers, young and old, great and lowly, from Boston and San Francisco and Dallas, Texas, and from all the fartherest corners of the country, and there are also a few Mrs. Sporting Writers, to make me feel a little less like an intruder in No Maid's Land than I otherwise might have.

The press train left New York last night at 7:45, and is expected to reach St. Louis tonight about 7. Everything is being done for the convenience and entertainment of the journeying journalists, and the whole trip is like a sort of house party on wheels. Songs are sung, cards are played. In one section you may see five men bent over a poker table in a haze of thick blue smoke. In the next you may come upon a shirt-sleeved individual frantically turning out of a typewriter two or three thousand words which he intends to give to the telegraph man when we stop at Indianapolis. In a third section you may find a group discussing one of the great sports questions of the day, i. e., "Will the Yanks' shortage of pitchers lose the series for them" or "what was the matter with Dempsey, anyway." In a fourth section, you may behold a mixed foursome in the ninth or tenth rubber of cent-a-point bridge. The drawing rooms look like club rooms, and the observation car gives the general effect of a miniature hotel lobby.

Last year when I covered the world series I suspected that it might be fun to be a regular, bonafide, all-the-year-round sporting writer. Now I'm sure of it. They lead a gay and cheerful life, and especially on occasion like this world's series, they are treated like the lords of creation.

Consider, in New York there was a press headquarters at the hotel Commodore where one might work and eat one's meals—meals served free of charge to anyone possessing that magic insignia, a press button. There was also a press buffet tucked down underneath the tall concrete banks of the Yankee stadium where a delicious cold luncheon was to be had before the ball games. There were press busses that made the run from the stadium at 157th street to the Commodore on 42nd in 20 minutes. Traffic was nothing. Red lights were the same as green. Two officers on motorcycles rode ahead of each bus and cleared the triumphal path. Really, it was magnificent. I felt like a visiting prince or at least a fire chief.

Then there is this special train, with all the comforts of home and all the excitement of a tour. And there will be another like it to take us back to New York again. And in St. Louis feeling the way they do about the world series, I should not be at all surprised if they gave us the city hall to shoot dice on.

When the Cardinals' special train, which is just ahead of us, stopped at Columbus at seven fifty this morning, Bill Southworth, hero of yesterday's Cardinal victory, was met at the station by his wife and son, Bill junior, who will accompany him on to St. Louis. The Southworths live in Columbus, where Bill senior sells insurance during the winter months.

They were photographed by Columbus newspaper photographers on the platform of the Union station—young Bill, carrying his baseball mit and bat and looking very proud, standing between his parents.

JESS HAINES MAY GET CALL

Ranks as One of League's Best Fast-ball Tossers.

By Dick Williams.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4. — Jess Haines, the solemn gentleman with the fast ball, today probably will take up the burden of St. Louis' world championship hopes.

Haines is one of the old league's premier fast ball pitchers, another of those unique gentlemen who was merely a thrower until Rogers Hornsby succeeded Branch Rickey as manager of the Cardinals and substituted A. G. Spalding for the new testament.

Until this year Haines pitched with only indifferent success. He always appeared to have the stuff, but was not attended with great succes. While his labors were dignified and energetic, he was lacking in the something which makes the Alexanders and the Uhles.

When Bill Killifer joined the St. Louise cause, Jess, with Flint Rhem, Bill Sherdel and Art Reinhart developed over night into a star. His fast ball became a positive sizzler, his curve developed into a genuine menace and his visage assumed new and awful expressions.

Haines has been one of the Cardinal aces this year. He possesses as much or more stuff than the gaunt Flint Rhem of Carolina, noted for his ability to win 20 ball games and drive a $5,000 roadster in his second year in the big leagues.

"With the weather dark and gloomy as it appeared early today, Haines should be a puzzle. His fast ball is as fast as the next one and he has a change of pace. Moreover, he is a smooth worker, a cool customer and and effective man with the enemy on the run. If Haines cannot win today, it is doubtful if any of Hornsby's diligent young men could.

We are just reminded that there are no pop bottles in the St. Louis stands. This absence of missiles is the result of an incident of four years ago in which Whitey Witt, then of the Yankees, was struck between the eyes with a bottle hurled by an over-exuberant fan.

Fortunately the bottle hit Whitey on the brow. It might have hit him on the arm and proved serious. As a result of the risk involved both the National and American league clubs agreed to banish pop bottles from the stands and today the thirsty St. Lunatic slacks his parching tonsils out of a paper cup which he can throw neither far nor accurately.

Yanks Due for Taste Of Rhem's Fast Ball In Third Series Tilt

"Dutch" Ruether, in Emulation of Herb Pennock's Feat in Opener, Will Feed Foes Left Handed Curves; Whole Town Stays Up all Night in Riotous Celebration for its Heroes.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 5.—Keyed high in the upper octaves of a civic emotionalism such as Paris knew on the night of the armistice, the banks of the Big Muddy were a riotous revel this morning as St. Louis awoke to greet the day of all days. To the rest of the country, the occasion was merely the third game of the 1926 world series between the Yankees and the Cardinals but to St. Louis it was the day on which the world began and the past became as nothing.

The alms-seeker stood by in mute entreaty, glad of a crumb from the rich man's table. St. Louis never was so humble as that, though it starved for want of the nourishment that comes unasked to the town that harbors a pennant winner. It neither asked nor granted favors and today it had the reward that belongs to any town that has fought the good fight and that has kept the faith.

Yes, St. Louis was to have its world's series at last and the years of adversity were only a vague, unpleasant memory hardly worthy of any man's regret in this, the big moment of the town's history.

Indeed, it was not altogether unlikely that, as the merry citizenry leaped from craig to craig, uttering strange piercing sounds, any one deemed it either necessary or expedient to think of the days of the great famine, when the hour of the big feast was at hand. It was doubtful, in fact, whether any normal citizen took the trouble to think at all.

Know What ao Do.

Certainly the men at the wheel of those careening motor cars, racing up and down the highways with sirens shrieking and wash boilers clattering from the rear axle, had reduced his introspection to a minimum. So had the jostling thousands on the sidewalks who shouted aloud for the pure joy of living and likewise those playful gents who pushed and hauled at trolley cars with the rather ambitious intention of rolling them on the street.

St. Louis apparently always had known what it would do if it got a world's series. It couldn't have thought up all these tricks between the time the Cardinals clinched the national league pennant and their triumphant return to town for the third game of the big series, tied with the Yanks at one victory each. Those kind things require years of study and intense application.

What I am attempting to say is that there was nothing important about this celebration; the town knew what it wanted to do and did it.

But gifted as it is, it will have to pull a sort of civic rabbit out of the hat this afternoon when the whole state of Missouri will converge, at least in spirit, on Sportsman's park with the central idea on sitting itself down in not a great deal more than 25,000 chairs.

Only 35,000 Can Get In.

In effect, a dress rehearsal of the millennium was on and most of the boys out this way were due to listen to it and not see it. Only a favored few, with the foresight to order tickets in July or the money to buy them on street corners in October, will be there to see the greatest thing that has happened to Missouri since Columbus discovered America.

Of course, they can't see how the Cards can go wrong and, in consequence, the odds were on the local club at 6 to 5, although it had gained only a standoff in the first two games. The shift in sentiment was due not only to the fact that the Cards were back to their happy hunting ground but also to the manner in which Alexander whipsawed the Yanks with his fast ball at the Yankee stadium on Sunday.

One fast-ball special stopped the Yankees then; another in the person of Flint Rhem was due to attempt the same thing this afternoon. He won't have to be as good as Alexander to get away with the business, for perfection seldom is a necessity. Rhem merely has to pitch one of his typical games to take the play away from the Yanks and stake the Cards to the lead in the series.

However, there is nothing to prevent Duth Ruether from operating along similar lines for New York. This left handed specimen faced precedent established by Herb Pennock in the opening game on Sunday, Herbert having demonstrated that a left-hander with a slow curve and the will to win can stop the Cardinals. He probably won't find it necessary to be as good as Pennock was either.

Becomes More Uncertain.

As a matter of fact, the series seemed inured to become looser and more uncertain as it proceeded to its natural conclusion.

Neither club has been able to keep the size of its lunch check to date and that sort of thing isn't being done through an entire series.

St. Louis, perforce, has figured which club is going to do the hitting. As the situation was viewed here today, the Cards will hit the ball and the Yanks will hit the mat.

That was the reason that St. Louis, having received its returning ball stars in a paper blizzard and a chorus of whistles and horns, wandered the streets throughout the night with nothing on its mind but the glow of its self-satisfaction. That was the reason that some fans decided to forego a part in the celebration in order to maintain a place in the lines that waited at the gates all night for a chance to sit in the bleachers.

St. Louis may have been wrong many times in the lean years between the victory of the old Browns in the American association in 1888 and the 1926. But, judging from the way the boys were circle-running today, it knows when it is right.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

The secret of the good golf swing is found in its utter simplicity. All good golfers know that the swing is accomplished by simple, natural methods. The golfer who finds the swing difficult is merely trying to conquer a lot of hurdles he has built up in front of himself. The average golfer could swing a carpet beater with natural ease and could swing a baseball bat with never a thought as to how he actually was to do it. But with the golf club in his hands he conjures up a score of things he is to do and as many things to be avoided. That is what ruins him—that plus the never-ceasing determinations to hit it hard. He promises himself faithfully to take it easy on the next one, but he never does. If he ever would he would surprise himself, and actually hit the ball hard. Try taking it easy a few times—I mean in actual play.

SEVEN BIG GRID LEADERS; DATES OF IMPORTANT CONTESTS

To Win From Oberlin Goal of Mount Squad

Clash at Alliance and Case-Wooster Contest at Cleveland are High Spots on Saturday's Conference Schedule; Ohio State-Wesleyan to Renew Annual Grid Feud.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 5.—After the usual preliminary rifle fire with the accustomed desultory results, the big 75's of the Ohio conference swing into action this Saturday. So far, there have been a few casualties, but none of serious import. Case, after winning its first game easily, barely escaped the Akron encounter with a tie score. Ohio Northern and Miami have black marks against them to start the season and Kenyon is still trying to get its breath back after the Dayton catastrophe.

The big battles scheduled include the Mount Union-Oberlin clash at Alliance and the Case-Wooster game at Cleveland. The first named affair has as its inspiration last year's scoreless tie. That was the one blur rather than a blot on Oberlin's unbeaten team. The Mt. Union season is composed of two games and to win this pair, Coach Johnny Thorpe would be willing to drop all the others. Oberlin is one and Wooster the other. And now the Congregationalists wander down to Alliance for a nice pleasant afternoon, which will shade a Mexican revolution in the matter of action. football continue to smile on the Case If the little mole-skinned gods of eleven, the Scientists may defeat Wooster. In 1925, the Black and Gold upset Case, 11-0, and Coach Fletcher is out for blood. But the Brown and White defense must improve and the attack be of a more consistent nature. Wooster has a fairly strong line and a million backs of more or less ability with Blough as headliner. This lad is ever dangerous and is likely to cause Case more trouble than the rest of the Wooster backfield.

Norsemen At Oxford.

At Oxford, a Miami team that showed up favorably against Ohio Wesleyan last week meets Ohio Northern. The Norseman dropped a 13-7 contest to Denison but proved to be anything but a weakling. In all events, Miami will utilize the passing attack that swept Wesleyan back and which in three dazzling throws accounted for the Oxford touchdown. It will be a up and tuck affair with the home team having a slight edge.

If Kenyon can re-arrange its shattered team and draw in its scattered morale, the purple may capture a game from Baldwin-Wallace, carded for Gambier, this week-end. The Berea eleven appeared weak against Western Reserve, but no weaker than did Kenyon in its futile attempts to stem the Dayton avalanche.

Flushed with a sweeping triumph over Baldwin-Wallace, Western Reserve treks to Hiram for what should be an easy conquest of the Cherry and Blue. The Pioneers revealed a diversified attack and a staunch defense, which did justice to the teaching of Gordon Locke. There was interference such as Reserve teams of the past 10 years had only dreamed of, but never seen.

Case was deserving of victory, but held to a tie because one of its players was too impetuous and was off side when the point for goal was tried and missed. The referee was forced to award the point to Case, thereby giving the scientists an even break with Akron. This same Zipper eleven takes on Ohio University at Akron and may win. The Green and White, while running up a huge score against Rio Grande, has yet ho prove itself and a victory over Akron will do much toward that end.

Otterbein and Heidelberg meet at Westerville Friday. Last year, the latter trounced the United Brethren by a 39-0 count and this year, it's a guess. Muskingum plays Capital at Columbus Friday.

Marietta Plays Nittany Lions.

Among Saturday's non-conference games are the Ohio State-Ohio Wesleyan melee at Columbus. A season ago, the battling Bishops held the Buckeyes, 10-3, but early season form makes it appear that this year's score will be considerably larger and more decisive. Marietta, which held Penn State to two touchdowns in 1925, again meets the Nittany Lions on the latter's gridiron. St. Xavier bumps into a new foe in the Quantico Marines for a contest scheduled for Cincinnati, while Wittenberg is due for a light workout against Rio Grande at Springfield. The Dayton Flyers play at Cleveland against John Carroll, and should win with little trouble.

MOUNT PRIMES FOR OBERLIN

First Meeting on Alliance Field in Five Years.

Mount Union reaches the first high point in her 1926 grid schedule when she meets the strong Oberlin team on October 9. This will be the first time the two teams have met on the Mount field in five years. The Oberlin game will also be the home-coming game for Mount this year. Judging from the advance sale of tickets and reservations now made the game will be played before the largest home-coming crowd ever present at the Mount field. Standing room will be at a premium. The city of Alliance will be specially decorated for the gala occasion, and the various fraternities on the campus have planned special attractions.

Mount's two victories, Slippery Rock Normal and Heidelberg college, have greatly augmented her hopes for a win over the Oberlin team. It is not to be thought that Mount is not taking the game seriously for the Oberlin team will be a far too powerful aggregation to be considered that way. A victory Saturday depends on Mount playing heads-up ball the entire game. No efforts to smooth up Mount's attack and to increase her driving power will be spared during practice this week.

Physically Mount is in good shape for the battle as she has been fortunate in coming through both games without serious injuries. It will take more, however, than just good physical condition to beat the three time Ohio Conference champs. Mount again this year will send against Oberlin a team equally as powerful on the defense as the team which last year seriously threatened the up-staters' string of conference victories when the game was tied with neither side able to score. Captain Army Armstrong and center Burkle, who led the defense last year, will do so again next Saturday.

LAFAYETTE IS NEXT FOR PITT

Six-year-old Grid Duel to be Resumed Saturday.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 5. — A football feud that is only six years old but is already as intensely contested as any in the east will be renewed in the stadium here next Saturday when the University of Pittsburgh and Lafayette college elevens come to grips.

The yearly duel with the Leopards is the only one in which the Panthers have lost more games than they have won. And singularly, Lafayette has had a Pitt graduate as coach ever since relations between the two institutions were established. Dr. J. B. Sutherland, present Pitt mentor, was in charge of the elevens that met the Panthers from 1920 until 1923. When he came to Pittsburgh the following year his place was taken by G. Herbert McCracken, who was graduated from the university in 1919.

During Sutherland's reign at Lafayette, the Leopards won two and lost two. Pitt won in 1920, 14 to 0; Lafayette took the 1921 and 1922 games, 6 to 0 and 7 to 0, respectively, and in 1923 the Panthers emerged victors, 7 to 0.

Since McCracken has been coaching at Easton, Lafayette has not been defeated by Pitt. The 1924 contest was won, 10 to 0, and last fall the Pittsburghers bowed, 20 to 9, after taking a 9 to 0 lead in the first half.

Will Not Lose Moore.

NEW CONCORD—Capt. Moore may not be lost to the Muskingum football squad for more than one game because of a shoulder injury received Saturday against Hiram. It had been feared he would be out for the remainder of the season. Taylor, star end, who dislocated his shoulder in practice several weeks ago, indulged in the light workout the team took today. He may be able to start this week-end.

Prepare for Northern.

OXFORD—Miami gridders today began preparing for the Ohio Northern contest Saturday by taking a light drill. The scrubs got the hard work today, going through a stiff scrimmage. Coach Pittser declared he plans no changes in the varsity line-up this week.

FOOTBALL is with us.

All the little buds that the coaches have been nursing along, including forward passers, ends, punters and the variegated variety, are in full bloom. Whether or not they're tough enough to stand the inclement and four 15 minutes halves against any opposition is about to be decided.

And it ought to be a hectic season—very hectic, what with the usual denials concerning the efforts of some colleges to lure star players, the efforts of the Big Three to remain above the visibility line and the hard things professional and college adherents will say about each other.

Here are some of the important games— generally speaking—that will be played on the various week ends.

November 27.

Army vs. Navy, Notre Dame vs. Carnegie Tech, Georgetown vs. Detroit, Iowa State vs. U. of Southern California.

Plenty of thrills in that list and it doesn't include all of the games in various sections of the country which have a big kick in said sections.

Line Gets Attention.

SPRINGFIELD — Wittenberg's line had most of the attention of Coach Godfrey at light practice sessions today. Preparations for the Rio Grande game here Saturday are in reality plans laid for the homecoming game against Miami here Oct. 16. Coaches are striving to build Wittenberg's ends for the first Buckeye game on that date.

Akron In Good Shape.

AKRON.—Akron university came through its game with Case last Saturday without serious injuries and will be in good shape for the Ohio game next Saturday, provided there are no untoward events.

Oberlin Loses Half.

OBERLIN — Halfback Wilder will be out of the Oberlin lineup for ten days because of a dislocated elbow received in the Marietta game Saturday, it developed today. Coach Maceachron put his squad through a stiff scrimmage today in starting preparation for Mount-Union.

St. Louis Is One Big Howl As Mob of Fans Crush Way Into Park

By Ford C. Frick.

SPORTSMAN PARK, ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—You hear much of this thing called baseball frenzy. Here you have it in living example.

Howling, shrieking, pushing mobs that recognize no police barrier and admit of no regulated authority.

Bands, banners and bugles—whistles blowing, horns tooting frantically, sirens that shriek and wail and shriek again; everywhere clamor, and din, and confusion—St. Louis has gone suddenly mad—mad with joy, and enthusiasm, and pride.

The demonstration culminated this morning with the first mad rush toward a ball park that is all too small to accommodate the thousands of faithful fans who hope against hope to push themselves into a space already jammed to capacity.

The police cordon stretched about the park battled helplessly to stave off the rushing thousands who continued to come on. Ten thousand of that milling, pushing throng will eventually find seats and see this afternoon's game. Fully 3,000 of them have been waiting since yesterday afternoon—standing in line through the long night to insure a seat when the game starts.

But even so Sam Breadon and his Cardinal cohorts have managed admirably. Speculafors are a more or less unknown quantity out here in the open spaces and virtually all of the tickets have fallen into legitimate hands. Which is more, the Cards have established a clearing house, whereby unused tickets can be directed into legitimate hands and as many visitors as possible accommodated for at least one game.

Marek's Shoulder Hurt.

COLUMBUS—A light drill on forward passing and an illustrated lecture by Coach Wilce comprised the program of the Ohio State university football team today. Marek, star halfback, was suffering from a bruised shoulder, which kept him out of practice, but Trainer Chambers said he would be ready to start against Ohio Wesleyan Saturday.

'TAKE THE AIR,' GRID SLOGAN

Mid-west and Big Ten Coaches Favor Aerial Game.

By Copeland C. M. Burg.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Air's the thing. That was the slogan today at Big Ten conference and mid-western football camps generally as coaches launched a final week of practice before important conference and intersectional tilts scheduled for Saturday.

Profiting by Chicago's 12 to 9 win over Florida and other smashing victories last Saturday in the middle west, teams almost entirely will concentrate on the aerial attack this season.

Centering the interest in this section Saturday will be the clash at Minneapolis between the powerful Gophers eleven, which last week humbled North Dakota, 51 to 0, and Notre Dame, winner over Beloit by the Irish's biggest opening game score in any season, 77 to 0.

A defeat for Rockne's gang Saturday will eliminate Notre Dame, non-conference eleven, from a claim on western honors, while a Minnesota victory will stamp the Gophers as chief rival of Michigan, last year's Big Ten champion. Experts believe the better air game will win the Minneapolis struggle.

Kansas, of the Missouri Valley conference, will probably succumb to Wisconsin at Madison.

Chicago will play its second intersectional game of the season here against Maryland and Coach Stagg's overhead is regarded likely to win.

Michigan will play Michigan State; Purdue, just nosed out last week by the Navy, will play Wabash; Illinois, victors over Coe in the season opener, will meet another weak foe in Butler.

Northwestern, rolling up a 34 to 0 score over South Dakota Saturday, will probably easily repeat over Carleton at Evanston and the strong Iowa eleven, which Saturday defeated Colorado Teachers' college, 24 to 0, will find only mild opposition from North Dakota at Iowa City.

The brilliant Ohio State eleven will take on Ohio Wesleyan in a warmer up before its eastern appearance October 16 in New York against Columbia. Ohio beat Wittenberg last week, 40 to 14.

Indiana, after humbling De Pauw, 31 to 7, will clash with a non-conference eleven, Kentucky, at Bloomington.

Chicago's new air defense, Purdue's superb passing game, Illinois' open attack, Michigan's brilliant overhead offensive, Minnesota's great driving power, Northwestern's end-run strength and Notre Dame's combination of aerial and old-fashioned football were the outstanding highlights of the last week end.

Illini Football Without Grange Will Show Star's Drawing Power

Early Signs Indicate His Passing Will Not be Felt Particularly as Seat Orders Flow In.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Just how great is the drawing power of "Red" Grange, the famous University of Illinois football star who heard the siren call of "Cash and carry" Pyle and became a professional, will be demonstrated this fall in attendance at the games of the Illini.

In past years the coffers of the Orange and Blue institution have been mightily swelled by Grange's playing, as football fans over the entire country fought for a chance to watch him dash over the white lines.

Dire predictions as to the Illini drawing power without a Grange have been made but early indications are that the passing of Grange is not going to be particularly felt.

Early reservations for the Pennsylvania-Illinois contest, to be played at Urbana, October 30, indicate this game will prove the stellar attraction of the season. Pennsylvania is the the first big eastern eleven to play in the Urbana stadium and followers of Coach Bob Zuppke and his men are keen to watch the Illini in an attempt to repeat their victory of last year over them.

While orders for the Pennsylvania game exceed all others, interest is mounting in the Iowa game to be played in Urbana, October 16. The Iowa contest will mark home-coming day.

The third big home game for Illinois is with Ohio on November 20, the last battle of the season.

Illinois will also play Butler, Chicago, Michigan and Wabash, all the games scheduled at Urbana with the exception of the Chicago and Michigan clashes.

HAS BRAIN AS WELL AS BRAWN

Yale Grid Captain Also Star in Class Work.

Phil Bunnell, captain of Yale's football eleven, which hopes to dim the memory of last year's disappointments, may be known only to the general public as a good football player, a valuable man to his team and a popular student.

As a matter of fact a Who's Who of Bunnell places his football success as a minor part of his achievements in college.

This modest chap who leads the Bulldog this fall is best known to New Haven officials as a student of high intelligence. His standing as a scholar is attested to by the fact that last June he was awarded the Francis Gordon Brown scholarship from the class of 1927 as the "man who most closely approaches the standards of intellectual ability, high manhood, capacity for leadership and service set by Frances Gordon Brown, B. A. Yale, 1901."

Bunnell is a member of the student council. He's a member of the Student Survey Committee. He has served on the junior promenade committee. He is a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon and the Athletic fraternity of Sigma Delta Psi. He was the last man tapped last year for Skull and Bones. He captained the Yale freshman swimming team and swam on the sophomore team which won the world relay championship.

The fact that Bunnell is one of the most popular men on the campus indicates that he has carried off the various duties and accepted the honors modestly.

WESTMINSTER NEXT FOR BISON

Victory May Mean Lead in Tri-State Race.

BETHANY, W. Va., Oct. 5.—Realizing that a win over Westminster will virtually place them in a tie for the tri-state conference lead, and also stamp them as contenders for the tri-state crown, the Bison herd is endeavoring this week to iron out all the deficiencies noted in the Wesleyan game. It is the aim of Coach Nuss not only to come out of this important struggles with a well earned victory, but also to prove to the alumni of Bethany that Nuss-coached eleven of this year is one of the best ever to represent this institution. It is not by any means an easy problem for the coach to solve in just what determining the mode of play for this encounter, as the New Wilmington combination is being coached this year by a man who has not only participated in Collegiate football for four years—but has also been under the capable guidance of one of the country's best coaches in Wally Stiffen. For this reason, above all else, the Bison mentor is taking every precaution possible in perfecting new offensive and defensive plays for this important classic.

With the spirit of the entire squad of 30 men, entirely rejuvenated because of the fine work which the first team backfield has been producing the interest in the coming battle is at fever pitch from Bethany's angle. Reports from the Pennsylvania institution are to the effect that interest there is also high, and that plenty of the Westminster alumni will be on hand to help the Presbyterians in spirit.

"Hump" Neel, fleet-footed halfback, was the main cog in scrimmage yesterday. He has gotten back into his old stride once again and Coach Nuss is counting on him to cross many of the white chalk marks on the Wellsburg grid this year.

Haskin's Letter

is performed under conditions such that a considerable amount of food energy is required to maintain their bodily temperature.

More workers are employed today in the various occupations of the manufacturing and mechanical industries and trade and transportation, but use of labor-saving machinery in it is stated that with the extensive these branches of industry there can be little doubt that the increasing relative importance of these branches at the expense of agriculture and forestry has brought about a substantial decrease in the proportion of workers engaged in heavy physical labor.

Nor does the farm laborer have to work as hard as he did twenty years or more ago. Practically all the arduous tasks on the farm have been lightened greatly, and today the simile, "he has an appetite like a farm-hand," is not so apt as it was formerly. The farm-hand hasn't such an extraordinary appetite now because his food requirements are not so great.

Per capita food requirement in the United States shows a decrease, too, because on the whole the American people are living in warmer houses and in houses that are heated uniformly. They need less food to maintain body temperature.

One thing has tended to increase food consumption—the wearing of fewer and lighter clothes by both men and women, while the character of their underclothing is such as to restrain heat dissipation less than in the good old days of red flannels, or underwear that was correspondingly warming. Men have not made so radical a change in their clothing as have women, but the latter have gone to such extremes in the way of lightening that they might materially add to the or dispensing entirely with garments nation's food requirements, were it not that most of them fear to indulge in normal appetites lest they put on too much weight or find it impossible to reduce themselves to fashionable contours.

'TAKE THE AIR,' GRID SLOGAN

Mid-west and Big Ten Coaches Favor Aerial Game.

By Copeland C. M. Burg.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Air's the thing. That was the slogan today at Big Ten conference and mid-western football camps generally as coaches launched a final week of practice before important conference and intersectional tilts scheduled for Saturday.

Profiting by Chicago's 12 to 9 win over Florida and other smashing victories last Saturday in the middle west, teams almost entirely will concentrate on the aerial attack this season.

Centering the interest in this section Saturday will be the clash at Minneapolis between the powerful Gopher eleven, which last week humbled North Dakota, 51 to 0, and Notre Dame, winner over Beloit by the Irish's biggest opening game score in any season, 77 to 0.

A defeat for Rockne's gang Saturday will eliminate Notre Dame, non-conference eleven, from a claim on western honors, while a Minnesota victory will stamp the Gophers as chief rival of Michigan, last year's Big Ten champion. Experts believe the better air game will win the Minneapolis struggle.

Kansas, of the Missouri Valley conference, will probably succumb to Wisconsin at Madison.

Chicago will play its second intersectional game of the season here against Maryland and Coach Stagg's overhead is regarded likely to win.

Michigan will play Michigan State; Purdue, just nosed out last week by the Navy, will play Wabash; Illinois, victors over Coe in the season opener, will meet another weak foe in Butler.

Northwestern, rolling up a 34 to 0 score over South Dakota Saturday, will probably easily repeat over Carleton at Evanston and the strong Iowa eleven, which Saturday defeated Colorado Teachers' college, 24 to 0, will find only mild opposition from North Dakota at Iowa City.

The brilliant Ohio State eleven will take on Ohio Wesleyan in a warmer up before its eastern appearance October 16 in New York against Columbia. Ohio beat Wittenberg last week, 40 to 14.

Indiana, after humbling De Pauw, 31 to 7, will clash with a non-conference eleven, Kentucky, at Bloomington.

Chicago's new air defense, Purdue's superb passing game, Illinois' open attack, Michigan's brilliant overhead offensive, Minnesota's great driving power, Northwestern's end-run strength and Notre Dame's combination of aerial and old-fashioned football were the outstanding highlights of the last week end.

Illini Football Without Grange Will Show Star's Drawing Power

Early Signs Indicate His Passing Will Not be Felt Particularly as Seat Orders Flow In.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Just how great is the drawing power of "Red" Grange, the famous University of Illinois football star who heard the siren call of "Cash and carry" Pyle and became a professional, will be demonstrated this fall in attendance at the games of the Illini.

In past years the coffers of the Orange and Blue institution have been mightily swelled by Grange's playing, as football fans over the entire country fought for a chance to watch him dash over the white lines.

Dire predictions as to the Illini drawing power without a Grange have been made but early indications are that the passing of Grange is not going to be particularly felt.

Early reservations for the Pennsylvania-Illinois contest, to be played at Urbana, October 30, indicate this game will prove the stellar attraction of the season. Pennsylvania is the first big eastern eleven to play in the Urbana stadium and followers of Coach Bob Zuppke and his men are keen to watch the Illini in an attempt to repeat their victory of last year over them.

While orders for the Pennsylvania game exceed all others, interest is mounting in the Iowa game to be played in Urbana, October 16. The Iowa contest will mark home-coming day.

The third big home game for Illinois is with Ohio on November 20, the last battle of the season.

Illinois will also play Butler, Chicago, Michigan and Wabash, all the games scheduled at Urbana with the exception of the Chicago and Michigan clashes.

HAS BRAIN AS WELL AS BRAWN

Yale Grid Captain Also Star in Class Work.

Phil Bunnell, captain of Yale's football eleven, which hopes to dim the memory of last year's disappointments, may be known only to the general public as a good football player, a valuable man to his team and a popular student.

As a matter of fact a Who's Who of Bunnell places his football success as a minor part of his achievements in college.

This modest chap who leads the Bulldog this fall is best known to New Haven officials as a student of high intelligence. His standing as a scholar is attested to by the fact that last June he was awarded the Francis Gordon Brown scholarship from the class of 1927 as the "man who most closely approaches the standards of intellectual ability, high manhood, capacity for leadership and service set by Frances Gordon Brown, B. A. Yale, 1901."

Bunnell is a member of the student council. He's a member of the Student Survey Committee. He has served on the junior promenade committee. He is a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon and the Athletic fraternity of Sigma Delta Psi. He was the last man tapped last year for Skull and Bones. He captained the Yale freshman swimming team and swam on the sophomore team which won the world relay championship.

The fact that Bunnell is one of the most popular men on the campus indicates that he has carried off the various duties and accepted the honors modestly.

WESTMINSTER NEXT FOR BISON

Victory May Mean Lead in Tri-State Race.

BETHANY, W. Va., Oct. 5.—Realizing that a win over Westminster will virtually place them in a tie for the tri-state conference lead, and also stamp them as contenders for the tri-state crown, the Bison herd is endeavoring this week to iron out all the deficiencies noted in the Wesleyan game. It is the aim of Coach Nuss not only to come out of this important struggles with a well earned victory, but also to prove to the alumni of Bethany that Nuss-coached eleven of this year is one of the best ever to represent this institution. It is not by any means an easy problem for the coach to solve in just what determining the mode of play for this encounter, as the New Wilmington combination is being coached this year by a man who has not only participated in Collegiate football for four years—but has also been under the capable guidance of one of the country's best coaches in Wally Stiffen. For this reason, above all else, the Bison mentor is taking every precaution possible in perfecting new offensive and defensive plays for this important classic.

With the spirit of the entire squad of 30 men, entirely rejuvenated because of the fine work which the first team backfield has been producing the interest in the coming battle is at fever pitch from Bethany's angle. Reports from the Pennsylvania institution are to the effect that interest there is also high, and that plenty of the Westminster alumni will be on hand to help the Presbyterians in spirit.

"Hump" Neel, fleet-footed halfback, was the main cog in scrimmage yesterday. He has gotten back into his old stride once again and Coach Nuss is counting on him to cross many of the white chalk marks on the Wellsburg grid this year.

is performed under conditions such that a considerable amount of food energy is required to maintain their bodily temperature.

More workers are employed today in the various occupations of the manufacturing and mechanical industries and trade and transportation, but use of labor-saving machinery in it is stated that with the extensive these branches of industry there can be little doubt that the increasing relative importance of these branches at the expense of agriculture and forestry has brought about a substantial decrease in the proportion of workers engaged in heavy physical labor.

Nor does the farm laborer have to work as hard as he did twenty years or more ago. Practically all the arduous tasks on the farm have been lightened greatly, and today the simile, "he has an appetite like a farm-hand," is not so apt as it was formerly. The farm-hand hasn't such an extraordinary appetite now because his food requirements are not so great.

Per capita food requirement in the United States shows a decrease, too, because on the whole the American people are living in warmer houses and in houses that are heated uniformly. They need less food to maintain body temperature.

One thing has tended to increase food consumption—the wearing of fewer and lighter clothes by both men and women, while the character of their underclothing is such as to restrain heat dissipation less than in the good old days of red flannels, or underwear that was correspondingly warming. Men have not made so radical a change in their clothing as have women, but the latter have gone to such extremes in the way of lightening that they might materially add to the or dispensing entirely with garments nation's food requirements, were it not that most of them fear to indulge in normal appetites lest they put on too much weight or find it impossible to reduce themselves to fashionable contours.

Swedish Art Gallery For Chicago As Result of Crown Prince Visit

Drive for Gifts for Proposed Museum Will be Launched Shortly.

CHICAGO.—Visit to America recently by the democratic Crown Prince Gustaphus Adolphus of Sweden and his charming wife, Princess Louise, is to result in the establishment of a permanent Swedish art gallery in Chicago, culture center of this country's mid-west, where many residents are of Swedish descent.

During the visit of the titled visitors to Chicago an art exhibition, made possible by the courtesy of western collectors, was visited by the prince and attracted wide attention among Chicago Swedes.

Chicago and its suburbs already hold a large number of paintings from the leading Swedish artists of all times and a drive for gifts for the proposed museum will be launched shortly.

In Evanston, Ill., there are several portraits by Anders Zorn, including a full-length portrait of this city's world-known social leader, Mrs. Potter Palmer. Another Zorn is that of Ira Nelson Morris, former United States minister to Sweden.

There are numerous other portraits by Zorn made at the time he visited America more than 30 years ago.

Chicago boasts several originals and numerous copies of the art of Christian Erickson, noted sculptor of the little northern land.

Other Swedish artists and sculptors are well represented in the mid-west and northwest, early settlers in America having brought to this country some excellent examples of Swedish art. In Illinois and Minnesota wealthy Americans of Swedish descent have recently purchased paintings representative of the best in the modern art of Sweden.

A special room in the Art Institute here has been proposed as the site of the Swedish art center.

The temporary exhibit arranged in Chicago in honor of the Crown prince will shortly be taken down and when the paintings and other exhibits are returned to their owners, request will be made for gifts to the proposed permanent exhibit. A generous response is expected by backers of the movement.
